MITCHEL WILL RUN WITH HEARST MEN

Now Accepts League Indorsement, While Friends of Other Fusion Candidates Worry.

ADAMSON TO LEAD FIGHT

Campaign Put in Charge of Gaynor's Secretary—Aim to Unite Tammany Opposition.

John Purroy Mitchel accepted yesterday the offer of James A. Allen, the Independence League nominee for Mayor, to retire from the campaign in his favor in order, as he said in a letter to Mr. Allen, that there might be only one anti-Tammany candidate in the field this Fall. At the same time he strengthened his resources in the fight against Tammany by selecting as the Fusion campaign manager Robert Adamson, secretary to Mayor Gaynor, who, it is understood, has access to much of the ammunition which Mr. Gaynor had prepared for his attack on the Democratic organization.

In explanation of his action in accepting a nomination which he had previously refused, Mr. Mitchel pointed out that the Fusion Committee had announced formally that its candidates were free to accept any other nominations they might wish. He made no allusion, however, to the stand he took last month when he told the members of the league that he could not become their candidate because he could not honorably accept nomination upon a ticket which denied nomination to his two associates on the Fusion city ticket.

Controller Prendergast and Borough President McAneny, it is known, considered the possibility of a nomination on the Gaynor ticket, but if they had accepted a Gaynor indorsement they undoubtedly would have made some bargain by which they would have been free to deal with the candidacy of Mr. Mitchel as they saw fit. Indeed, when the news of the death of Mayor Gaynor was received in this city they were entering on a conference with the Mayor's representatives on that very point.

Mr. McAneny has said since that time that he did not see why Mr. Mitchel should not take the Independence League nomination, so long as there were no conditions attached to it. It does not appear from Mr. Mitchel's letter to Mr. Allen that he has discussed in any way the attitude he will assume toward his associates on the Fusion ticket.

Many of the friends of Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast now are anxious over the situation. If the Hearst newspapers continue their attacks on the present members of the Board of Estimate, while they praise Mr. Mitchel, the position may become intolerable. Before making up his mind to accept the Hearst indorsement, Mr. Mitchel received advice from persons in whom he had confidence as to the wisdom of his acceptance of the League's indorsement. Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, Herbert Parsons, William L. Ransom, Fusion candidate for City Judge and a prominent Progressive, Henry L. Stimson and County Clerk Schneider, were among those who urged him to run on the Independence League ticket. Norman Hapgood, Chairman of the Fusion Committee, also took the same view.

Here is Mr. Mitchel's letter to Mr. Allen:

New York, Sept. 26, 1913.

James A. Allen, 35 Wall Street, New York City.

Dear Sir: I have your letter and recognize the force of what you say to the effect that there should be but one anti-Tammany candidate for Mayor in the field this Fall. I also appreciate the generous and public spirited character of your communication.

Since my declination of the nomination of the Independence League, to which you refer, the Fusion Committee has declared by resolution that its candidates are free to accept other nominations, thus changing the principle which I felt bound to pursue at that time, and there is, therefore, now nothing that stands in the way of my acceptance of the nomination for Mayor by the Independence League.

I know that your league stands to-day for uncompromising opposition to Tammany Hall, its representatives, and the predatory interests that stand behind both. I know that the support of the league—on the dominant issue of this campaign which you so clearly define as the assured and decisive defeat of Tammany Hall—is earnest and powerful, and I shall be gratified to receive its nomination and co-operation.

Very truly yours,
JOHN PURROY MITCHEL.

Koenig Favors Acceptance.

Chairman Koenig in advising Mr. Mitchel to accept the Independence League offer laid stress on the danger of defeat to Fusion should a third ticket be put into the field.

"It is highly important," he said, "that all those opposed to Tammany Hall should unite in this campaign, and it is of course obvious that a third candidate for Mayor will only serve to aid Tammany. The promotion of the cause which you represent demands your acceptance of the indorsement of the league."

Ex-Secretary Stimson said the contest was between Fusion and Tammany Hall. He thought that Mr. Mitchel should seek all support which would not hinder his freedom of speech or action and would not militate against the success of his associates.

"For you to accept a place on the present Independence League ticket," Mr. Stimson went on, "will, in my opinion, help and not harm the Fusion campaign. Including yourself, that ticket has nominated ten out of the twelve Fusion candidates for city offices in this borough. It contains none of the Tammany candidates. So far as it goes, it is a straight-out anti-Tammany ticket. Running on such a ticket you would strengthen the chances of electing the Fusion ticket and rescuing the Board of Estimate from Tammany control by just that extent. I hope that you will find that you can do it."

Ogden L. Mills in his letter urging Mr. Mitchel to withdraw his refusal of the League indorsement, referred to Mr. Mitchel's personal feeling of loyalty to his old colleagues of the Board of Estimate.

"While your motives in so refusing," Mr. Mills wrote, "were of the highest, I do not think you should allow your personal loyalty to your associates on the Fusion ticket to endanger the success of the anti-Tammany movement, of which you are the leader, particularly when such a sacrifice on your part must injure the Fusion cause, and as the situation now appears, no benefit can accrue to your fellow candidates on the Fusion ticket by a further refusal on your part."

Adamson to Run Campaign.

The announcement of the selection of Robert Adamson as the Fusion campaign manager was made by Mr. Mitchel yesterday in the name of all the candidates on the city ticket. Mr. Mitchel said that they had been in consultation for some days, and now that Mr. Adamson had accepted he was delighted.

Mr. Adamson made it plain yesterday that in undertaking the task of directing the Fusion campaign he felt that

APPENDICITIS FROM WATER?

French Scientific Review Says Wine Drinkers Seem Immune.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—That appendicitis is due to water drinking is the remarkable theory put forward by a leading scientific review. The statistics collected tend to show that only 1 in 200 wine drinkers is attacked by the malady, while 10 per cent. of water drinkers are said to be victims.

It is also pointed out that appendicitis has become vastly more frequent, especially among the well-to-do classes, since water drinking has become fashionable, namely, during the last twenty-five years, and the remarkable case is cited of a family of sixteen of whom six, who are water drinkers, had to be operated upon, while the others were immune.

The theory offered by several prominent medical men to account for these facts is not that water contains a microbe which may cause the complaint, for many sufferers drink mineral or boiled water, but that wine is an antiseptic and keeps down the bacilli, which, when they become too numerous, may cause appendicitis.

From these data the public is drawing the conclusion that total abstinence is an exaggerated virtue, even from a scientific point of view.

FIND VAN SANTVOORD DEAD.

Hotel Servants Discover Retired Banker's Body in Bathtub.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, Sept. 26.—John V. Van Santvoord of Troy was found dead in his bathtub by servants at the Lake Mohonk House to-day. Death was caused by drowning. Several guests thought he had been deranged for several days, and to some of them he said yesterday that he would much rather kill himself than spend the remainder of his life in a lunatic asylum.

Mr. Van Santvoord was 69 years old, and was one of the principal owners of the Hudson River Day Line.

John V. Van Santvoord, son of the late admiralty lawyer, Cornelius Van Santvoord, for many years was connected with the old banking house of Wood & Davis, who had their office at Nassau and Wall Streets.

Shock, caused by the death of his brother Richard last week and attending complications, are believed to have been the forerunner of the attack which ended in Mr. Van Santvoord's death. He went to Lake Mohonk only a few days ago, that he might rest after the strain brought on by his bereavement. He intended to return in a short time to his Summer home in Englewood, N. J.

Mr. Van Santvoord made many gifts to charity, but most of them were given anonymously. He retired from the banking business several years ago. At one time he lived at 10 West Eleventh Street and again at 112 West Twelfth Street. He was a cousin of Mrs. E. E. Olcott, wife of the President of the Hudson River Day Line, and of A. S. Frissell, President of the Fifth Avenue Bank.

AUTO KILLS DR. W. J. BEATTIE

Physician Struck in Front of a Hotel in Bretton Woods.

Special to The New York Times.

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 26.—Dr. W. J. Beattie of Littleton was killed instantly at the Crawford House at 1 o'clock this afternoon, being struck by an automobile as he was crossing to Mrs. William A. Bayon's bungalow. The motor car was from the Howard House, in Barlette. It was conveying Dr. George A. Shedd of North Conway and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Moyer of Bemis to the annual meeting of the White Mountain Board of Trade in the Mount Washington Hotel. The auto was going fifteen miles an hour. As Dr. Beattie started to cross the road the chauffeur, thinking he was going straight on, steered to the left. The doctor stepped back at the same moment. He was thrown to the gutter and his skull was fractured.

Dr. Beattie was President of the Littleton Hospital, and Director of the Maplewood Hotel, in Maplewood. A widow and four children, residing in Littleton, survive him. In his memory, the after-dinner exercises at the Board of Trade banquet were omitted.

Dr. Beattie returned to this country from Berlin nine months ago with a supply of tuberculosis serum and set up a free clinic with Dr. Edward E. Meyers at 418 Central Park West. The two physicians gave the treatment to more than 1,200 persons.

Dr. Meyers said last night that although the death of his colleague had been a great shock to him, Dr. Beattie had left with him an ample supply of serum and he would continue to treat those who came to the Central Park house, maintaining the free clinic.

GIRL DIES IN THE STREET.

Miss Stowell Stricken While Walking with Relatives.

Miss Carrie Stowell, who was well known in Mount Vernon, was taken ill while out walking with her aunt and grandmother last evening, and died in a few minutes, before the arrival of a physician.

Miss Stowell, who was 18 years old, was the daughter of John Stowell, a druggist, of Mount Vernon. Her father and mother went to a theatre yesterday evening, and the young woman, with her aunt and grandmother, started out for a walk. They had been walking for an hour, when the young woman fell suddenly to the pavement in Fourth Avenue, near Third Street. She became unconscious immediately. A doctor was summoned and the young woman carried into a nearby house, but by the time the doctor arrived she was dead. Heart trouble caused her death.

RAN DOMINICAN BLOCKADE.

Gunboats Fired on the Seminole as She Entered Puerta Plata Harbor.

Capt. Carey of the Clyde Line steamship Seminole, which arrived in Quarantine last night from Dominican ports, said that as he had had no arms or ammunition in his cargo for the Government forces he had not seen why he should not enter Puerto Plata, which was blockaded by two Dominican gunboats. He steamed right in, although several shots were fired at his vessel by the gunboats. None took effect. On arriving in the inner harbor Capt. Carey said he found the United States cruiser Des Moines at anchor and encountered no further trouble there.

Later, as the Seminole was about to enter Sanchez, a small boat put off with information that ten Government officials had just been beheaded by the revolutionists while attempting to land four large guns brought from Santo Domingo with which the Federal troops intended to bombard the town, then in the hands of the revolutionists. Capt. Carey said he decided not to take the Seminole into Sanchez.

FOSS WANTS LIGHT ON RAILROAD FUND

New Haven, He Points Out, Spent $337,000 When Legislature Was in Session.

ASKS WHY BILLS PASSED

Tells Massachusetts Public Service Board People Should Know Cause of Outlay.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—Gov. Foss sent a letter to-day to Chairman MacLeod of the Public Service Commission instructing that body to investigate "the ominous statement" that the New Haven Railroad spent $337,000 in the period substantially covered by the last session of the Legislature for "personal services" and for certain items listed under the unsatisfactory heading of "other expenses."

"I note," the Governor said, "that these sums are but a part of a total of one million dollars said to have been expended during the past four years for still 'other expenses' not specially described.

"The people have a right to know exactly what the management did with these sums, much of which was spent during the pendency of Western trolleys and Public Service Commission measures in the Legislature. They expect to know not only who received these sums, but how they disbursed them, to whom, when, and for what consideration.

"In this connection I believe it would be pertinent for you to ask for information as to the nature of the service which Mr. Mellen proposes to render in his advisory capacity to the railroad during the next five years which will justify that corporation in paying him $50,000 a year."

The Governor's letter also said in part:

"The publication of certain expenses furnishes, in my judgment, a proper basis for a searching investigation of the relation of the railroad management to the Massachusetts Legislature and to certain partisan leaders, who, being handsomely retained by the railroad, were in a position to dictate favorable terms for their client through the Legislature. It is relevant to ask what sort of legal services were rendered by these men. One of these gentlemen, who received the sum of $10,000 some six months ago, is reported to have said that he had forgotten for what purpose this money was paid to him, if so I urge you to assist his memory in any available manner.

"I believe that the public has the right to know for what purpose each dollar of railroad money is spent. If these expenses had been published at the time, I venture to say that neither the Western Trolley bill nor the financial sections of the Public Service bill would have become law—or would even have reached my desk to be vetoed, and then passed over my veto.

"It is as important for the railroad for the public that the present suspicion, backed by the revelations in current publications, should be cleared up.

After referring to members of the Legislature who, he said, voted to "confer extraordinary financial concessions upon the railroad," the Governor wrote:

"While it is true that honest considerations undoubtedly controlled the actions of many members in these matters, it is of vital consequence that the relation of the late railroad management to the Massachusetts Legislature should be fully uncovered with the least possible lapse of time, in order that the public may have full information as to the motives which actuated each and every one of these allies of the railroad in the Legislature in voting as they did."

WALTER BOWNE DIVORCED.

Jersey Court Frees Him from Wife Who Fled with J. L. Mott, 3d.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 26.—Walter Bowne, 2nd, of Millington, N. J., by action of Vice-Chancellor John H. Backes, obtained to-day a decree of divorce from Frances Hewitt Bowne, the singer and actress, on the grounds of desertion. Under the law of New Jersey the decree will become absolute in six months. Special Master William R. Barricklo took the testimony in the case and recommended to the Court of Chancery that the divorce be granted.

Although the name of Jordan Lawrence Mott, 3d, grandson of Jordan Lawrence Mott, founder of the Mott Iron Works, is not mentioned in the divorce proceedings, it was in May a year ago that the name of young Mott and Mrs. Bowne figured as the principals in an exciting ocean voyage to the Far East. Their departure on the same ship started a pursuit upon the part of the young man's relatives that lasted half way around the world.

Mott and the young woman journeyed to the Orient upon the Indradeo, a snub-nosed British freighter. Mott shipped as purser and the singer went as passenger, though she figured on the ship's papers as stewardess. The vessel sailed from Brooklyn. The freighter had not been many days upon her voyage when it became noised about that the young man had added another chapter to an already interesting career by departing with the light opera star. His family at once sent Hector Fuller, family friend and war correspondent, to overtake the couple and persuade young Mott to leave his companion and return to his home.

Fuller just missed the couple at Port Said and again at Ceylon where he arrived in time to see the smoke of the freighter making a smudge across the horizon.

It was at Hong Kong that he overtook Mott and his companion, but his efforts to separate the pair, it was said, were unsuccessful. In December Fuller arrived in San Francisco alone. The whereabouts of Mott and Mrs. Bowne were then a mystery, but it was understood that they were in the Flowery Kingdom and that there they intended to remain. A report came later that young Mott had returned to this country, but this was later denied. Mrs. Bowne left the hotel where she had been stopping and took a house. According to the papers in the divorce suit, she still resides in Hong Kong. Mrs. Bowne was known on the stage as Frances Gibson.

HALF BACK BELYEA DIES.

Norwich University Boy's Back Was Broken in Football Game.

WORCESTER, Sept. 26.— Verner S. Belyea, left halfback of Norwich University football team, whose spine was broken in a game with the Holy Cross College eleven on Wednesday, died in St. Vincent's Hospital to-day.

Belyea's home was in Greenfield, and the body will be taken there for burial.

HOPE TO PREVENT ELECTION IN MEXICO

Liberals Will Try to Rush a Bill to Declare It Postponed.

Gamboa to The Times.

By Cable to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 26.—My policies regarding foreigners and foreign investments, if I am elected President of Mexico, will be entirely equal to those observed by Gen. Diaz, de la Barra, Madero, and Gen. Huerta, that is to say, honesty, respect, and full protection.

Anent my attitude toward United States [citizens] it would be absolutely the same as granted to all other foreigners.

F. GAMBOA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 27.—The Liberal Deputies have drafted a bill asking for a postponement of the elections on the ground that a revolution is in progress. It has passed the caucus and will be presented soon with a petition that it be rushed through. The signatures of a large number of Liberals are already attached to it. It is proposed by former Maderista Deputies and seconded by other Liberal elements. It is reported that Huerta will do everything in his power to prevent the approval of the measure, but it is believed improbable that he will be able to do so.

It is rumored that Calero will be appointed Minister of Foreign Relations to replace Gamboa. The suggestion of Calero as possible Presidential material is ridiculed in political circles here, as it is stated that the Liberals certainly will not propose a man who inevitably will be opposed by the younger elements of the same party and certainly will be unacceptable to the revolutionists. Politicians, commenting on a possible move by the United States to persuade the revolutionists to take part in the elections, say that this is now impossible, as the electoral law requires that the States be divided into districts and a census made previous to a date which has already passed. This makes it impossible for the revolutionists to take part in the elections even if they lay down their arms.

The lower house of Congress is verging on a break with the judicial power by refusing to obey a writ of stay of proceedings to allow a Grand Jury trial of Señor Limantour for the illegal use of funds. The writ was secured in the District Court by the prosecution. The Assembly has declared its sovereignty, has refused to obey the writ, and has proceeded with the trial, which is still pending.

VERA CRUZ, Sept. 26.—A newspaper dispatch received here to-day says that the rebels in Hermosillo are planning to accept President Huerta's promises of a free and open election and enter a ticket with Gen. Venustiana Caranza as candidate for President, and Ignacio Pesquiera for Vice President. Gen. Carranza is one of the chief rebel leaders and Pesquiera is his trusted lieutenant.

PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Mexico, Sept. 26.—Dispatches to Constitutionalist headquarters here via Adjuntas to-day reported fifty Americans and as many Germans in peril in the Mapimi mining districts of Durango, following a raid by supposed bandits. Several townspeople were murdered, it is said, but the fate of the foreigners is unknown.

Gen. Jesus Carranza announced to-day that he had issued permission for American Consular representatives to pass through the Constitutionalist lines to Mapimi, and that every assistance would be given to those in danger.

ZOO KEEPERS HARD HIT.

Drought in Elephant House Gives Them an Exhausting Day.

Drought visited the elephant house in Bronx Park yesterday, and visitors to the park were diverted by the sight of all the keepers tramping the quarter mile to and from the monkey house carrying cans and pails of water to try to quench the unquenchable thirst of Gunda and his four fellow-elephants and of the big hippo and the three little hippos.

The water famine was discovered when it was found that something had cut off the supply, though where the trouble lies yesterday's search did not reveal. The famine was realized when the keepers pondered on the fifty gallons that Gunda simply must have every morning before breakfast, of the thirty gallons each of the other elephants demands at that time, of the other generous drinks they trumpet for throughout the day, to say nothing of the tankful needed for the contentment of the hippos. Night fell on an exhausted staff.

FIRST BOAT RAISED IN PANAMA LOCKS

Tug Is Successfully Brought from Atlantic Level to Gatun Lake.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Sept. 26.—A tugboat today successfully passed through Gatun Lock into Gatun Lake, being the first craft ever to make the voyage into the waters of the lake by way of the lock. Three thousand persons saw the historic passage.

The tug reached the surface of the lake from the Atlantic side at 6:45 o'clock. It began being lifted through the lock at 4:50, the delay being due to the electrical machinery not having been wholly installed.

Among those on board the tug were Col. Seibert and family, Lieut. and Mrs. George R. Goethals, and Engineer and Mrs. Schildhauer. The latter officer was in charge of the tug. The tug will pass back to the Atlantic to-morrow morning, leaving Gatun Lake at 9 o'clock.

PANAMA, Sept. 26.—The successful operation of the locks on the Panama Canal to-day was highly pleasing to Col. Goethals, Chairman of the Canal Commission, and canal officials generally. All day long hundreds of persons, men, women, and children, withstood the burning rays of the tropic sun to see the act of passing the first vessel from sea level to the level of Gatun Lake, which to-day had reached a height of a little over 85 feet, or within 20 feet of its normal level.

The operations were conducted with great care and everything went through according to schedule. The three chambers, upper, middle, and lower, on the west side of the locks were used on this occasion. The men worked far into Thursday night making everything ready for the operation. The upper lock filled in the forenoon and this afternoon the water was admitted to the middle and lower locks, but it was not until 4:45 P. M. that the water in the lower lock had reached the level of that in the sea channel outside.

At this hour the sea gate was swung and a moment later the tug, which had been in readiness all day in the approach channel, turned its head toward the entrance. As the vessel passed inside the lower lock chamber a mighty cheer went up from the assembled thousands that lined the lock walls, the tug's whistle was blown loud and long, and all the whistles in the neighborhood joined in the chorus.

SUGGESTS RIVAL TO CANAL.

Colombia Might Cut One with English Money, Says London Paper.

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 27.—The Standard in a long editorial to-day hints that English capital, represented by Pearson & Son, will give Colombia a chance to avenge herself against Panama by constructing an ocean-to-ocean canal by way of the Atrato and Cupica rivers.

"What is to prevent Colombia, if it has sufficient support from foreign capitalists," asks The Standard, "from making this canal itself, and thereby setting up a formidable rival to the enterprise which is now rapidly approaching completion?"

The assertion of the Monroe Doctrine to prevent the building of the canal would be, according to the editorial, "equivalent to the assertion of sovereign rights over every American republic, which so far is not a pretension American statesmen have put forward."

FOOD TO STARVED STRIKERS

Relief Ship Due in Dublin To-day —Inquiry Monday.

DUBLIN, Sept. 26.—The famished strikers are awaiting the arrival here of the relief ship Hare like the inhabitants of a long beleaguered town. The vessel, which was loaded at the Manchester docks by volunteer laborers in record time, left that port on Thursday night, and is expected to arrive here to-morrow evening. Special arrangements have been made to give the Hare dock room, and long counters have been erected in the docks, from which supplies will be passed out to those named by the committee as being entitled to relief.

The Board of Trade inquiry into the strike will begin on Monday, but the employers apparently have prevented the possibility of a conference by informing the Lord Mayor that the terms mentioned in his letter proposing a settlement of the strike do not form the basis for suitable negotiations. The inquiry also may be boycotted by the strikers.

James Connolly, one of the strike leaders, in a speech to-night said that if the Board of Trade inquiry was a Government concession to investigate what every one knew, the strikers would not waste their time in attending it. The employers in an official statement say they are not making war on labor unions as such, but are attempting to end a reign of sympathetic strikes.

SULZER URGED PERJURY ON MONEY GIFTS, D. W. PECK TELLS IMPEACHMENT COURT

SULZER'S ADVICE TO PECK: "DENY IT."

"I showed the letter to the Governor and asked him what I could do about it. He said: 'Do as I shall; deny it.'

"'Why,' I said, 'I suppose I shall be under oath.' He said: 'That is nothing. Forget it.'"

"Are you sure that you gave here or did attempt to give here the exact language he used, or are you giving your recollection of the substance of it?"

"The exact language, word for word."

"You cannot be mistaken as to a word said by him or a word said by you?"

"No, not in that conversation."

FIRE CAPTAIN HURT MORTALLY BY FALL

Leading Men at Factory Blaze, Shannon of Truck 3 Drops 50 Feet, Breaking His Spine.

FOUR FIREMEN OVERCOME

Poisonous Fumes from Burning Chemicals Lay Them Low and Comrades Carry Them Out.

Four firemen were overcome by smoke and a fifth seriously injured in the course of a three-alarm fire that started shortly after 8 o'clock last night in the three-story brick factory building at 617-621 East Eighteenth Street, the first two floors of which are occupied by the American Foil Company, while the Prime Metal Etching Company is on the top floor.

Adolph Schonert, a night watchman in the employ of the American Foil Company, found two beams burning in the rear of the first floor of the building and after wasting some minutes in fire fighting, finally telephoned to the East Twenty-second Street police station for help.

Acting Chief John J. Shannon of the Sixth Battalion, who responded to the first alarm, quickly turned in a second one, which was followed by the third alarm as a precautionary measure, in view of the fact that the tinfoil factory was flanked on the east and north by lumber yards. The third alarm brought Chief Kenlon, Deputy Fire Commissioner Givany and two ambulances from Bellevue Hospital, whose surgeons soon found employment.

The first accident occurred when Acting Chief Shannon led his men of Truck 3 through the stables of R. Valuzzi, an ice dealer, adjoining the burning factory, in order to attack the blaze from the rear. Shannon was the first to shin up a ladder to the roof of the shed at the rear of the stables and, stepping on a rotten plank in the dark, pitched to the ground thirty feet below.

He was picked up unconscious and carried to one of the waiting ambulances and then hurried to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said that his spinal column was probably fractured at the base, and in addition he had severe body bruises. At 11 o'clock Father McGean, a chaplain of the Fire Department, was summoned to Bellevue and administered the last rites to Shannon, who is not expected to live.

By dint of hard fighting the firemen managed to confine the blaze to the first two floors and drown it in little more than an hour. The poisonous fumes from burning tin foil and chemicals, however, gave the firemen a lot of trouble.

John Rooney of Engine 33 was the first to stagger out of the burning building. He was revived and returned to his post. But soon there was a procession of firemen carrying limp comrades on their shoulders until the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street looked like an emergency hospital, as those overcome by the smoke were laid out and covered with thick red blankets.

The disabled firemen were George Strotheim, a probationary man attached to Engine 5; Velmeis of Engine 33, William Hanson of Engine 28, and Lieut. Daniel Davidson of Engine 28. They were attended by Fire Department Surgeons Banta and Archer. Father McGean was hovering near by, but the Chaplain's services were not needed here.

Hanson and Strotheim were taken in the same ambulance to Bellevue by Dr. J. L. Waterman while Lieut. Davidson was transported to the same hospital in the second ambulance in charge of Dr. G. Payne. Velmeis was revived and he went back into the scrimmage.

Sergt. Tiernan and several policemen from the East Twenty-second Street Station took seventeen horses from the stable of R. Vellucci to safety. The reserves of the East Twenty-second Street Station, in charge of Lieut. Archibald McNeil, established fire lines two blocks in all directions from the fire, and had their hands full in keeping the big east side crowd back. Chief Kenlon placed the loss at $20,000.

FIRE TRUCKS IN A HEAP.

Two Strike at a Turn and Men and Horses Go Down Together.

Capt. Kelly of Hook and Ladder 9 and eight of his men were hurrying along East Houston Street to a Second Street tenement-house fire at 10 o'clock last night, the crowds scattering to the sidewalk as the three horses raced with the heavy truck, when Driver Murdock saw Motor Hose Truck 31 coming up Ludlow Street, bound for the same fire. The two heavy pieces of apparatus approached the corner at the same moment. Murdock tried to swerve, and did, but not enough. Into the forward wheels of the horse-drawn truck the motor truck crashed, and knocked it, horses and all, onto the sidewalk.

That was right in front of 216 East Houston Street and two girls and a boy sitting on the steps there were struck and badly bruised and cut. The men, too, were tossed to the ground, but the worst hurt were the horses. "Captain" pranced and struggled, but came out not seriously the worse for the accident. "Fusion River," the middle horse, plunged through the plate glass window of the tailor shop there and was so painfully cut and torn that the men may have to kill him.

But the off horse "120"—so new to the company that the men had not yet given him a name—thrust his foot into the coal hole, and in doing so snapped his leg between the hoof and the fetlock. As soon as some sort of order had been restored to the tangle of firemen, animals, truck, and crowd, Sergt. Siegel of the Fifth Street Station took out his revolver and ended the career of Fire Horse 120.

But the motor hose truck had been able to proceed to the fire its efficiency unimpaired. It was only a little blaze, the flare-up of a curtain.

DOUBLE LOOP BY PEGOUD.

French Airman Describes Two Vertical Circles in Machine.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The intrepid French aviator Pegoud, in continuing his flights at Brooklands to-day, performed feats even more remarkable than those of the previous day.

His most daring achievement was a double loop, in performing which he described two complete vertical circles. He also flew upside down for forty-seven seconds.

IMPERATOR IN STIFF GALE.

But a Wind Blowing 90 Miles an Hour Doesn't Stop Deck Games.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—On the arrival of the Imperator at Plymouth to-day the Captain reported that on Tuesday the vessel rode into a fierce storm, lasting twenty-four hours. At times the wind had a velocity of ninety miles an hour.

So little, however, did the gale affect the steamer that sports on deck went on as usual.

ROCKEFELLER CELEBRATES.

Fifty-eight Years Since John D. First Began to Make Money.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—John D. Rockefeller got his first job in Cleveland on Sept. 26, 1855.

To-day, in spite of the gusts of rain and wind, a great flag floated from the staff at Forest Hill in commemoration of that event.

The job was with the commission firm of Hewitt & Tuttle, and was that of assistant bookkeeper. The salary was $4 a week. Mr. Rockefeller was with Hewitt & Tuttle about three years, and in that time was advanced to the post of bookkeeper and cashier.

The fifty-eighth anniversary of his business start found Mr. Rockefeller in excellent health. He played his usual game of golf, and many old friends called to congratulate him.

C. V. COLLINS INDICTED.

Former Prison Superintendent Accused with Contractor Boland.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Cornelius V. Collins, former Superintendent of State Prisons, and Charles P. Boland, President of the Hudson Valley Construction Company, both residents of this city, were notified late this afternoon that they had been indicted by the Special Grand Jury which investigated the alleged graft in the construction of the Great Meadow Prison. No warrants were served, but the two men were notified to appear in court at Hudson Falls, Oct. 4.

The Hudson Valley Construction Company obtained the contract for the erection of the prison, and Mr. Collins was Superintendent of State Prisons at the time.

SCHIFF LOSES HIS SHOES.

Sets Them Out to be Polished and Comes Home in Pumps.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 26.—Jacob H. Schiff, after giving testimony before the High Court of Impeachment yesterday, returned to his suite in the Hotel Ten Eyck. Before retiring there last night the banker, in accordance with his custom when traveling, placed his shoes in front of his door for the hotel bootblack to polish. It was Mr. Schiff's intention to take the 8:05 o'clock train to-day for New York.

The financier is an early riser. About seven o'clock this morning the staff of the hotel from manager to sub-bellhop, was thrown into a hubbub and scurrying excitement by a telephone message from the banker's room, repeated several times with increasing impatience and emphasis:

"Where are my shoes?" asked Mr. Schiff.

A hurried investigation was set afoot for the missing shoes. The floor steward was questioned; he hadn't them. The chambermaid was questioned; she hadn't them. The bootblack, redolent of black polish and turpentine, was questioned; he hadn't them. Timorously, Mr. Schiff was questioned, but he hadn't them, either.

The bootblack vowed and the steward swore, the chambermaid displayed her peg-tops and invoked the saints. But the shoes remained missing.

Meanwhile, the hands of the clock moved toward 8 A. M. Upstairs, while the whole hotel was striving to put him properly afoot, the banker paced his room in wrath and stockings. Somebody, it seemed, had realized the wish of his life and got into a millionaire's shoes.

Only a little while before the 8:05 train tooted a joyous farewell to Albany, Mr. Schiff slipped into a pair of pumps that had been drawn from the bottom of his wardrobe and soon after slipping into the pumps, he slipped out of the hotel. He heard the 8:05 train toot farewell, for he was in it.

Men found a small pair of shoes of fine leather, but needing a slight polish, on the extension roof of a lower building adjoining the Ten Eyck a few hours later.

CROKER'S SON ON STAND

His Check, Given to Sulzer, Was Indorsed by Colwell—Court Adjourns Until Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 26.—This was indeed "Black Friday" for the Sulzer defense. Not only did evidence pile up in support of the charge that Mr. Sulzer failed to report contributions received for his campaign, as required by the Corrupt Practices act, and that he committed perjury in his sworn statement filed with the Secretary of State, but testimony of a startling nature was given by two witnesses regarded as very friendly to Mr. Sulzer, to show that he sought to induce both to give false testimony in connection with the investigation of his campaign fund before the Frawley Committee and at the trial now in progress before the High Court of Impeachment.

This testimony was given by Henry Morgenthau, recently appointed Ambassador to Turkey, and Duncan W. Peck, State Superintendent of Public Works. Of Mr. Morgenthau's friendly relations with Mr. Sulzer there could have been no doubt, even if he had not testified on Wednesday of his regard for Mr. Sulzer and his $1,000 contribution to his campaign fund. Mr. Morgenthau has made speeches lauding Sulzer, and he took perhaps the most active part in the financial management of his direct primaries campaign this Spring.

Mr. Peck is a hold-over from the Dix Administration, but his department has been one of the few State departments which at all times have been aligned with the new order that was ushered in at the Capitol with Sulzer.

Henry Morgenthau, while occupying the witness chair to-day for the second time since the trial began, freely admitted that the lawyers representing the Board of Impeachment managers in recalling him had taken him by surprise. He testified that Mr. Sulzer called him up on the long-distance telephone on Sept. 2, or perhaps the following day, and urged him to "be easy with him" and treat the campaign contribution of $1,000 as a "personal" affair, if called upon to testify at the impeachment trial. Mr. Morgenthau told the court that he informed Mr. Sulzer that if questioned on the subject he would tell the truth.

Peck's Startling Evidence.

The testimony given by Mr. Peck was even more sensational and surprising. He testified that he gave Mr. Sulzer a $300 bill as a contribution to his campaign fund "without any strings on it" that would place Mr. Sulzer, if elected, under the obligation of retaining him at the head of the Department of Public Works. This was in October of last year. Early in July Mr. Peck received a letter, requesting him to appear before the Frawley committee and tell what contributions he had made to Mr. Sulzer's campaign fund.

"I showed the letter to Gov. Sulzer and asked him what I could do about it," Mr. Peck testified.

"'Do as I shall; deny it,' the Governor said.

"I replied that I supposed I'd be under oath.

"'That's nothing, forget it,' the Governor said.

Mr. Peck, before he was summoned to the witness chair at the afternoon session, expressed to his friends the deep regret he felt at being compelled to testify against Sulzer.

Mr. Morgenthau's entire demeanor on the stand indicated even more strongly than words that he looked upon this second examination before the court as a severe ordeal. His voice, while strangely calm, was sorrowful, and it was apparent that in framing his answers he tried in every way consistent with his path to soften the effect of his testimony.

The effect on counsel representing Mr. Sulzer was apparent. According to one of them, the testimony of Mr. Morgenthau, as well as that of Mr. Peck, came as a complete surprise. Sulzer's lawyers looked at each other in blank dismay when Mr. Morgenthau was done, and it was plainly seen that the prosecution had exploded a bombshell in the camp of the defense.

No attempt was made to cross-examine Mr. Morgenthau, and the cross-examination of Superintendent Peck was brief and did not tend to shake his testimony.

It was learned to-night from one of Mr. Sulzer's friends that the impeached official is at work on a long statement which he intends to read before the Court of Impeachment. Mr. Sulzer, as respondent in the proceedings, will have the privilege of testifying under oath or merely making a statement in answer to the charges, just as he sees fit. It is believed here to-night that he will select the latter course.

In his statement, which is three-fourths completed at present, Mr. Sulzer will admit that he received not only the checks which have been introduced in evidence at the trial, but also about 300 others of which no mention at all has yet been made.

In connection with this statement the respondent will plead a mental reservation, which was strongly foreshadowed in the testimony of several witnesses friendly to Mr. Sulzer, in the line of cross-examination followed by his lawyers, when witnesses less friendly have been on the stand, and in the argument, preceding the several rulings of the court with reference to the admissibility of testimony, showing intent on the part of donors to the Sulzer campaign fund, even though this intent had not been disclosed by anything the witnesses said at the time the contributions were made. Two rulings made to-day by Presiding Judge Edgar M. Cullen supported by a vote of the court, were favorable to wide latitude in this respect, which will undoubtedly prove helpful to Mr. Sulzer, when he has his day in court.

Mr. Sulzer, it was learned, will maintain that when he accepted these checks and cash contributions he did not look upon them as campaign gifts at all, but regarded them as testimonials from admiring friends desirous of showing their appreciation of his integrity in official life and his personal qualities. Under the circumstances, it will be contended on behalf of the respondent, there was not the slightest obligation on his part to include these contributions in his statement filed with the Secretary of State, nor was he guilty of conversion in using the money in stock speculation or other purposes not connected with the campaign.

According to reports from the People's House, Mr. Sulzer is serenely confident that this defense will clear him of any guilt under the three articles on which testimony is being taken at present before the Court of Impeachment.

This afternoon Mr. Sulzer went for an automobile ride, but to-night he is reported hard at work at the Executive Mansion on his defense.

In the framing of this document he is said to be advised not by the eminent members of the bar who are defending him before the Court of Impeachment, but by a group of lawyers for whom no appearance in the case has been noted before that tribunal.

Another Group of Sulzer Lawyers.

Before the court D Cady Herrick, Austen G. Fox, Louis Marshall, and ex-Judge Irving G. Vann appear as his legal defenders. In the privacy of the People's House legal luminaries less refulgent, even if not less devoted to the interests of Mr. Sulzer, are burning midnight oil over the document which they think will make a page in history.

The lawyers said to be co-operating with Mr. Sulzer in this work are Samuel I. Frankenstein, his former law partner, Samuel Bell Thomas, Col. Alexander T. Bacon and Louis A. Sarecky. In this connection it was stated to-night that there had been little in common between the two groups of lawyers in their views upon Mr. Sulzer's defense. While the men who are fighting his battles before the court are concerned in seeing their client cleared after a full hearing on the merits of the case, it was said that the statement which is in course of preparation, would contain an elaborate arraignment of Charles F. Murphy, a history of the Sulzer-Murphy relations or lack of relations from Jan. 1 and also the "criminal conspiracy," which, according to Mr. Sulzer's friends, called into being the High Court of Impeachment, composed as it is of the highest Judges, all the members of the highest Judicial and the highest legislative body in the State. It was predicted that the Sulzer appeal would be to the galleries rather than to the High Court of Impeachment.

Some inkling of what was coming was given in court to-day when Supreme James F. Duhamel, a former Hearst man and since Mr. Sulzer came into office his supporter through thick and thin, rose and read a statement which, to many who heard it, had the familiar ring of pronunciamentos from the People's House. Mr. Sulzer was enjoined by his lawyers from saying anything for publications.

Senator Duhamel said:

"Attention is called to the fact that a large number of the members of this court are not members of the bar, and as one of this number, I ask a liberal ruling on all questions in view of the public sentiment of the origin of these charges and the character of the accusers, and the peculiar obligation in my capacity as Senators, recognizing our obligations to our constituents, I believe that when the Constitution was framed it was intended that the people and their representatives should take some hand in these impeachments. Otherwise they would have left it to the courts. I therefore protest against the rulings—against rulings that are too technical."

"What was that?" said Presiding Judge Cullen.

"Rulings that are too technical, mindful of the words of counsel that such proceedings as this may be the result of a conspiracy of crooks and criminals to save themselves from prosecution as the result of bribery or of parties prompted by other ulterior motives," Senator Duhamel replied.

Mr. Morgenthau reached the capitol early in the forenoon. When he entered the Senate Chamber John B. Stanchfield of counsel for the Board of Managers greeted him and went into the Lieutenant Governor's room, adjoining the Senate Chamber, for consultation. One of the employes of the brokerage firm of Boyer, Griswold & Co. was on the stand when Mr. Stanchfield and Mr. Morgenthau returned to the Senate Chamber.

"I desire to recall Mr. Morgenthau," said Mr. Stanchfield, arising, as the witness was excused. A murmur ran through the courtroom as the Ambassador advanced to the rostrum and took his seat in the witness chair.

"Mr. Morgenthau, have you been abroad during the Summer?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

Mr. Morgenthau said he had been in Europe and returned on Sept. 2.

"Since your return have you had any personal interview with this respondent, Gov. Sulzer?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

"I have not," said the witness. In reply to another question Mr. Morgenthau said he had received a letter and possibly a telegram.

"Have you had any communication with him by telephone?" Mr. Morgenthau was asked.

"I have, yes—a long-distance telephone message. It was either Sept. 2 or 3."

Q.—Immediately after your arrival in this country? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—Now, did Gov. Sulzer call you on the 'phone, or did you call him? A.—Gov. Sulzer called me on the 'phone.

Q.—Where were you at the time? A.—I was at my daughter's house, in Fort Chester.

Q.—Did you have a telephonic conversation with him at that time? A.—I did.

"Tell us what it was," urged Mr. Stanchfield.

"He passed the usual complimentary talk about my return, and he asked me whether I would come up to see him at once, to Albany," said Mr. Morgenthau. "I told him I would not; that I had to go to Washington, probably spending a week there, and that I did not think, now that I had accepted a national position, I would care to come up to see him under the existing circumstances. So he said to me, 'If you are going to testify, I hope you will be easy with me,' and I answered him that I would testify to the facts."

Mr. Stanchfield asked the members of the court, "Did you all hear that?

"Have you related all the conversation with him?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

"I think so; all of any importance," replied the witness.

"Well, let me see," said Mr. Stanchfield, "if I cannot refresh your recollection. Wasn't there something said by him to you upon the subject of how your check to him should be treated in your testimony?"

"I don't think he mentioned the check."

"Have you stated all of your conversation?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

"I think he said something about that I should treat that affair between us as personal," said the witness.

Everybody in the Senate Chamber and in the galleries sat in a strained attitude of listening, amid silence, which nothing interrupted save the questions of the counsel and the quiet, subdued answers of the witness.

"He said that you should treat that affair as personal. Then what did you say?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

"That I could not," Mr. Morgenthau replied.

"That you could not, and that followed the part of your conversation in which he asked you to be easy in your testimony?"

"Of course," said Mr. Morgenthau. "You have taken me by surprise. I do not remember the exact words, but state the substance of it. Which was mentioned first or last I do not remember."

The only attempt at cross-examination was ventured by Mr. Marshall, who wanted to know if Mr. Morgenthau had said that he did not recollect the exact words of Mr. Sulzer. The witness said that Mr. Sulzer's counsel was correct in assuming that he did not.

Peck Tells of His Gift.

The testimony of Supt. Peck was reserved for the afternoon session, when he was the first witness. He was examined by Hiram C. Todd, law partner of Edgar T. Brackett. In reply to preliminary questions Mr. Peck said that he had been Superintendent of Public Works for two years, and had known Mr. Sulzer for twenty. He said the relations between himself and Mr. Sulzer had been friendly.

"After Mr. Sulzer was nominated for Governor, did you see him and have a talk with him?" asked Mr. Todd.

"I did once, at the Rensselaer Inn in Troy," said the witness. "A political meeting was being held there, I believe it was a ratification meeting."

"State the conversation you had with William Sulzer, the respondent, at that time," urged Mr. Todd.

"I met him in the lobby and said: 'Governor, I would like to give you this for the campaign.'"

Q.—What did you give him when you made that remark? A.—I gave him a $500 bill.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said, "Thank you."

Q.—Was there anything else said on that occasion between you and Gov. Sulzer with reference to that contribution? A.—Yes, Sir. I said there was no string on it and that he need not feel at all obliged to reciprocate.

"Since that have you had any conversation with the respondent Sulzer in reference to that contribution?" asked Mr. Todd.

"There was a confidential conversation," said the witness. "Must I give it?"

Presiding Judge Cullen directed Superintendent Peck to tell the Court all about it. Mr. Todd then asked him to tell where and when the conversation was held.

"I don't know exactly when it was," said the witness. "It was some time after the 18th of July in the Executive Chamber."

Q.—Now, state the conversation. A.—I had received a communication from the so-called Frawley Committee.

Q.—A letter? A.—A letter.

Q.—Have you that letter? A.—No, I have not.

Q.—Have you looked for it? A.—I have.

Q.—Have you been able to find it? A.—I have not.

Q.—Did you show this letter to the respondent, William Sulzer, at this time? A.—I did.

"Forget It," Said Sulzer.

Mr. Peck said the letter contained a request that he appear before the Frawley Committee and testify regarding contributions made by him to the Sulzer campaign.

"I showed the letter to the Governor and asked him what I could do about it," said the witness. "He said, 'Do as I shall; deny it.'"

"Was anything else said?" asked Mr. Todd.

"Why, I said, 'I suppose I shall be under oath.' He said, 'That is nothing. Forget it.'"

On cross-examination, Harvey D. Hinman of the defense asked Mr. Peck if he had any means of fixing the date of the conversation at Troy.

"I think it was at the Democratic ratification Oct. 18 last year," was his reply. "It was after a banquet at night. There were lots of people in the lobby when I gave him the money."

"Did you make any memorandum or note of the conversation which occurred in the Executive Chamber?" asked Mr. Hinman.

"I did not," said the witness.

"Are you sure that you gave here or did attempt to give here the exact language he used, or are you giving your recollection of the substance of it?" the witness was asked.

"The exact language, word for word," said Mr. Peck.

"You cannot be mistaken as to a word said by him or a word said by you?"

"No, not in that conversation," said the witness as he left the witness stand.

While, according to the lawyers representing the Board of Managers, the testimony given by these two witnesses was of overshadowing importance, the stories told by other witnesses of the day went to show that other gifts to the candidate besides those hitherto mentioned had been omitted from his sworn statement of receipts.

Richard Croker, Jr., told of having given a check for $2,000, payable to "cash," on Oct. 16. According to Mr. Croker's testimony, Mr. Sulzer told him that as it was after banking hours and he would start up-State that evening or next morning, it would be a convenience to him to have the check made that way. The cancelled check was produced by Mr. Croker, and it was then seen that it was not cashed until a fortnight later at he Equitable Trust Company, on which it was drawn.

Check Links Sulzer and Colwell.

The Croker check had not been heard of before. Aside from adding this substantial amount to the aggregate of unreported campaign contributions, the check was important as the first connecting ling in black and white between William Sulzer and Frederick L. Colwell, his reputed dummy in the stock market.

Colwell is still missing. To-day the lawyers for the Board of Managers renewed their demand on Mr. Sulzer's counsel for the production of Colwell. No positive assurances were given, but there was a tentative promise that this important witness would be produced before the Court of Impeachment before many days.

EVIDENCE ON STOCK BUYING.

That and Morgenthau's Story the Morning Sensations.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 26.—Seven Senators were absent when the court convened at 10 o'clock in the morning. Immediately after the roll call Mr. Kresel, of counsel for the Board of Managers, put into evidence a letter received by George G. Hawley, an Albany brewer, in response to his campaign contribution to William Sulzer, and also similar letters received by William J. Elias and William Hoffman. In each letter Mr. Sulzer gave thanks for the donor's "good wishes," but in only one was there a mention or acknowledgment of the more substantial "inclosure."

Lewis J. Conlan, former City Court Judge, was the first witness, resuming his testimony from the day before. Under examination by John B. Stanchfield, of counsel for the managers, he told of three interviews with Mr. Sulzer, one at his home in New York, and two afterward at the Manhattan Club, the last a day or so before election.

In the second interview, he said, he gave Mr. Sulzer either the check from John Delehanty, which had been put in evidence, or that from Lyman Spaulding, and on the third occasion handed him the $100 check from Daniel Brady, telling him it was a contribution from Mr. Brady to help him in his campaign. None of these was mentioned in the sworn statement of campaign receipts filed by Mr. Sulzer. The witness said he received an acknowledgment from Mr. Sulzer's secretary, Louis A. Sarecky, about the contribution. Judge Conlan testified that the inclusion of a contribution of $110 in Mr. Sulzer's sworn statement as a contribution from himself was a mistake, and that he (Judge Conlan) had merely indorsed the check, which was made payable to his order by John Delehanty.

The witness identified a check for $1,000, signed by Theodore W. Myers, (former Controller of New York and former President of the Democratic Club,) who is now abroad. The check was made payable to bearer on the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, where Mr. Sulzer had an account. On the back was rubber stamped "Pay to the order of the Manhattan Company," signed "Boyer & Griswold." Boyer & Griswold were the brokers through whom F. L. Colwell, Mr. Sulzer's alleged dummy in stock transactions, bought 200 shares of Big Four stock.

On cross-examination ex-Judge D Cady Herrick of counsel for the respondent, sought to show that the checks, collected through the witness, had been given to Mr Sulzer for his own personal needs rather than for campaign purposes. He wanted to know whether, in case of the check shown in yesterday's testimony as coming through Judge Conlan from Mark Potter, Judge Conlan had not had some conversation with Mr. Potter about the candidate's financial condition.

Question About Intent Admitted.

The witness, who had spoken rather reluctantly up to this point, showed sudden alacrity now to answer, but Mr. Stanchfield objected.

Presiding Judge Cullen ruled as follows:

This brings up the question that was discussed to some extent yesterday. It seems to me it would be just as well to dispose of it finally now. I think it is competent for this reason: The charge, I think it is the sixth, is larceny; that is the term used.

Now, we have reserved every question as to the sufficiency of the articles, whether they are ground for impeachment or not, and it is entirely possible that there may be different views by the different members of the court on that question. Therefore, the parties on each side have the right to introduce evidence to meet any view which the court or any of the members of it may entertain on the final submission. Here is charged a larceny. Now, it may not effect the moral culpability of the party, but to meet this the respondent, it seems to me, has the right to show that, whatever the delinquency may be, still he was not guilty of the crime of larceny, and could not be convicted thereof if he was indicted by a petit jury.

Now, I understand the rule to be in larceny that money delivered by a party to another, if he assents, not subsequent at all, but at his intent at the time to give his title to the property, it cannot be the subject of larceny. In other words, even the undisclosed intent of the party, the owner, the delivery of money in order to give him the property, that negatives the idea of technical larceny, however great may be the moral culpability of the party.

Now, in that view, I think this testimony is admissible. Of course, gentlemen, when it comes to the determination of the question of what he did really intend, you are not bound by the statement of the witness. It is for you to say whether it was so or not. That is my reason for the decision. I hope some member of the court will ask for a vote on that.

The court, by a vote of forty-nine to two, sustained the ruling of the presiding Judge, although several of the members, Judge Hiscock and Senators Foley, Pollock, Simpson, Thompson and Wagner, pointed out that they did not think the same ruling applied to the admissibility of undisclosed intent, such as that alleged in the testimony of Jacob H. Schiff and others at previous sessions of the court. Judge Werner and Senator Blauvelt expressed serious doubts as to the correctness of the ruling, but voted to sustain it.

Thereupon the witness was allowed to answer at Judge Herrick's question. He said that he had told Mr. Potter and others at the club that he did not think Mr. Sulzer had a cent, and that it would be graceful for his friends to contribute to help him out. Mr. Potter, he said, agreed with him, and offered to give his check.

Mr. Herrick wanted to know whether he couldn't recall telling Mr. Sulzer what he wanted him to do with the money when he handed it over.

Q.—Didn't you suggest to him some clothing? A.—I if I did I did it jokingly.

Q.—You did, didn't you, suggest that he buy him some clothing? A.—Yes, that it would do him no harm before he went up the State.

Q.—Get a new hat? A.—In substance that.

Q.—In other words, he was to use this money that you brought to him for his personal purposes, clothing, for anything that he might want to spend it for? A.—I said yesterday that I put no restrictions upon it.

Mirth Over Sulzer's Clothing.

The witness raised a laugh and a storm when, on re-direct examination he was asked by Mr. Stanchfield, on what had he based his opinion that Mr. Sulzer was a poor man, since in the twenty years of their acquaintance he must have known of the offices the respondent had held, and read in Mr. Sulzer's own "Sulzer's Short Speeches" that he was an eminent lawyer. He replied:

"Well, he had a law office. I don't know how much practice he had."

Louis Marshall objected to the questioning as insulting, and it was all the presiding Judge, with gentle voice, could do to restrain the wordy spat that followed between the two lawyers. Again Mr. Stanchfield asked on what the witness predicated his belief that Mr. Sulzer hadn't a cent.

"Didn't you know that he had deposited between $40,000 and $50,000 that Fall?" he asked. The question was ruled out.

"Well, his appearance and manner of living, habits, &c. I did not believe he saved anything," said the witness.

"Was his appearance in the Fall of 1912 any different than two years before? He dressed just as well in the Fall of 1912 as he had in a quarter of a century?"

"Just the same," replied the witness, amid a veritable roar of laughter.

"He wore the same kind of hat as candidate that he had for twenty-years, the same style?"

"Not the same hat he did wear," replied the witness.

"Gentlemen," pleaded the presiding Judge, as again a round of laughter swept through the court, "I submit to you, though you are fully members of the court with myself, that it is hardly proper to indulge in mirth here."

Before the witness was excused, Senator Duhamel wanted to know if Mrs. Sulzer was present when Mr. Sulzer loaned the money over at her home to her husband. Judge Conlan said she was, and thanked him, but showed no further interest in the matter or any intention of taking charge of the money.

Brady Destroyed Check and Stub.

Daniel M. Brady, President of the Brady Brass Company of New York, next testified. He had given Judge Conlan a check for $100 for Mr. Sulzer, after spending the evening with the candidate.

"Where is the check?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

"I destroyed it."

"But, you have the stub of the check book?"

"I destroyed the stub, too."

The witness said he and others at the Manhattan Club had given their contributions freely and unsolicited, believing that Mr. Sulzer was a poor man. He had always regarded Mr. Sulzer "as neither a speculator or money maker, and always a poor man."

"A year before," he said, "I had a conversation with Mr. Sulzer. He told me he was still fighting for the people, and a poor man, and I believed it."

He added that he had never received an acknowledgment from Mr. Sulzer or any one else about his contribution.

"Why did you destroy the check and stub? Wasn't that unusual?" asked Senator Bussey from the rear of the Senate Chamber.

"I am very glad to answer that question," exclaimed the witness. "I am not a politician. I am a business man. It was a controversy between factions. I was friendly to both sides. I didn't care to get mixed up in it, and I thought that was a pretty quick way of getting out."

"How would the destruction of the check let you out?"

"That was a mistaken impression of my mind," replied the witness sadly, "because I have lost a great deal of time in New York and Albany in connection with the case."

He added that he destroyed the check after reading of Mr. Sulzer's impeachment. He didn't want his check or affairs "paraded all over the country and photographed from Maine to California."

The witness was then excused.

Mr. Stanchfield next examined John T. Dooling, former Commissioner of Elections, who said he had known Mr. Sulzer intimately for twenty years. On Oct. 15, he said, he handed Mr. Sulzer a check for $1,000, telling him he understood Mr. Sulzer needed help and that he hoped this would help. The candidate, he said, thanked him and shook his hand and that was all. The check, which was made payable to Mr. Dooling was identified by him and put in evidence. It showed his indorsement and the indorsement of Boyer, Griswold & Co., the stock firm through which F. L. Colwell, Mr. Sulzer's alleged dummy in stock transactions, bought his 200 snares of Big Four stock.

Broker Tells of Buying Stock.

Philip Boyer, formerly a member of that firm, was next called. He was a thin faced young man, who said he was a banker, now a member of the firm of William C. Langdon & Co., of 10 Wall Street. The firm of Boyer, Griswold & Co., he said was dissolved in March last. On examination by Mr. Kresel, for the managers, he testified that he had known F. L. Colwell for two years; that on Oct. 15, 1912, Colwell ordered him to buy 200 shares of Big Four stock for him for cash delivery that day, and that he did so, for $12,000 plus $25 commission. In payment, therefore, he testified, Colwell handed him $7,125 in currency and $4,900 in checks. These checks he read from the record of the transaction as follows:

$900 check of William Sulzer.

$1,000 check of Theodore W. Alpers, (this was a misreading for Theodore W. Myers.)

$500 check of John Lynn.

$100 check of Lyman S. Spaulding.

$1,000 check of John T. Dooling.

These checks the counsel handed to the witness, who identified them.

The stock, he said, was bought from Jewett Brothers, and delivered to Colwell on the same day.

On cross examination, Harvey D. Hinman of counsel for the defense tried to throw uncertainty about the actual ownership of the stocks or the actual agent inspiring their purchase, with a view, it seemed, of connecting the wife of the impeached Governor with the stock transactions. He wanted to know particularly the time of day when Colwell called. The witness could not recall. He brought out the fact that the witness himself had nothing to do personally with the indorsement of the checks and handling of the money.

"Mr. Boyer," asked Mr. Kresel of counsel for the managers, "did Mr. Colwell say anything to you as to the person for whom he was purchasing this stock?"

Mr. Hinman was overruled in an objection he registered. Boyer replied that Colwell said he was buying the stock for himself.

C. A. Reynolds, cashier of Boyer, Griswold & Co., was next examined by Mr. Kresel. He identified in the cash book the entries of the Colwell transaction and the checks that figured there.

All the checks, he said, were certified when Colwell presented them. The certified check for $900 from William Sulzer, though, was drawn on the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. Mr. Kresel asked counsel for Mr. Sulzer to produce that check.

"We have not got it," said Mr. Hinman.

On cross examination Mr. Hinman made the witness admit that he had no personal knowledge of the indorsements on the checks, having merely glanced at them to see that the checks were good.

Alexander Murray, margin clerk of Boyer, Griswold & Co., and in charge of their order department, was the next witness. He identified the personal ledger handed the purchased stocks to Colwell and received the currency and checks in return from him. These he immediately handed to Mr. Reynolds in the next room. He could not identify the checks, having merely glanced at them, he said, to see that they were certified.

It was at this point that Mr. Stanchfield recalled to the stand Henry Morgenthau, who in the next five minutes added startling particulars to his testimony of Wednesday, telling in a slow but sorrowful voice how, after his return from Europe early this month, William Sulzer telephoned him from Albany, begging him to be "easy" with Mr. Sulzer in his testimony before the Court of Impeachment, and to treat "the affair" between them as to Mr. Morgenthau's unacknowledged campaign contribution of $1,000 "as a personal matter." Mr. Morgenthau added that he had answered the impeached official that that was impossible.

The effect of his brief testimony seemed crushing to the defense. Louis Marshall of counsel for Mr. Sulzer sought to put a question to him in cross-examination, but after Judge Herrick had tugged Mr. Marshall's coat tail and looked up at him with a look of most eloquent silence, Mr. Marshall thought better of it and decided not to ask Mr. Morgenthau any questions.

The Ambassador was then excused. He left the stand surprised himself, apparently, by the testimony that had been drawn from him.

There was a heavy silence over the table where sat the counsel for Mr. Sulzer. Mr. Marshall and D Cady Herrick were stroking their faces in gloomy reflection.

James Temple Gwathmey, a cotton merchant of New York City, next took the stand. He identified a copy of a letter which he wrote to Mr. Sulzer, enclosing a check for $100. The letter read:

Nov. 1, 1912.

Hon. William Sulzer, 115 Broadway, City.

Dear Sir—Inclosed find check for $100, which I wish you would hand to the people who are conducting your personal campaign, as I wish this money to be devoted to that cause alone. Yours very truly,

JAMES T. GWATHMEY.

The witness identified a letter he received from Mr. Sulzer on stationery of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, which, as was the habit of the candidate, contained no mention of money, Mr. Sulzer thanked him "for all you say and all you have done."

On cross-examination Mr. Hinman pointed out that the indorsement on the back of the returned check was rubber-stamped "William Sulzer and Louis A. Sarecky." William Sulzer had signed the money over at her home to her husband. Judge Conlan said she was, and thanked him, but showed no further interest in the matter or any intention of taking charge of the money.

Raised a Fund for Candidates.

George W. Neville, a cotton merchant of the firms of Stephen M. Weld & Co. and of Weld & Neville, was next called. He testified that several members of the Cotton Exchange raised a fund to help three or four candidates for office pay their campaign expenses and show those candidates that the merchants were friendly to them. He could not recall how much was raised in all, but said a division was made of the collections, and $200 was put aside as the share that should be contributed to Mr. Sulzer's campaign fund.

He recalled that among the contributors to the fund were Gwathmey & Co., who gave a check for $100, Stephen M. Weld & Co., $100, and Luitpold Mandelbaum, another member of the Cotton Exchange, to give Mr. Sulzer the $200 which had been allotted as his share of the campaign fund. On the way to Mr. Sulzer's office they were overtaken by a rainstorm and delayed, and fearing that he might miss his train Mr. Neville said he gave the $200 to Mr. Mandelbaum to deliver to Mr. Sulzer, while he himself hurried to the station.

Mr. Mandelbaum was then called. He testified that he took the $200 to Mr. Sulzer's office and gave it to Mr. Sarecky who met him there and told him the Congressman was away. Mr. Mandelbaum said he merely told Mr. Sarecky that he brought $200 for Mr. Sulzer from Mr. Neville without specifying further what was the nature of the contribution.

"What did Mr. Sarecky say?" asked Mr. Kresel.

"He said he was very much obliged for the money," replied the witness with a broad grin in which the members of the court joined.

He added that he asked for and received a receipt, which was put in evidence. It read:

New York, Nov. 1.

Received from Mr. Mandelbaum, $200.

LOUIS A. SARECKY.

Presiding Judge Cullen here declared a recess till 2 o'clock.

William Travers Jerome was a spectator at to-day's session of the trial and sat with counsel for the Managers. He said he was on his way to Colebrook to get his automobile which he had left there. He will leave here to-morrow.

CROKER A STRIKING WITNESS.

Tells Story of $2,000 Check Which Colwell Deposited.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 26.—Witnesses called at the afternoon session of the court presented cumulative evidence concerning gifts to the Sulzer campaign fund of which no mention was made in the Governor-elect's sworn statement of receipts and expenditures.

Throughout the cross-examination of these witnesses the counsel for the defense disclosed the line of defense they would take, namely, that of trying to show that the contributions suppressed by Mr. Sulzer were given to him as personal gifts, for any purpose he might care to put them to, because the donors believed him to be in poor circumstances and wished to help him.

James Temple Gwathmey, who at the morning session introduced a letter he sent to Mr. Sulzer with his contribution, in which he specified that it was to be used for campaign purposes only, was cross-examined by Mr. Marshall as to his politics. He said he was a Republican in the Fall of 1912, and voted for no other candidate than Mr. Sulzer on the Democratic ticket.

Dr. John W. Cox, one of the members of the Manhattan Club, who was active in raising contributions for Sulzer, and in the testimony yesterday sought with many a volunteered statement, in spite of efforts of the examining counsel for the managers, to convey the impression that he was actuated by personal regard for Mr. Sulzer and his supposed impeccuniosity, testified that he had known Mr. Sulzer since 1896. He wouldn't say that he was active in Mr. Sulzer's behalf during the campaign but only that he was interested in his election.

Asked if he knew whether it was true that he was a member of the executive committee of an organization known as the Business and Professional Men's Sulzer League, said he could not deny that he was a member, but that he did not remember that he was a member of the executive committee.

The witness had been subpoenaed to bring a check for $300 and he produced it. He testified that he sent the check to Theodore W. Myers.

"And who is Theodore W. Myers?" was asked.

"He was treasurer," the witness replied, "for the purpose of raising some funds in the interest of the election of William Sulzer outside of the organization."

Collected Funds for Sulzer.

The witness said the $300 check he sent to Myers was one of those which went into the Boyer-Griswold account for the Big Four stock.

The witness said that he at no time mentioned his check to Mr. Sulzer.

Q.—Either by word of mouth or letter? A.—Hold a minute. I will say this: That I told him I would do what I could to raise some money to help him along as best I could.

Q.—To help him along in what? A.—To help him along to become Governor of the State of New York.

He testified that he had never received an acknowledgment of the check from Mr. Sulzer.

He did not know how much was collected by the league or from whom except that Mr. Myers said he would give $1,000.

Dr. Cox's check, which was put in evidence, was made payable to the order of Theodore W. Myers, Treasurer, signed John W. Cox, and bore the indorsement of Mr. Myers and the stamped indorsement: "Pay to the order of Manhattan Company, New York, Boyer, Griswold & Co.," and then the stamped indorsement of the Manhattan Company.

Cross-examined by D Cady Herrick for the defense, Dr. Cox proved a much more eager witness. Coming to the collections at the Manhattan Club, Judge Herrick asked:

Q.—And there was more or less conversation about Mr. Sulzer there? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—About his financial condition? A.—Yes.

Q.—That he was impecunious? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you and a number of other gentlemen there made up your minds to help him along? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—That is, you were to do something for him personally. A.—Yes, Sir.

Mr. Kresel—Wait a minute.

The Witness—I insist upon a witness.

Mr. Kresel—I object to that. Oh, Mr. Witness, you are only a witness.

The President—When an objection is made, you must not answer.

The Presiding Judge sustained Mr. Kresel's objection.

Another Ruling on Intent of Giver.

A long argument was provoked when Judge Herrick asked the witness to state whether the contribution he made was not for the personal benefit of Mr. Sulzer and not for the ticket as a whole. The counsel for the defense insisted that undisclosed intent might at this or a subsequent time be used as competent in the testimony.

After a long argument on both sides, Presiding Judge Cullen, in accordance with his earlier ruling on a similar point in the testimony of another witness, ruled the question was admissible. The vote that followed, though it sustained the ruling of the Presiding Judge by 33 ayes to 14 noes, showed a greater division than any of the earlier votes. Voting in the negative were Senator Craswell, Judge Collins, Judge Cuddenback, Senator Foley, Senator Frawley, Judge Hiscock, Senator McClelland, Senator Murtaugh, Senator Pollock, Senator Sage, Senator Simpson, Senator Stivers, Senator Wagner and Senator Walters.

The witness thereupon answered the disputed question by saying that the check was given to Mr. Sulzer for his personal benefit.

"You had heard his financial condition discussed!" asked Judge Herrick.

"Oh, yes," said the witness quickly. "I was always led to believe—" but an objection from Senator Brackett of the prosecution cut him short. The objection was sustained.

Mr. Brackett took the witness in hand rather sharply in re-direct examination.

Q.—Dr. Cox, you had heard the financial condition of Mr. Sulzer discussed prior to this time, had you not? A.—Oh, for years.

Q.—Have you ever passed around requests for him before this time? A.—No, he had a position. He was in Congress. He was making $5,000 a year.

A.—And you know that at the time these contributions were made that he was getting $7,500 a year as a Congressman? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you make the request for contributions because he was a candidate for Governor or not? A.—Yes.

Q.—Solely for that reason, was it not? A.—Yes, because—can I go on?

Mr. Brackett—Oh, no, he said solely for the reason.

The President—He has answered it.

Young Croker Makes a Stir.

Richard Croker, Jr., son of the man who for years swayed the destinies of Tammany Hall, and who befriended William Sulzer during his early years in public life, was a star witness of the session.

All through the Senate Chamber were scattered men who had been active in politics when the elder Croker was a power. When the name of Richard Croker, Jr., was called by Mr. Stanchfield a hush fell over the Senate Chamber. The members of the court sat with eyes focused on the little door leading to the Lieutenant Governor's room. The younger Croker is a middle-sized man of rather youthful appearance, with a determined mouth and somewhat of the idealized features of a college athlete, although on closer study there is a subtle resemblance to the grim visage of the father.

Mr. Croker was sworn, and sat gazing expectantly at Mr. Stanchfield, who was to conduct the direct examination.

"Do you know the respondent, Gov. Sulzer?" Mr. Stanchfield asked.

"I do. I have known him for a great many years."

"Did you see him shortly after his nomination for Governor?"

"I did. But I did not then give him the check. I gave him that on Oct. 16."

Mr. Croker put his hand into his inside pocket and produced the check.

"I notice, Mr. Croker, that this check was made out payable to Cash. Why was that done?"

"I think the reason was because Mr. Sulzer said he was about to leave that night or early the next day for a trip through the State. It was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon when I gave him the check."

The witness said that F. L. Colwell, who indorsed the check and cashed it with the Equitable Trust Company, was not present at the time of this conversation, nor did Mr. Croker know him. He had not noticed before that, although Mr. Sulzer had pleaded urgent need of cash when the check was given, it was not cashed until a fortnight later.

After the check had been introduced, Mr. Croker was turned over to D Cady Herrick for cross-examination.

"Gov. Sulzer was an acquaintance and friend of your father, I believe," said Mr. Herrick.

Mr. Croker said that was correct.

"You were conversant with his reputed financial condition?" asked the lawyer.

"I don't quite understand that question," said the witness.

"I'll put it in another form," said Mr. Herrick. "Was it your understanding from the speech of other people or from Sulzer himself that he was impecunious?"

Gave It for Personal Expenses.

There was an objection to this question, which was finally overruled. Then Mr. Croker replied:

"I felt that he depended absolutely on the salary he received as Congressman. During the conversation which I had with him, which included a number of topics, the matter of expenses came up. I made the remark that I supposed he was under very heavy personal expenses, and would be for some time to come. He said that was being printed? A.—I don't remember that I did.

Q.—What was it called? A.—I don't remember. I think it consisted of speeches by William Sulzer.

Q.—Didn't you see that at his office? A.—No. I don't think so.

Q.—And was the subject of the expense incident to the publication of that book the topic of the discussion between you at that time? A.—It might—no, that matter was not discussed.

Q.—Well, was it at any time, at either of the interviews? A.—Not that I remember.

Q.—Well, how sure do you want to be about that, now, that you didn't talk at all with him on the subject of his expense incident to the publication of that campaign book? A.—No more so than I say that I don't recall it.

Q.—You can't recall that any expenses, that is, their nature or their character, were talked about between you? A.—Not that I recall.

Q.—But you did talk about the fact that he was under heavy expense? A.—Exactly.

Q.—And that expense was as a candidate for Governor, wasn't it? A.—No.

Stanchfield's Searching Questions.

Mr. Stanchfield wanted to know what Mr. Sulzer told Mr. Croker concerning the heavy expenses he was under, with a view to drawing admissions that would show that Mr. Croker's contribution was prompted by needs growing out of the campaign.

"I took it," said Mr. Croker, "that the extra expense might have been occasioned by the fact that he was a candidate for Governor."

Q.—Very well, I will take it that way; occasioned by the fact that he was a candidate for Governor, and when you say, occasioned by the fact that he was a candidate for Governor, you had in mind, with your political experience behind you, that running for office is an expensive luxury? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew Mr. Croker, as a candidate for Governor, that he would be required to make campaign speeches all over the State during the campaign? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that he would be compelled to carry along with him stenographers and reporters, and men for any purpose and another on those expeditions? A.—I knew he would have to do that.

Q.—Now, when you went to see him, you were his friend? A.—Yes.

Q.—You had in mind that he would have to incur all these expenses? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you wanted to help relieve him of the burden incident to those expenses? A.—Not to those particular expenses.

Q.—Well, any expenses in connection with the campaign? A.—Any personal expenses in connection with the campaign or in connection with anything.

Q.—Any personal expenses in connection with the campaign or anything. What do you mean when you use the word "anything"? A.—Well, I mean anything that would occasion expense.

"In connection with the campaign or outside of it?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

Mr. Croker took his time about answering this question. As he gave his testimony, his answers strongly reminded one of his father when the latter was a witness before the Mazet committee in New York. At times his words, while few, were catapulted with great force from his lips. He had a faculty of putting stops in his voice and investing it with a sonorous strength that recalled his father. When Mr. Croker finally spoke, it was in rejoinder, not in reply:

"Do you want me to give you what I had in mind at that time?" he asked.

Eluded His Inquisitor.

"I want you to answer that question," said Mr. Stanchfield.

"I'm trying to get it so I can answer it," said the witness. "If you won't be quite so quick with me I will try to give the exact answer."

It is not customary for stern inquisitors to apologize to their witnesses. Mr. Stanchfield did. As a tactical move his urbanity was a success. For a minute Mr. Croker seemed flabbergasted. The lawyer, however, pressed his demand for an answer, but he did it softly.

"I mean to treat your answers fairly," Mr. Stanchfield almost purred. "If not you can speak for yourself."

Mr. Croker was not through thinking, however. It seemed as if he was particular about getting this particular answer framed right. At last he replied that his $2,000 check was intended to cover "whatever expenses might come up."

"You did have in mind the expenses incidental to the campaign?" asked the lawyer.

"I thought that might

NO NEW BANK FUNDS NEEDED, SAYS GLASS

Stockholders Not Required to Put Up Money for Federal Reserve, He Asserts.

PRESENT HOLDINGS COUNT

Replies to New Criticism of Bill—Illinois and Massachusetts Bankers Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The question has been raised whether under the Glass Currency bill banks entering the new Federal reserve system can make the required subscription to the stock of the Federal reserve banks out of their banking funds and count their holdings of Federal reserve stock as a banking asset, or whether stockholders of national banks must put up additional money to subscribe for Federal reserve bank stock.

Mr. Glass said to-night that there was nothing in the bill that would require the stockholders of national or State banks entering the system to put up additional money for the stock they took in the Federal reserve banks. Nor was it the purpose of the framers of the bill, Mr. Glass explained, to require stockholders to do this.

In response to the direct question, Mr. Glass said that banks subscribing for stock in the new Federal reserve banks would make such subscriptions out of the subscribing banks on deposit accounts. They would purchase this Federal reserve bank stock, said Mr. Glass, out of the same national bank funds, in the case of a national bank, that now were utilized for the purchase of bankers' bills and for other investments. He insisted that the bill would not require stockholders of national banks to put up additional money.

Working Capital of $100,000,000.

The plan of the framers of the bill is that the Federal reserve banks shall have an "active" capital equal to 10 per cent. of the capital of existing banks which may take stock in the new enterprise. It is believed by the authors of the bill that on this basis there will be a working capital of something over $100,000,000 for the Federal reserve banks taken together if practically all the existing national banks enter the system. This estimate is based on the assumption that the total capital of the national banks to-day is something more than $1,000,000,000.

Assuming further that State banks, possessing a capitalization of one-half of that amount, are admitted as members of the proposed Federal reserve banks the framers of the bill say that these Federal reserve banks would be owned by banks—national and State—with an aggregate capital of $1,500,000,000. Since the Glass bill would exact from the member banks as a capital contribution from each bank in the new system, an "active" capital equal to 10 per cent. of the present capital of the member banks, it is thought by the bill's framers that the proposed Federal reserve bank would start with a total capitalization of $150,000,000 derived from stock subscription.

The framers of the bill have pointed out that by the terms of the National Banking act, institutions becoming national banks must purchase and deposit with the Treasurer of the United States bonds as security for circulation, this requirement being nominally 25 per cent. of capitalization for banks up to $150,000 capital, and $50,000 for all above that level. In reality, Mr. Glass argues, the requirement is much stronger than this, since no notes can be taken out under the existing law without a deposit of Government bonds behind them.

Mr. Glass said that inasmuch as the supplying of notes was absolutely necessary if the banks were to meet the needs of their customers even in a moderate degree, the proper measure of the burden imposed on them by this requirement of existing law was the volume of bonds that they had purchased. This volume of bonds now is something like $750,000,000, or very nearly three-quarters of the capital stock of the national banks.

The Glass bill, he explains, arranges for releasing the banks from this required investment and substitutes in lieu of it a required investment equal to 10 per cent. of the paid-up capital, or not to exceed $105,000,000. This is one-seventh, Mr. Glass says, of the amount now invested in bonds. As the Glass bill allows the conversion of existing 2 per cent. bonds into 3s at the rate of 1 per cent. annually, while it gives the banks a year within which to enter the proposed reserve banks as stockholders, Mr. Glass insists that "it must be evident" that within one year from the latest date set for the subscriptions to the capital stock a bank owning bonds equal to its capital would have been able to obtain through conversion and sale of its securities an amount equal to the required investment in the capital of the Federal reserve banks to be made by the national banks.

Bay State Protest.

A delegation of Massachusetts bankers went before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency to-day and criticised various features of the Currency bill. Their attack was along the lines of the criticism made by the Legislative Committee of the National Bankers' Association.

The delegation, which was headed by Charles P. Blinn, Vice President of the National Union Bank of Boston, included Justin E. Varney, Vice President of the Bay State National Bank of Lawrence; President Bowman of the Springfield National Bank, and President Drury of the Merchants' National Bank of Worcester.

Mr. Blinn quoted figures to show that the inauguration of the system proposed by the bill would mean a heavy contraction of credits. The banks in reserve cities, he said, would be compelled to find $219,000,000 in cash for transfer to the regional reserve banks, and in order to raise the money their loans would have to be called in.

Mr. Drury thought the burdens of the bill would prove too heavy for the country banks. Many of the smaller national institutions, he said, would surrender their charters.

ILLINOIS BANKERS PROTEST.

Stand by Conference's Views on the Currency Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Another organized movement to impress upon the Federal Administration the necessity for making certain changes in the Glass-Owen Currency bill was launched to-day at the closing session of the Illinois Bankers' Association's Convention. After adopting a resolution commending the American Bankers' Conference of Aug. 22 and 23 for its stand on the Currency bill, and indorsing the changes recommended at that conference, the convention directed the President to appoint a committee to wait upon the Washington authorities and make one more attempt to have the measure amended along the lines suggested by the Chicago conference.

This action followed a series of addresses by prominent bankers and others decrying certain provisions of the bill. Chief among the speakers were George M. Reynolds, President of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago, and Attorney General P. J. Lucey of Illinois.

Mr. Reynolds appealed to the bankers to maintain a conservative attitude toward the bill, but he said:

"The administration insists on having the Federal Board of Control free from representation by the national banks, as that stands it will put the whole fabric of credits into politics. With the President of the United States controlling five of the seven members of this board, the board will be not only a government board, but an Administration board.

"Granting this principle to the present Administration, I offer as a compromise the following point:

"That the consent of a minority of the advisory committee of the Federal reserve banks be required for the taking of certain steps by the board of council."

The report of the Executive Council indorsing the action of the Bankers' Conference last August was read by Col. J. S. Alsthorpe of Cairo, who added:

"The recommendations of the bankers in August have been absolutely ignored by Congress so far, and we are backing up that conference of bankers."

$25,000,000 OUT FOR CROPS.

Government Already Has Deposited About Half the Money.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The Treasury Department announced to-day that up to yesterday $24,159,000 had been deposited in national banks in the South and West for crop-moving purposes. This is about one-half of the total amount that will be put out by the Treasury to meet the crop situation.

Additional deposits were made to-day, bringing the total up to more than $25,000,000. By States the amounts deposited up to yesterday were as follows:

Alabama, $1,170,000; Arkansas, $800,000; District of Columbia, $407,000; Florida, $405,000; Georgia, $1,622,000; Illinois, $3,500,000; Indiana, $275,000; Kentucky, $1,020,000; Louisiana, $3,075,000; Maryland, $2,700,000; Minnesota, $400,000; Mississippi, $150,000; Missouri, $1,750,000; New Mexico, $50,000; North Carolina, $1,250,000; Oregon, $600,000; Pennsylvania, $75,000; South Carolina, $1,400,000; Tennessee, $2,045,000; Texas, $800,000; Utah, $125,000, and Virginia, $850,000.

The daily Treasury statement, required by law, does not contain a specific item showing the amounts deposited for moving crops. These sums are included in the statement under a caption showing deposits in national bank depositories to the credit of the Treasurer.

At the close of business yesterday the amount of Treasury funds in national bank depositories, including the $24,150,000 for crop moving uses, was $73,873,224.

REVIVE IMMIGRATION BILL.

Democrats Dig Up Literacy Test Vetoed by Mr. Taft.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Before Congress adjourns an effort will be made to pass an Immigration bill with a literacy test as its leading feature. Such a measure was vetoed by Mr. Taft.

At a meeting of the House Committee on Immigration to-day the old Burnett-Dillingham bill, which Mr. Taft vetoed, was ordered reported to the House. Democrats will get to work immediately to have it indorsed by the caucus. The bill came within seven votes of passing over Mr. Taft's veto.

COLONEL OFF TO ROCHESTER

He Will Make Keynote Speech at State Committee Meeting.

Col. Roosevelt went to Rochester yesterday where he will be the chief figure at the meeting of the Progressive State Committee which will elect candidates for Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals and an Associate Judge. The Colonel is to make the keynote speech of the meeting. Three Progressive Congressmen came to New York from Washington yesterday to attend a conference of the Progressives at the national headquarters of the party in the Forty-second Street building, Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue. It was decided at the conference to have a Progressive candidate next year in every Congressional district in the United States. William Hinebaugh, Congressman from Illinois, was Chairman. He said:

"The action of the Progressives is at present centred on Massachusetts, where a Bull Moose candidate is running for Governor. There can be no so-called 'Progressive-Republicans' in the Progressive Party. A man is a Republican or a Progressive one or the other and people will respect him more if he says he is one or the other. To be a Progressive a man must be a straight Progressive."

A joint campaign committee representing the Progressive National Committee and the Progressive Congressional Committee was organized. Among those present were Representative Hinebaugh, George W. Perkins, Representative Murdock, floor leader of the Progressives in the House; Representatives Kelley of Pennsylvania and Woodruff of Michigan; ex-Senator Beveridge of Indiana; George C. Priestly of Oklahoma, Miss Frances Kellor and Medill McCormick, Vice-President of the Progressive National Committee.

The new campaign committee consists of Col. Roosevelt, ex-Senator Beveridge, Walter P. Brown, George W. Perkins, Medill McCormick, Representative Hinebaugh and Miss Kellor. It will meet at an early date to discuss plans to nominate straightout Progressive candidates for Congress next year.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 26.—Theodore Roosevelt arrived in this city at 6:20 o'clock to-night. The Rochester Progressive leaders did not know until after two o'clock that he would get here before to-morrow morning, and when he stepped from the train only three or four members of the reception committee of fifty were on the platform to greet him. He went to the Hotel Seneca for the night.

Col. Roosevelt went to the hotel with a detective, whom he dismissed with the word that he would not leave his room until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. He entered the building by a private door and was not seen by persons in the lobby.

Visiting Progressives were entertained at dinner in the Rochester Country Club by Frank T. Ellison. Mr. Roosevelt did not attend the feast. He will go to a luncheon given for him by the Chamber of Commerce at noon to-morrow and will address the Progressive State Committee immediately afterward. He will return to New York to-morrow night.

That United States District Court Judge Learned Hand and Supreme Court Justice Samuel Seabury, both of New York, would be nominated for Chief Judge and Associate Judge respectively, was the opinion of a party leader to-night after the meeting of the Executive Committee.

TO DRAW PRIMARY BILL.

Direct Nominations League Calls Albany Conference.

Amasa J. Parker, who is at the head of the Direct Nominations League of the State, yesterday called a conference of all bodies interested in direct nominations to be held in Albany on Monday next. The Direct Primaries Nominations Alliance, which intend to nominate by petition a municipal ticket this Fall, will be represented by W. B. Selden, the President, and several other members.

All the members of the Legislature who voted for the Sulzer Direct Primary bill have been invited to attend the conference, and they will be asked to fight for a Direct Primary bill in each of their Assembly districts. The legislators who did not vote for the bill and have been renominated will be opposed for re-election in their districts by the members of the State League. It is proposed to draw up a new Primary bill as well as a new Ballot bill to be patterned after the Massachusetts law, and have the bills introduced in the early part of the next legislative session.

Eppig Takes Metz's Place.

The Tammany City Committee met last night at the Murray Hill Lyceum and organized for the coming year. Theodore C. Eppig of Brooklyn was elected Treasurer in place of Herman A. Metz, Myron Sulzberger was elected Vice President from Manhattan in place of Bartow S. Weeks. Louis Schantze was elected Vice President of Richmond in place of M. W. Murphy, and Anthony J. Griffin took the place of Richard H. Mitchell as Vice President from the Bronx. Tom Smith was re-elected Secretary.

LURID $10,000 SHELL FIRED AT CONGRESS

Bursting, It Drops a De Luxe Copy of Lawson's Book in Every Member's Lap.

BONBON BOX OF ADJECTIVES

"High Cost Living," Dressed in Dazzling Crimson, Demands a Money Trust Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—A big express wagon backed up in front of the main entrance to the white marble office building of the House of Representatives to-day, and four expressmen unloaded 435 large packages of uniform size. Then they piled the parcels into alphabetical columns on the sidewalk, and checked them off carefully. There was a package addressed to each member of the House of Representatives. On the labels containing the Congressman's name was the printed inscription: "From Thomas W. Lawson, Dreamwold, Massachusetts."

The expressmen spent several hours trotting around the corridors delivering the mysterious packages. At the same time a similar parcel went to every Senator and to many other Federal officers. One went to President Wilson, another to Vice President Marshall, and still others to members of the Cabinet.

Those receiving the queer packages opened them with considerable curiosity. Tearing off the heavy outside cover each man found his package contained a box-like cover done up in crimson silk. Inside this, wrapped in fine tissue paper, was something heavy. It proved to be an expensively prepared de luxe edition of "High Cost of Living," by Thomas W. Lawson. The foreword in the book showed that Mr. Lawson had prepared a special edition of 1,000 copies of the book, and, estimating their cost at $10 a volume, it probably involved an expenditure somewhere around $10,000.

Wants Money Trust Inquiry.

Most of its contents deal with the New York Stock Exchange and the political situation in general as related to money, the tariff, and the income tax.

In this new volume Mr. Lawson, evidently intending to drive home a special appeal to what he describes as "The Law Makers and the Law Breakers," calls for an investigation of the "Stock Exchange Money Trust" by a "court" composed jointly of Senators and Representatives. He promises that if such an investigation is pursued with horse sense and determination, the revelations will startle the country.

The book contains five elaborate illustrations picturing the contest between the people and the "money devil." Scattered through the volume, at the ends of chapters are "Fables" and paragraphs which Mr. Lawson calls "Muck-rakings." These are printed in crimson in striking contrast to the fancy black type in which the rest of the volume is printed on water-color paper of expensive grade. There are five principal sub-divisions to the subject matter. One chapter is headed "The Hell of It All"; another, "If Cents Reigned Where Dollars Rule"; another, "Reformation or Revolution."

After advocating a joint Congressional Court to make a sweeping investigation, Mr. Lawson gives "At random and briefly a few samples of exposures which should be made by such a tribunal."

Here are some of the samples:

A Director of a great insurance company, without even consulting any of its officials, binding it to buy $4,000,000 worth of a worthless bond flotation which would return to him personally over 50 per cent.

The collection, inside of forty-eight hours, or a corruption fund of $5,000,000 from banks, trust and insurance companies, and corporations for the purpose of purchasing the electoral vote of a number of States.

The President of a great national bank honoring a check drawn by its controlling Director for many millions of dollars more than the Director had to his credit.

A great national bank lending itself to the creation, operation, and consummation of a criminal act whereby its controllers secured more than $30,000,000 worth of plunder.

A group, during the last Administration, cleaning up scores of millions of personal profit by trading on Government and court decisions in advance of their becoming public.

A wholesale looting, right now, of American and European investors of hundreds of millions of dollars through the instrumentality of one trust stock and the trick machinery of the Stock Exchange—Money Trust.

Hits at Steel Trust.

On the flyleaf of his de luxe appeal to Congress, Mr. Lawson explains:

"This book has been hurriedly prepared because of the author's knowledge that the 'System' and its hirelings are making a raking-hell-defying-heaven effort to discredit and nullify the 'Here-you-dogs-there-you-slaves' people's new Administration."

Then there is a supplementary preface which says:

"As I wrote 'The hell of it all' only a few days ago Steel common was selling at 60, having dropped like a plummet, as I have shown, from 85. This meant a loss of $225,000,000 to the investors upon whom it had been unloaded—and this because President Wilson and the new Congress were to give the people relief through honest laws. Now at a whisper the System are again in the saddle, the reverse lever on the Stock Exchange trick machinery is thrown into gear and instantly come into existence on Steel common alone $80,000,000."

Here are some of Mr. Lawson's "muckrakings":

If Abraham Lincoln were alive today, what chance would he have of being sent to the White House? About as much as Christ would of being made a Steel Trust Director.

The Wall Street map of America is divided into three sections: Wall Street, Suckersville, and the Territory embraced by Bloomingdale, Matteawan, and Washington.

All business in Wall Street is done with cash or margin. Cash is only taken at 60 per cent. discount. Wall Streeters are haunted by the fear of marked bills. Formerly the best margin was a White House tip, or a Department of Justice leak. Since Wilson moved to Washington both have become obsolete.

MEN OPPOSE SUFFRAGE.

New Organization's Speakers Address Women in Brooklyn.

The Men's New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage held its opening public meeting at Acme Hall, Seventh Avenue and Ninth Street, Brooklyn, last evening. Women filled most of the room, and some of the men present, it appeared, were suffragists. They answered back at the anti-suffrage arguments.

Everett P. Wheeler, who was the first speaker, paid his respects to Mrs. Pankhurst, an "evil tree to bear such evil fruit," he said. "Let us try with all our might," he said, "to overthrow their plans and confound their knavish tricks. That's what we are here for."

Miss Charlotte Rowe told the audience that she believed that all American suffragists were militants at heart, and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden spoke.

John C. Ten Eyck told the audience at the close of a long address, in which he combated woman suffrage, that he knew a clever woman in Yonkers who would make a fine Mayor, and he believed if the suffragists went through all they would have to get the vote they should be allowed to have the offices, too, but he didn't believe they would want them.

"Suffrage doesn't make so much difference," he said. "I've been in Denver. The relations of the men and women are the same. Men take things on trust in politics. The women will. Do you think they would leave their helpless children—or even the dressmaker. I tell you that, strange as it may seem, the same old machine sets up the ticket in Denver that always did."

he was carrying on the work begun by Mayor Gaynor. The place was offered to him, he said, two days ago, and he had been thinking it over ever since.

He will be working for two of the men, he said yesterday, for whom he would have worked if Mayor Gaynor had lived—Mr. McAneny and Mr. Prendergast—for they would have been on the Mayor's city ticket. As for Mr. Mitchel he knew that Mayor Gaynor had no doubt of Mr. Mitchel's ability and honesty, however much they differed at times.

"As you know," said Mr. Adamson yesterday, "Mayor Gaynor said before he went away that he would not say a word against Mr. Mitchel in his campaign. He never would have gone into personalities, but would have confined his attention to the common enemy, Tammany Hall."

It is because Tammany is to be the issue in the campaign that the selection of Mr. Adamson is believed by the Fusionists to be particularly happy. He knew as much as any man what was in the mind of Mayor Gaynor and he was acquainted to some extent with the arguments Mayor Gaynor would have used against Tammany. This information now will be at the disposal of the Fusion forces. Mr. Adamson will take up his work to-day at Fusion headquarters at the Fifth Avenue Building, although he will be compelled to devote some time for the next few days in cleaning up the arrears of his work at the City Hall.

Progressives Are Discontented.

In the Progressive camp there was some discontent last night over the selection of Mr. Adamson. It did not go so far as to make any of the party say that they would refuse to vote for Mr. Mitchel, but it did make them say that it would take all enthusiasm from their support of the Fusion candidate.

H. M. Tod, Chairman of the Bull Moose Party in the Twelfth Assembly District, said he knew that men of his own district would not relish having such an important appointment made when all the prominent Progressives were in Rochester.

"We have no personal objection to Mr. Adamson," he said, "but we feel that he represents the very antithesis of many of the principles for which we have stood. We would have welcomed the choice of William Loeb, Jr., Darwin R. James, or Job E. Hedges, but Mr. Mitchel, Mr. Hapgood, and Mr. Adamson are all Woodrow Wilson men, and we feel that we are important enough in Fusion to have some representation in its counsels."

PUT MITCHEL ON TICKET.

Hearst Men Take Formal Action—Metz Is Receptive.

The City Committee of the Independence League met at Arlington Hall in St. Mark's Place, last night and for the second time in the present municipal campaign nominated John Purroy Mitchel as its candidate for Mayor. James A. Allen, having received the letter in which Mr. Mitchel said he would accept the nomination, formally withdrew as the League's condidate, and placed Mr. Mitchel in nomination. The Fusion candidate's name was applauded liberally, and he was made the choice of the party.

The committee adjourned without taking any action on the candidates for Controller and President of the Board of Aldermen. Joseph J. Hoiweil has been nominated for Controller and Dennis McEvoy for President of the Board of Aldermen, but it was said last night that they would withdraw. Some of the committee are in favor of indorsing Herman A. Metz for Controller. Mr. Metz said yesterday that he would willingly take the nomination, but that it had not been offered to him officially as yet.

William J. Taylor, Chairman of the League's City Committee, called the meeting to order last night and then Mr. Allen made a speech telling why he had witndrawn in favor of Mr. Mitchel.

"I decline the nomination from what I considered to be my duty to the members of the league, as well as from what I considered to be my duty to the public," he said. "I didn't reject it because I considered that I had small chance of success at the polls. My candidacy would have broken the ranks of those who are opposed to Tammany Hall and the big question this year is whether we are going to return Tammany Hall to power with all its shame and corruption."

After the nomination was made, Chairman Taylor was re-elected. Charles I. Fleck of the Bronx was elected Secretary and P. D. Riordan of Manhattan, Treasurer. The committee will hold another meeting next Tuesday.

DEFINES MITCHEL'S VIEWS.

His Opposition to Tammany the Main Thing, Says Price.

In reply to several inquiries made by Henry Wynans Jessup as to the position of John Purroy Mitchel on public questions, Joseph M. Price, Chairman of the Fusion Executive Committee, has written a letter, which was made public last night. In answer to the suggestion that Mr. Mitchel is a Hearst Democrat, Mr. Price says that he does not suppose Mr. Mitchel carries any label to indicate what sort of a Democrat he is. That he is opposed to the Tammany sort of Municipal Government, Mr. Price considers the important thing. In his letter Mr. Jessup said that he believed that Mr. Mitchel was in favor of municipal ownership, which he considered would be a colossal blunder. Mr. Price has this to say in reply:

You are evidently confusing municipal ownership with municipal operation. We have municipal ownership in New York City now, as exemplified in our present Subway. This is a typical case of municipal ownership, as the City of New York owns the Subway absolutely, and will also own the subways now building under the new contracts. Very few people disagree in the principal of municipal ownership; many of us disagree in the principle of municipal operation. I do not know that Mr. Mitchel is in favor of municipal operation of public utilities, excepting in such cases where the terms of the operating companies are too onerous for the city to accept. Such cases have not arisen.

Mr. Price also points out that Mr. Mitchel has undertaken, if elected, to serve his full term, and he asks Mr. Jessup if he believes for a moment that Tammany would have nominated Chairman McCall if it had believed that he would have been as independent as was Mayor Gaynor. He was nominated, says Mr. Price, in the belief that by his election Tammany would have control of the vast patronage and expenditures of the city.

KLINE PICKS J. B. BEATTY.

Mayor Names Him as Secretary to Succeed Adamson.

Mayor Kline appointed yesterday Julian B. Beatty as his Secretary to succeed Robert Adamson, who resigned to manage the Fusion campaign. Mr. Beatty was formerly Secretary to Borough President McAneny, and was appointed by Mr. McAneny last year as Superintendent of Public Buildings and Offices in the office of the Borough President.

Mr. Adamson, it was said, will return to the Mayor's office after election, Mayor Kline having accepted his resignation for the period of the campaign only.

"I am sorry beyond expression to lose Mr. Adamson," said the Mayor. "I cannot express too highly my appreciation of the services that he has rendered me since I have been in this office. I will certainly feel his absence, but I am thinking of the cause and what I owe it rather than of my own personal convenience."

TARIFF BILL BACK TO HOUSE MONDAY

Conferees Adjust All Disputed Points Except Tax on Cotton Futures.

TO WILSON BY WEEK'S END

Free Wool Operative Dec. 1 Next, Rates on Manufactured Wool Jan. 1, 1914.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The Democratic members of the Tariff Conference Committee to-day reached a final agreement on the entire bill. The decision to report a disagreement on the tax on cotton futures will remain in the agreement, but all other items were definitely adjusted. Owing to the absence of Republican members, under a misapprehension, the report will not be signed until Monday morning, and at noon of that day it will presented to the House.

Under this plan, which now seems to offer no likelihood of modification, President Wilson will not be able to sign the Tariff bill until the close of next week. The Democratic conferees will meet to-morrow morning to check up clerical mistakes, and the Republican conferees will not see the report until Monday. Their protests against their exclusion from the real work of the conference are not expected to cause further delay than a few speeches in both houses.

Under the rules of the House the conference report will have to lie over one day. That makes it certain that it cannot be adopted until Tuesday afternoon. Late that day the Senate hopes to receive it, and serious discussion will be taken up in that body on Wednesday.

Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, the one Republican member of the Conference Committee who voted for the bill, would ordinarily be expected to sign the report, and he may do so yet. But he is understood to be very angry at the refusal of the Democrats to admit him to the working sessions of the committee.

Debate in the Senate may last two or three days. Senator Pomerene, a Democrat from Ohio, has announced his intention to move to instruct the Senate managers to insist upon the Senate amendment restoring the internal tax of $1.10 a gallon on wine spirits and 25 cents a gallon on spurious wines. But Mr. Pomerene is not a loquacious orator and his speech and motion are not expected to cause serious delay. He will vote for the report.

Another promise of delay in the Senate came to-day when Senator Reed of Missouri, a Democrat, appeared before the Conference Committee and opposed the O'Gorman amendment to the income tax section whereby a municipality's share in the profit of public utilities would be exempt from levy. He insisted that the private income of corporations would escape and threatened to vote against the report unless the language were modified.

On the exemption put into the income tax section to protect the City of New York in collecting its share of the earnings of the new subway, Senator Reed protested that the provision would work to the detriment of the people of Kansas City, who were about to undertake public utility improvements. The conferees may make a verbal change to satisfy Mr. Reed.

The five points of difference still pending this morning were settled, it is understood, mostly in accordance with the Senate amendments. This means that the Senate rate of three-fourths of a cent a pound on lead ores prevailed, as against the House rate of one-half cent a pound. The House rate of ten per cent. ad valorem was said to have been retained on zinc ores, while the Senate rate of 15 per cent. on zinc in blocks and pigs was accepted.

The important amendment fixing Dec. 1, 1913, as the date on which free raw wool should become effective was accepted, and Jan. 1, 1914, was agreed to as the date on which the new rates on manufactured wool would go into effect.

Some days ago an agreement was reached whereby in the sugar schedule the 20 per cent. differential accorded to Cuba was continued until sugar reaches the free list three years hence.

The Senate amendments as to cotton thread and cotton cloth, it was learned, have been retained. As to plain cotton thread and carded yarns, warps or warp yarn, the Senate amendment imposes on the classification between numbers 79 and 90 a rate of 22½ per cent., instead of the House rate of 20 per cent. If the yarns or threads are combed, bleached, dyed, mercerized or the like, the Senate imposes an extra 2½ per cent. levy on all numbers until the House maximum rate of 25 per cent. is reached. That is retained as the maximum.

Following the same reclassification as to cloths, the Senate amendment on plain fabrics imposes rates which raise the duty on some of the higher grades. The same principle is followed in the Senate amendments as to bleached and otherwise finished cloths.

The silk schedule was reopened. To prevent frauds through undervaluations, the ad valorem system of duty was abandoned on carded silks and silk noils, and a specific rate fixed of 20 cents per pound.

The duty on hats was also fixed at the Senate rate, 45 per cent.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 26.—Canadian butter and farm produce are being shipped to commission men here and held in bonded warehouses until the passage of the Tariff bill, which is expected to lower the duty approximately $1,000 a carload. Several large shipments of produce also are being held on the Canadian side of the border.

FREE ART UNRESTRICTED.

House Provisions Stand, Senate Withdrawing Age Limit of 50 Years

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The House Tariff bill conferees won a complete victory in the tariff conference over their colleagues of the Senate with respect to the provisions relating to works of art. In addition to receding from their position, the Senate conferees agreed that the House conferees should rewrite the House provisions concerning art importations, if they cared to do so, provided they did not bring any new features into the sections.

Under the House provisions works of art will be admitted free of duty. The Senate amendment, now withdrawn, sought to admit free only those works of art that had been in existence fifty years. The House provisions were also narrowed by the Senate so as to provide for the free admission of sculpture that had actually been executed by the designer. As few, if any, creative sculptors actually execute the completed work, the Senate provision would be abortive, as the Senate conferees ultimately acknowledged.

If the free art provisions of the House bill are rewritten they will be changed only in phraseology and not in effect or meaning.

These are the House provisions sanctioned by the conference agreement:

"Works of art, including paintings in oil, mineral, water, or other colors, pastels, original drawings and sketches in pen and ink or pencil and water colors, etchings, not to exceed twenty numbered impressions, and engravings not to exceed twenty numbered impressions, and lithographs not to exceed twenty numbered impressions, and original sculptures, including not more than two replicas or reproductions of the same; but the term "sculpture" as used in this section shall be understood to include professional productions of sculptors only, whether in round or in relief, in bronze, marble, stone, terra cotta, ivory, wood, or metal, or whether cut, carved, or otherwise wrought by hand from the solid block or mass of marble, stone, or alabaster, or from metal, or cast in bronze or other metal or substance, or from wax or plaster, made as the professional productions of sculptors only; and the word "painting" as used in this section shall not be understood to include any articles of utility, nor such as are made wholly or in part by stenciling or any other mechanical process; and the words "etching" and "engraving" as used in this section shall be understood to include only such as are printed by hand from plates or blocks etched or engraved with hand tools, and not such as are printed from plates or blocks etched or engraved by photochemical or other mechanical processes.

"Works of art, drawings, engravings, photographic pictures, and philosophical and scientific apparatus brought by professional artists, lecturers, or scientists arriving from abroad for use by them, temporarily for exhibition and in illustration, promotion, and encouragement of art, science or industry in the United States and not for sale, shall be admitted free of duty, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe; but bonds shall be given for the payment to the United States of such duties as may be imposed by law upon any and all such articles as shall not be exported within six months after such importation:

"Provided that the Secretary of the Treasury may, in his discretion, extend such period for a further term of six months in cases where application therefor shall be made.

"Works of art, collections in illustration of the progress of the arts, sciences, agriculture, or manufactures, photographs, works in terra cotta, parian, pottery, or porcelain, antiquities and artistic copies thereof in metal or other material, imported in good faith for exhibition at a fixed place by any State or by any society or institution established for the encouragement of the arts, science, agriculture, or education, or for a municipal corporation, and all like articles imported in good faith by any society or association, or for a municipal corporation for the purpose of erecting a public monument and not intended for sale, nor for any other purpose than herein expressed; but bond shall be given under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe for the payment of lawful duties which may accrue should any of the aforesaid articles be sold, transferred, or used contrary to this provision, and such articles shall be subject at any time to examination and inspection by the proper officers of the customs;

"Provided, that the privileges of this and the preceding section shall not be allowed to associations or corporations engaged in or connected with business of a private or commercial character.

"Works of art, productions of American artists residing temporarily abroad, or other works of art, including pictorial painting on glass, imported expressly for presentation to a national institution or to any State or municipal corporation or incorporated religious society, college, or other public institution, including stained or painted window glass or stained or painted glass windows and except any article, in whole or in part, molded, cast, or mechanically wrought from metal within twenty years prior to importation, but such exemption shall be subject to such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

"Works of art, (except rugs and carpets,) collections in illustration of the progress of the arts, works in bronze, marble, terra cotta, parian, pottery, or porcelain, artistic antiquities, and objects of art of ornamental character or educational value which shall have been produced more than 100 years prior to the date of importation, but the free importation of such objects shall be subject to such regulations as to proof of antiquity as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe."

CONDEMNS BOOK TARIFF.

English Publisher Says It Is One of Many Great Obstacles.

Frederick J. Crowest, manager of the Walter Scott Publishing Company, Limited, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, or rather of Felling, which is a suburb of Newcastle, was full of the iniquity of the idea of the United States having a tariff on books imported from Europe, and especially from England, when he arrived at the Imperial from the Mauretania yesterday. Mr. Crowest thinks there are a lot of Scotchmen here and in Canada, particularly the latter, who are prohibited from getting tales published by his company because they have to pay a tax to get into this country.

"The printing in this country," said Mr. Crowest, "is undoubtedly better than in England, but bookbinding and the get-up of books generally is about seventy-five per cent. inferior over here. This is due to the want of taste, I should say.

"Mind you, I am not the mouth of truth, but it is a pity to see the book trade of the future fall away on account of the cost of production, to deal with, which is bad enough, and added to that is the difficulty of getting into the greatest reading public in the world. The English publisher, as I take it, should have the benefit of the much greater market here, and not be restricted to little England.

"It costs as much to produce a book here, I take it, as at Felling-on-Tyne," went on Mr. Crowest, taking up a volume. "This book would sell for the same price here as there. But if you compare the product here with this product of ours, there is as much difference as between heaven and earth. There is not enough color and art in the general ensemble of your books here. Now see. This book is about an aerial war between Germany and France. You see, here are the coats of arms of the two countries. Then as to color. Did we make it a sombre black? Not at all. We thought of the color of breadnoughts of the air. And as a result, you see a beautiful light gray. Then look at those boards. Here you would have boards so heavy that a 100-ton gun could hardly pierce them."

Mr. Crowest laid down the book with a sigh.

GOODS PILE UP IN BOND.

$67,000,000 in New York Alone Held Awaiting New Tariff.

The vaule of goods in bond at New York at the end of August, with prospects that the Underwood tariff will soon be a law, was $67,301,565, as against $50,147,953 on July 31, 1909, five days before the Payne-Aldrich tariff went into effect.

While there is a tendency for importers to keep large stocks on hand in bond, in order that they may withdraw them at the lowered rates of the Underwood bill, there has also been a steady increase in the value of goods in bond in the last four years, and it reached $60,000,000 some time ago.

On July 31 of this year it was even higher than a month later, amounting to $67,895,007, but at that time also importers were shaping their plans with the enactment of the Democratic tariff in mind.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The latest available figures in the possession of the Government show that on July 31 there were dutiable goods amounting to $105,021,844 in the bonded warehouses of the United States. Reports of a later date have not yet been compiled for the entire country.

The figures show that a large proportion of these goods was being held until the new tariff bill became effective in order that the importers might get the benefit of the lower rates. On July 31, 1912, there were $71,460,461 in bonded warehouses in the United States.

An official of the Trade Statistical Bureau of the Department of Commerce said to-night that the figures for the end of August would not greatly augment those of July, 1913.

Bushwick Hospital Out of Funds.

A lien for $88,000 yesterday was placed on the new uncompleted building of the Bushwick Hospital in Brooklyn by the builder, John W. Parker. The trustees of the institution had expected to have the new building completed by Winter so that the old wooden structure could be abandoned, but work on the new building was halted because of lack of funds. Congressman Frank E. Wilson, Chairman of the committee in charge of the building, called an informal meeting of trustees last night to discuss ways of raising $50,000 by popular subscription.

COURT SHUTS BAUDER OUT.

Can't Enter the Country Because Old Record Stands.

Judge Lacombe refused yesterday in the United States District Court to sustain a writ of habeas corpus sued out on behalf of Hans Bauder, who is held at Ellis Island awaiting deportation. Bauder is a man of considerable means, but he now has failed in a second attempt to enter the country.

Bauder arrived here on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria in June 1910, accompanied by a woman, who was not his wife. His deportation was ordered on the ground that he was bringing a woman into the country for immoral purposes. Bauder came back here alone some time ago. Complaint, however, was made to the immigration authorities that he had been guilty of frauds in Switzerland and that in consequence he should not be allowed to land. The Ellis Island authorities found that the fraud charge could not be sustained, and so Acting Immigration Commissioner Uhl fell back on the old case, and ruled that as Bauder had been deported once, he could not be permitted to enter the country.

Bauder sued out a writ of habeas corpus, which Judge Lacombe dismissed yesterday. In his opinion he held that the fact that Bauder was unaccompanied on this trip by anyone could not eliminate the record of his attempt to enter the country illegally in 1910.

BRINGS RARE PAINTINGS.

Ralston Values Collection of Old Masters at $1,000,000.

Louis Ralston, who arrived yesterday from Europe on the Mauretania, said that he had brought with him more than $1,000,000 worth of paintings which he had purchased abroad. Of this collection, which consisted for the most part of masterpieces of the eighteenth century from the French and English schools, two painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds, were left in England at the request of the British Government, which is considering their purchase. One of these, he said, was the life size portrait of George III. and the other a portrait of Queen Charlotte.

Mr. Ralston said yesterday that this was the most valuable collection of paintings of their kind ever brought to this country. They include: Two Raeburns, one a portrait of Mrs. Graham, the other a portrait of a mother and child; a life-size portrait of Mrs. Mordaunt, by Romney, and "Inspiration," by El Grecco, purchased from the Budapesth galleries of Marczell de Memes. Several of the best works were from the Steengracht Gallery, notably one by Lawrence entitled "Mother and Three Children." A Romney that he had with him was valued at $100,000.

The pictures will be put on exhibition in this city.

MILLION TO BRITAIN FROM BRADY ESTATE

Death Duties Levied on New Yorker's Property in England, Worth $6,577,640.

LARGELY TOBACCO SHARES

Mr. Brady Also Had Extensive Interests in British Rubber and Oil Companies.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—An unexpected windfall for the British exchequer is provided by the estate of the late Anthony Nicholas Brady, who died suddenly at the Carlton Hotel here on July 2. Apart from his large property in America, Mr. Brady left an estate in the United Kingdom valued at $6,577,640 net, the duties on which amount to over $1,050,000, which will be duly paid to Lloyd George as Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The death duties, otherwise inheritance taxes, are levied on property in the British Isles whether belonging to natives or foreigners, and range upward, from 1 per cent. on estates valued between $500 and $2,500, 2 per cent. between $2,500 and $5,000, 3 per cent. between $5,000 and $25,000, and up to 15 per cent. on estates of $5,000,000 and over. There are also legacy and succession duties, varying in percentage.

Mr. Brady, whose entire fortune was estimated by his intimate business associates at fully $100,000,000, was known to have extensive holdings in certain British corporations.

Among these was the British-American Tobacco Company. These shares came to him in the dissolution of the old tobacco trust, in which he was one of the principal stockholders. His interest in the tobacco combination, represented at the time of his death by stock of the American Tobacco Company and the thirteen other companies into which the trust was split, amounted in value to about $31,000,000.

The British-American Tobacco Company was formed when the American Tobacco Company and the Imperial Tobacco Company came to terms and divided the world between them. They agreed to keep out of each other's territory and organized the British-American Company, which was to keep out of both the United States and the United Kingdom, but to operate in every other country where there was not a Government tobacco monopoly.

The American Tobacco Company owned two-thirds of the stock, and upon disintegration this was distributed among the stockholders, Mr. Brady receiving a large interest in proportion to his holdings of American Tobacco stock. The British-American concern has since increased its capital stock and, under the aggressive management of James B. Duke, who had been the head of the trust, and chose this field for his future activities, it has branched out in many directions. So vigorous has been its extension in Germany that the Government is being appealed to to clip its wings. Naturally, Mr. Brady's interest grew with its development.

Mr. Brady also had extensive investments in British rubber companies, as he had in the United States Rubber Company and the General Rubber Company in this country. He was also understood to be interested in the oil enterprises of the Pearson or Cowdray group, including the Mexican Eagle Oil Company. At the time of his death in London he was in negotiation with these interests with a view to financing a line of tank steamers to convey crude oil from Mexico direct to England for refining, especially for the oil-burning ships of the British Navy.

It was also reported that he had a hand in financing the purchase of the Standard Oil party's interest in the Waters-Pierce Oil Company by Col. Henry C. Pierce, although this has never been officially confirmed. If true, it was simply another phase of his activities in respect to Mexican oil production, which is largely in the hands of the Mexican Eagle and the Waters-Pierce Company, or its successor, the Pierce Oil Corporation.

UPHOLDS OLYMPIC'S ACTION

Weather Too Bad to Stop at Queenstown, Says White Star Head.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Harold Sanderson, President of the White Star Company, made a statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day concerning the refusal of the Olympic's Captain to take on passengers and mails at Queenstown yesterday.

"It is not the desire or the purpose of the White Star Company to discommode passengers or break mail contracts," he said, "but in this case we have ample cause. It is conceded that smaller vessels than the Olympic, namely, the Mauretania and the Lusitania, are unsafe in Queenstown Harbor in bad weather. Therefore we do not intend to take any chance of endangering the ship, no matter how many passengers are waiting.

"Capt. Haddock received no instructions except to clear that dangerous coast before dark and to use his own discretion about embarking passengers. He acted entirely in accord with our wishes, as every sensible person should understand."

The White Star officials replied to the protests of the Olympic's abandoned passengers before they embarked on the Adriatic to-day. Their explanation brought a better feeling, inasmuch as the company clearly showed its position. The passengers all received excellent accommodation on the Adriatic, they said, and had been well treated during their wait. Many were inconvenienced through want of clothing in trunks put aboard the Olympic at Southampton. Ex-Senator Clark and Judge Cohalan expressed their satisfaction with the altered arrangements. The former said he felt in perfect health and well able to live the simple life with a scanty wardrobe until his arrival at New York.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 26.—The Urban Council at a meeting to-day severely criticised the White Star Line for the hardships which the 231 passengers, who intended to sail from here on the Olympic yesterday, were subjected to by being kept for five hours on board tenders in bad weather, when the Olympic failed to come into Queenstown Harbor. It was stated that the Olympic arrived off Queenstown five hours before high water, and that in this time the passengers and mails could have been put on board had Capt. H. J. Haddock brought his vessel into port.

The Council expressed the hope that when the question was discussed in Parliament the members of the Irish Party would demand action from the Postmaster General. One councillor said that the Irish people and their American friends would not witness the breaking of mail contracts with such alleged impunity.

It appears that several passengers who had embarked on the Olympic at Cherbourg and Southampton bound for Ireland were not landed, and are now making an involuntary voyage on board the steamer to New York.

RICH MOURN DEAD DANCER.

Wealthy Men Follow Cortege of Mlle. Fleury—Drug Dens Raided.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Amid impressive scenes such as usually characterize obsequies of a public man the funeral took place to-day of Pierrette Fleury, the young dancer who committed suicide by inhaling ether.

Prominent men walked at the head of the cortège, which was of great length. The hearse was invisible beneath a mass of costly flowers.

The procession was due to start from the suburban villa where the girl died at 9 in the morning, but an hour previously automobiles began to arrive with mourners. Altogether, the collective wealth of the mourners amounted probably to $50,000,000. The funeral was of the simplest, the hearse being what is known in France as the "tenth class."

Following Mlle. Fleury's parents with the cortège came Baron James de Rothschild, Baron Colonna de Ceccaldi, Jeane Pedro Coccis, and three wealthy young men, MM. Fischoff, Keller, and Loridan. Hundreds of persons joined in the procession as it proceeded to the church. After the service the body was taken in an automobile to the Gare d'Austerlitz and entrained for Bourges, Mlle. Fleury's native village, where she will be buried.

Meanwhile, the Véginet scandal has stimulated the activities of the police in stamping out drug dens. Several raids were effected yesterday and to-day, notably at Toulon. The whole press is urging the sternest police measures to uproot the evil.

The Journal des Débats editorially criticises to-day the action of the police in detaining and severely cross-examining prominent men calling at the Véginet villa yesterday to pay their last tribute to the dead dancer.

TAMMANY A PUZZLE TO BRITISH MINDS

With So Many Foes, Why Does Such an Institution Still Exist? Asks The Times.

LIKE ITALIAN DESPOTISMS

Murphy as a Disciple of Cosimo de' Medici in Observing Mere Forms of Democracy.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 27.—Apropos of the forthcoming New York elections and Tammany's power, The Times, in an editorial to-day, asks how it is, since there are more people in New York against Tammany than for it, Tammany is allowed to exist.

"To a foreigner the astonishing thing is not that there should now be again a chance of Tommany's defeat," it says, "but that such an institution should continue to exist at all.

"What is the secret of its vitality? Partly, no doubt, Tammany flourishes because it possesses both the authority of age and experience that has enabled it to enlarge and perfect its electoral machinery. Moreover, it is the official branch in New York of the national Democratic Party, and is thus often able to evade its reputation by a whole-hearted appeal to party loyalty.

"The whole elaborate system of American elections, moreover, with its primary conventions and excessive demands on the average citizen's interest in politics, plays directly into the hands of this body of political experts, who can devote their whole time to its manipulation.

"Florence and Milan in the Middle Ages both made the discovery that there was no easier way of building up a despotism than by a strict observance of all outward forms of democracy. Tammany in New York made the same discovery, and there are aspects in which one may even be permitted to regard Mr. Murphy, the reigning boss, as no more than a reproduction of the Italian podesta and a distant disciple of Cosimo de' Medici."

EMPEROR GREETS PENFIELD

Austrian Kaiser Receives New American Ambassador in Audience.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

VIENNA, Sept. 26.—The new American Ambassador, Frederic Courtland Penfield, was received in special audience by the Emperor at noon to-day, with customary pomp and ceremony.

Ambassador Penfield is greatly inconvenienced by not having a house, as other Ambassadors have. The Emperor's carriages, which brought the Ambassador and the Secretaries, U. Grant-Smith and Arthur Hugh Frazier, to Court, had to call for them at the apartment building where the embassy office is located. The Ambassador is vainly trying to find a suitable house.

HOOT GEM-THEFT STORY.

Vaudeville Audience Hiss Jeweler Who Helped to Trap Robbers.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—M. Quadratstein, one of the Paris jewelers who assisted in laying the trap which resulted in the arrest of the five men charged with stealing the famous $625,000 pearl necklace, which disappeared in July while in transit from Paris to London, nearly caused a riot to-night in a vaudeville establishment, where he had been engaged to recount his experiences in catching the thieves.

As he made his appearance, Quadratstein was greeted with a storm of hooting and hissing from all parts of the house. He vainly tried to go through his performance, but when he could not be shouted to the audience that he had been cleared of all suspicion of complicity in the theft of the jewels, and that he was proud of what he had done. He retired just as the audience was showing ominous signs of getting riotous.

AFTER TOBACCO TRUST.

Germany Starts Inquiry in Connection with Cigarette Industry.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—Preliminary steps for an investigation of the operations of the "Tobacco Trust" in connection with the German cigarette industry have been taken by the Government.

The Secretary of State for the Interior, replying to-day to the petition sent to him on Sept. 17 by the Hansa League, an association of business men, asking him to order an inquiry into the subject, says the German Government has long had its eye on the operations of the "trust."

KILLED BY A WASP'S STING.

Lady Molesworth, American Widow of Baronet, Dies from Its Effects.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Lady Molesworth, (née Jane Graham Frost of St. Louis,) widow of Sir Lewis William Molesworth, Bart., died at her Truro residence, Cornwall, last evening, as the result of a wasp's sting, which proved fatal in twenty minutes. At the inquest to-day the jury found that her death was due to heart failure, caused by the sting.

According to the evidence of her sister, Miss Frost, Lady Molesworth was sitting in her drawing room, when a wasp stung her neck. She ran upstairs and applied ammonia to the injury. When she came down she complained of palpitation of the heart. Miss Frost went for some brandy, but on her return she found Lady Molesworth in a faint. She died before a doctor arrived.

Dr. Sharp said Lady Molesworth's heart was not very strong, and the exertion of going upstairs caused the blood to circulate more freely, with the result that the wasp poison was assisted through her system. She was stung on one of the large veins of the neck.

Sir Lewis Molesworth died in May, 1912, and, there having been no children, the title passed to the Rev. Hender Molesworth Staubyn, who died shortly afterward. The latter's son, Capt. Hugh Molesworth Staubyn, succeeded to the title.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 26.—Lady Molesworth was a sister of Mrs. Edith McLaughlin of Chicago, John Mullanphy Frost of Bardstown, Ky.; Reginald Frost of Redlands, Cal.; Mrs. Francis D. Hirschberg and Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce of St. Louis.

DOMINICAN POLLS SOON.

Election Arranged Following Suspension of Hostilities by Rebels.

SANTO DOMINGO, Sept. 26.—A general election will soon be held in the Dominican Republic under proper conditions as a result of the suspension of hostilities agreed to by the rebels at Puerto Plata after a conference between their leaders and James M. Sullivan, the American Minister.

The chief clause of the agreement was that conditions in the republic should be allowed to remain as they were before the revolt.

The Dominican ports, which have been blockaded, are expected to be opened shortly.

Mr. Sullivan presented his credentials to President José Bordas Valdez to-day, and was cordially received. The President is desirous to avoid further bloodshed.

WITHDREW FANCY BONDS.

New Orleans Great Northern Was Offered at High Price in London.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The New Orleans Great Northern Railway bonds, which, while quoted at 66 in New York, were put out at 90 here, were offered by the English & Foreign Trust & Banking Corporation, but subsequently were withdrawn. The matter was sifted by the Stock Exchange Committee and dropped.

John A. Lasemann, Secretary of the corporation, explains the transaction in this way:

"Some time back these bonds were quoted at 66, but since June 30, when the returns of the railway were made and the income shown to have doubled its three years' previous average, we were given to understand that the price had gone up to 89-90. We contracted for $500,000 worth at 87½. There now appears to be some doubt as to what the real market value is, and until we are perfectly satisfied we shall not proceed with the issue."

NO GOLD IN BAFFIN LAND

But Capt. Bernier Reports It Rich in Fish and Game.

QUEBEC, Sept. 26.—Capt. Joseph E. Bernier, the arctic explorer, who has returned from Baffin Land, said to-day that there was no gold there. "The report of gold," he said, "was made to the Government without my knowledge by the second mate of the steamer Arctic.

"Baffin Land is rich in resources, the rivers are full of salmon and the hunting is good. The warm season there lasts about five months, but there are only two months of real heat. The only drawback is the non-production of vegetables; only flowers grow. There are no trees, but the climate is healthful."

GERMAN AVIATOR KILLED.

Lieut. Schulz's Machine Capsizes 150 Feet Up at Johannisthal.

JOHANNISTHAL, Germany, Sept. 26.—Lieut. Schulz, a German military aviator, was killed to-day when his monoplane capsized.

The machine fell with him to the ground from a height of 150 feet while he was flying over the aerodrome here.

JULES CLARETIE TO RETIRE.

Veteran Academician Will Resign as Director of Comedie Francaise.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—It is announced that Jules Claretie, the well-known Academician, is to resign as Director of the Comédie Française. He has held the post for twenty years.

M. Claretie's resignation has been announced many times, and never confirmed; but to-day it is semi-officially stated that the veteran manager will notify his retirement to the Premier.

Menocal Clashes with City Council.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Sept. 26.—President Menocal to-day vetoed the City Council's appropriation of $22,000 for the collection and burning of dead animals. The Council bitterly attacked the President at the evening's session, declaring he had exceeded his authority, and voted, as a retaliation, to cease paying the city's proportion of the municipality's sanitation.

BONDHOLDERS SUE CUBA.

Ask $7,000,000 Lien on Property of the Ports Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Sept. 25.—A civil suit, in which a lien of $7,000,000 is asked against the property of the Cuban Ports Company, was filed in the Court of First Instance here to-day. The action is taken in behalf of bondholders who fear loss of their investments because of President Menocal's recent decree stopping the payment of Custom House receipts to the company under its concession. The suit is also directed against the Cuban Government.

The bondholders' case is in the hands of Dr. Mendez Capote, former Vice President of Cuba and one of the most prominent corporation attorneys. This suit is the first of a series which are to be started against the company and against the Government on account of its action in virtually canceling the concession granted by the Gomez administration.

ULSTER MEN DRILL WITH DUMMY RIFLES

Real Guns Would Be Seized, One Patriot Explains to Massingham's Friend.

VOLUNTEER REVIEW TO-DAY

Prospect of Liberal and Unionist Conference Improves—Bryce Visits Belfast.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The procpect of a conference between members of the Liberal and Unionist Parties on the Irish question has improved considerably the last three days, according to The Nation, which says it is now almost certain that the conference ultimately will be held.

A significant incident in this direction was the visit paid to Belfast to-day by James Bryce, former Ambassador to the United States, and at one time Chief Secretary for Ireland. Mr. Bryce left Belfast to-night for Dublin, but said he probably would return to Belfast to witness to-morrow's review of the Ulster Volunteers.

It is generally believed that the Ulster question is being discussed at Brodick Bay, Scotland, by Premier Asquith and David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who cut short his Continental holiday to meet the Premier.

Henry W. Massingham, editor of The Nation, in an article in his paper, says he sees nothing but childishness in such a rebellion as has been indicated in Sir Edward Carson's speeches.

"There is no concealment," says Mr. Massingham. "Even if the Government were not fully informed, which they are, they could get all the knowledge they require merely by asking. For example, a friend of mine, a journalist and a stranger in Belfast, witnessed one of the drills. The volunteers used dummy rifles.

"'What's the use of drilling with dummies?' my friend inquired of a patriot.

"'We cannot use rifles,' the man replied. 'The Government would seize them.'

"'But you have a store of them somewhere?'

"'Certainly; we keep them in that building there, with all the ammunition we want,' was the reply."

The preparations for to-morrow's great review of the volunteers in Belfast are complete.

All the brigade, staff, and regimental officers for the four regiments have been named, and Sir Edward Carson is said to be sufficiently recovered from his indisposition to receive the homage of his followers from the reviewing stand.

Sunday being the anniversary of Ulster Day, special services will be held in most of the churches in the Protestant districts. The official commemoration service will be attended by the officers of the Provisional Government. It will be held in Ulster Hall.

The latest volunteer to the Ulster forces is an aviator.

PLOTTED TO SLAY PREMIER.

Five Portuguese Confess to Conspiracy to Assassinate Dr. Costa.

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 26.—A confession that they intended to assassinate the Portuguese Premier and instigate a revolt was made to-day by the five men arrested last night while placing bombs around the Premier's villa at Praia das Macas, a watering place near Cintra.

According to The Mundo, the men were delegated by a syndicalist group to explode the bombs in Dr. Affonso Costa's garden. His attention was to be attracted in this way, and they intended to shoot him down when he appeared at the window to find out what had happened.

Dr Costa's death, they said, was to be the signal for a revolt. Armed bands, they said, were ready to rush the prisons amid the confusion and to liberate the prisoners.

The syndicalists, they asserted, had plotted also to kill the Minister for War.

The Mundo avers that the Royalists, Radicals and Republicans were implicated in the conspiracy.

MADRID, Spain, Sept. 26.—Bands of Portuguese royalists have gathered along the Portuguese frontier, according to dispatches from Badajus, where they intend to carry out a carefully laid plan to create slight disturbances at various points so as to attract the attention of the Portuguese while the main body of a Royalist army marches on Lisbon from the north.

JAPAN WARNS CHINA.

Demands Satisfaction in Three Days for Attacks on Nationals.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—A dispatch to a news agency from Shanghai says the Japanese Minister has presented China with an ultimatum which gives China three days to comply with Japan's demands for satisfaction for the recent attacks on Japanese in Nanking. The correspondent says it is believed that China will find it impossible to concede Japan's terms. He adds that the nature of the action contemplated by Japan in case her demands are not fulfilled have not been disclosed.

A dispatch to The Morning Post from Shanghai says that the Japanese Consul at Nanking has ordered all the Japanese in that city into the Consulate, which is protected with machine guns. The correspondent says it is thought that this precaution foreshadows vigorous action on the part of the Japanese.

It now appears, according to the correspondent, that Gen. Chang Hsun, commander of the Chinese Government forces at Nanking, contrary to previous reports, thus far has made no apology for the killing of three Japanese in the recent fighting in Nanking.

ADOPT BASIS FOR AIR LAWS.

International Aviation Committee Frames Legislative Principles.

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, Germany, Sept. 26.—The conference under the auspices of the International Law Committee of Aviation adopted to-day the following principles on which it will endeavor to obtain international legislation for the uniform control of aviation:

"Rights of private property do not entitle land holders to prohibit aviators flying over their lands if such flying is done without occasioning inconvenience, but any abuse of this privilege by an airman will make him legally responsible.

"The owner of an air craft shall be responsible for damages to persons or property, except to persons on board an air craft, but the owner of the air craft may recover against a person who causes damages and also may plead that damages were due to forces beyond human control."

After passing these proposed measures the conference adjourned.

WANT REFEREE'S FEES CUT.

Brokaw Counsel Argues That $2,500 for Wadhams Is Excessive.

An application was made yesterday afternoon to Supreme Court Justice Kelly in Brooklyn for a reduction of the referee's fees in the suit for a divorce brought by Mrs. Mary Blair Brokaw against her husband, W. Gould Brokaw. Ex-Justice William H. Wadhams, the referee in the action, recommended for Mrs. Brokaw an interlocutory decree of divorce, with $15,000 a year allmony. The referee's fees, amounting to $2,500, were entered as part of the costs of the proceedings.

John F. McIntyre, for Mr. Brokaw, argued yesterday that $2,500 was too much to pay the referee. There were eleven hearings, at four of which no testimony was taken. Mr. McIntyre said that only 120 pages of questions and answers were taken down, and that the case was not particularly complex. He thought that $1,200 was enough for the referee. Reserving his decision Justice Kelly said:

"I think that $2,500 is a large sum for hearing proof in this case. I cannot understand why there is such an array of distinguished lawyers in these divorce cases. Every day I allow lawyers only $100 for the trial of cases as intricate as this has been. Perhaps it is not for me to say what the services of the referee are worth. I have never referred a divorce case to a referee since I have been on the bench. I do not believe in it."

COLUMBIA FRESHMEN WIN.

Rout Sophomore at Tug-of-War in Two Straight Victories.

Columbia's entering class of freshmen routed the sophomores in their first pitched battle on South Field yesterday afternoon when they ran away with the rope in the annual tug-of-war contest in two straight victories. The sophomores were as many in numbers as the freshmen. South Field took on a holiday appearance early in the afternoon. Hundreds of upper classmen and visitors gathered around the ropes to watch the contest. The sophomores at 4 o'clock started out in lockstep parade for South Field, cheering lustily. At the same time the freshmen, led by juniors, started from University Hall.

A three-inch hemp rope was used in the tug of war. At first the freshmen were carried on by the second year men, and their line was drawn over the center mark, where O'Neale, a member of the Student Board, stood playing a hose. Some of the freshmen got in the line of fire. But in a few minutes the youngsters ran away with the rope, completely routing the sophomores. The second contest was a repetition of the first.

VALET SLAYS SOLDIERS.

German Officers' Striker, Caught Thieving, Kills Two, Then Himself.

PARCHIM, Germany, Sept. 26.—Two German soldiers were killed and one severely wounded last night by an army officer's "striker," or soldier-valet, whom they were attempting to capture after he had been detected in a robbery. Their assailant then committed suicide.

The striker was attached to an officer of a dragoon regiment stationed here. When he found he had been seen committing the theft he fled to an attic of the barracks, and was pursued by several of his comrades, led by an officer. He was armed with two ordnance revolvers with which he shot the three men, two of them fatally, and then killed himself with the last cartridge.

Business Cars for Pennsylvania.

Two all-steel business cars, to be used by officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad will soon be finished at the shops in Altoona. By the use of business cars last year Pennsylvania officials, while traveling 150,517 miles, were able to conduct the affairs of the railroad just as if they had been in their own offices. The business cars are provided with typewriter desks, maps, a compilation of statistics, and other office paraphernalia.

GREECE MOBILIZES; TURKS ACTIVE AGAIN

New Balkan Peril Causes King Constantine to Hurry Home —Sees Grey To-day.

FEAR RECAPTURE OF KAVALA

Ottomans Move Toward Port Greece Won from Bulgarians—Suspect Bulgar-Turkish Deal.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—King Constantine of Greece made preparations to-day for a hurried return to Athens, where the Balkan situation is regarded by the Hellenic Government as very disquieting. The King has decided to cut short his visit to Eastbourne, a seaside resort on the south coast, whence he will come to London to-morrow for a special conference with Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary.

All Greek officers have been recalled for active service with their commands and many of the regiments disbanded after the conclusion of the campaign against Turkey are now being remobilized.

The activities of the Turkish troops are believed by the Greeks to foreshadow an attempt by them to recapture the port of Kavala, on the Aegean Sea, which cost Greece so much in blood and treasure to wrest from the hands of the Bulgarians in the fighting which broke out between the two former allies after the cessation of hostilities against Turkey.

Turkish officers now on their way from Asia Minor to the Province of Thrace openly admit that Kavala is the objective of Ottoman aspirations.

In the meanwhile Premier Eleutherios Venizelos of Greece is trying to ferret out Turkey's intentions by making a demand at Constantinople for the precise date on which the Ottoman Government purposes to resume the long-interrupted peace negotiations.

Greek official circles deride Bulgarian denials of the reports that common action is contemplated by Bulgaria and Turkey against Greece. Some officials assert that they know negotiations to that end have been started in Constantinople.

It is said that the powers will veto any attempt of the Turks to seize Kavala, but the futility of the treaty of London to make Adrianople Bulgarian has not animated the military party of the Young Turks with any great amount of respect for the decision of the European concert. Turkey now is in the hands of the all-powerful military party, which is liable to take any action which will strengthen it with the people.

With regard to the hostilities between Albania and Servia, the Albanian army, said to be under the command of Essad Pasha, continues its victorious march. The Servians are making desperate efforts to reinforce Monastir, which is seriously threatened. The Greek authorities are expediting the movement of the Serbs over the Greek railways and anticipate a request for the passage of an entire Servian division through Salonika.

Severe fighting near Ochrida, in Albania, 100 miles north of Janina, is said to have resulted in the complete success of the Albanians, who captured several guns. In spite of the confidence expressed at Belgrade, the Servians probably have a long and arduous campaign before them.

The Belgrade newspapers urge the complete extermination of the Albanians. It is reported that both Russia and Austria have warned Servia to confine her operations within her own borders as defined by the Ambassadorial conference.

DEBATE DRINK CURES.

Congress on Alcoholism Seeks the Most Practical Remedy.

MILAN, Italy, Sept. 26.—A discussion on the various methods of curing habitual drunkards occupied the entire morning session of the International Congress on Alcoholism to-day, the delegates endeavoring to discover the best scientific and practical remedy.

The congress practically decided that after meeting in the United States in 1915, the next congress should be held in Denmark in 1916.

A letter from former Premier Luzzatti supporting the theories of the congress was read, and brought forth great applause.

NEED CONTAGIOUS WARDS.

Beds for 3,000 Patients Must Be Provided at Once, Dr. Bensel Says.

Dr. Walter Bensel, who retires as Sanitary Superintendent of the Department of Health on Oct. 1, said yesterday that there was great need for better facilities in the hospitals here for the accommodaton of patients suffering from contagious diseases. He said that provision should be made at once for 3,000 patients.

"The city," Dr. Bensel asserted, "has but three hospitals which accept patients suffering from contagious diseases. Two more hospitals with at least 1,500 beds each should be built for them."

Dr. Bensel said that the Department of Health had accomplished much in the way of eliminating these diseases.

"We have practically stamped out smallpox," he asserted, "and the anti-toxin for diphtheria has brought that disease under control."

He said that, although statistics did not show it, much had been done in the way of fighting tuberculosis. Outdoor clinics, improved sanitary conditions, and schools formed to teach persons how to live, had helped to keep the disease in check.

Persons familiar with affairs in the department said yesterday that Dr. Bensel and Commissioner Lederle were unable to agree over the enforcement of a milk ordinance some months ago. Dr. Bensel took a stand against the sale of milk in bulk in grocery stores. Later, it was said, there was trouble between the two officials over demands made by the Ashmen's Union. Dr. Bensel denied yesterday that he and Commissioner Lederle were at odds, but he refused to tell why he had resigned.

BOYS WERE BANDITS WHO LOOTED TRAIN

Deputy Sheriff Killed in Mistake by Fellow-Searcher for Alabama Robbers.

POSSE SCOURING SWAMPS

$100,000 Highest Estimate Placed on Booty Gained by Youths Who Held Up Ten Men.

COTTONDALE, Ala., Sept. 26.—Boys were the bandits who early to-day rifled the mail car and dynamited the express safe on Alabama & Great Southern Train 7 near this place and escaped with booty estimated variously at from a few hundred to fifty thousand dollars. In the search for the bandits this morning, Deputy Sheriff James Bonner of Birmingham was shot and killed by a member of another posse from Montgomery, who mistook him for one of the robbers.

Ten suspects were seized in or near Eutaw to-night. All protest ignorance of the robbery.

After stopping the train at Bibbville Siding at 12:30 A. M. by means of a block danger signal, the young bandits with revolvers forced the engineer, fireman, express messenger, and six mail clerks to leave the engine and cars and line up at the side of the track. The robbers then compelled a trainman to detach the engine, express, and mail cars, whereupon the bandits boarded the locomotive and drove the front part of the train several miles down the track, where the express safe was blown to bits with dynamite and the registered mail pouches were rifled.

The robbers then threw open the throttle of the engine, leaped to the ground, and escaped with their plunder into the swamps. The runaway engine and express and mail cars dashed down the track through several towns until the steam in the engine was exhausted and they stopped at Englewood.

At least a hundred armed deputies and farmers still are searching for the bandits in the swamps.

"As soon as Engineer Daniels saw the signal," said a trainman, "he stopped the train, only to be confronted with a brace of revolvers in the hands of an 18-year-old boy. He was made to leave the train with his fireman. L. Pool, the express messenger, was eating his lunch at the time the robbers entered his car. The messenger said to them: 'Go away from here or I will throw this hot coffee on you.' As he made a motion to carry out his threat a bullet fanned his cheek so closely that he fell to the floor under the impression that he had been shot. Six mail clerks were made to leave their coach and stand on the right of way with their hands up. Then the bandits forced the porter to cut the two front coaches and engine from the sleepers. The front section pulled away from the other section with one of the bandits at the throttle."

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 26.—A clue was found this afternoon to the robbers who held up the Alabama & Great Southern express train near Cottondale last night, according to a dispatch from Tuscaloosa. Members of a posse found the remains of a fire and several whiskey bottles in a swamp near that place. The fire had been built from the planking of one of the railroad cars which had been wrecked with explosives.

A Federal investiagtion, it is stated, may develop as the result of an assertion by members of the train crew that four of the mail clerks and express messengers were unarmed.

GRAVESEND WANTS POLICE.

Satisfied with Those It Has, but More Are Said to be Needed.

Better police protection for the vicinity of Coney Island and Gravesend Bay was asked of Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo by a delegation from the Gravesend Board of Trade yesterday. The delegation was led by L. V. D. Haddenbergh, who said that frequent burglaries and other crimes in that part of the city were alarming to the residents. Mr. Haddenbergh said that two attempts had been made recently to enter his home by thieves. One of these was frustrated by Mr. Haddenbergh's sixteen-year-old daughter, who was alone in the house.

The committee assured the Commissioner that it had no complaint to make of the efficiency of the police now on duty in the district, but that it was of the opinion that more policemen were needed.

The committee was told by the Commissioner that the conditions complained of would be investigated, and that if warranted six additional patrolmen would be assigned when they were through their course at the school of recruits.

COLLECTED MONEY IN NAME OF FIREMEN

Publisher of Unofficial Benevolent Association's Manuals Arrested for False Pretenses.

COMMISSIONER LAID A TRAP

Manufacturer Who Yielded to Solicitation for an Advertisement Paid Out Marked Bills.

On the complaint of Arthur T. Murray, Vice President of the Brady-Murray Motors Corporation, 218 West Fifty-fifth Street, Detective Gallagher, attached to Fire Headquarters, arrested yesterday afternoon Charles G. Richl, who said he was a publisher of a Columbus Circle. Richl was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, and when arrested $40 in marked bills was found in his possession. He was arraigned in the West Side Court and held in $500 bail for examination on Tuesday.

According to Fire Commissioner Johnson the arrest of Richl had been sought for three years. The arrest, it was admitted, was the result of an arrangement between Commissioner Johnson and Mr. Murray. Detective Gallagher himself marked the bills which were found on Richl. The attempts to arrest Richl, it was said, grew out of the many complaints received from business men who had been solicited for funds in behalf of the New York Fire Department Benevolent Association.

This association was formed many years ago and has paid out much money in benefits. Originally it was composed of each active and retired fireman, but in recent years the membership has been confined to active firemen. The association, however, has no connection with the Fire Department.

It was said, according to information which reached Commissioner Johnson, that the officials of the association, in order to secure subscriptions in the name of the Fire Department, had issued what purported to be official manuals. For subscriptions of $10 or more the contributors were given what purported to be a receipt and a book. The latter, it was said, contained the names of firemen who worked on a per centage basis.

There could have been no objection to this, Commissioner Johnson said yesterday, were the persons soliciting subscriptions to identify themselves as agents of the Fire Department. Commissioner Johnson made an investigation of the complaints that came to Fire Headquarters and found that many of the solicitors in full uniform. He said, too, that the funds collected in the name of the New York Fire Department Benefit Association went to the widows and children of firemen who had lost their lives in the service of the Fire Department.

"Richl must be a man," said he was a frequent caller at the office of the department, which is at 240 Church Street and solicited advertising.

"The Captain told me to drop in," said he.

When Mr. Murray questioned him he said that he was not wearing his uniform because it was his day off.

"I signed an order for the advertisement," said Mr. Murray yesterday in his uptown office, "and forgot all about it. Two weeks ago I received a letter from a Capt. Meehan, treasurer of the association, reminding me of the order. I wrote an advertisement and told the stenographer to send it to Meehan. By mistake it got to Fire Headquarters instead and soon after I heard from Commissioner Johnson. I was only too glad to help him run down an impostor.

"I made an appointment with Meehan for Wednesday morning. The detectives were on hand, but no one came. The next day I got a telephone call from Meehan saying that he could not come, but that he would send a representative on Friday. A man who said he was Mr. Richl turned up on time, and while I entertained him in my office two detectives were hiding behind a thin partition. They heard everything.

"Richl said that Capt. Meehan had sent him. Meehan, he said, was Captain of Engine Company 22. Richl said that he himself was an exempt fireman, having served twenty years in the department. He said he was 75 years old. When I asked him where the money was going he said that it was going to widows and orphans. The association had distributed $200,000 to widows and orphans, he said. On the pretense of conferring with my partner I led my caller into an outer room. Then one of the detectives told me it was time to give the money. I did this and received his receipt. On the way out of the door one of the detectives arrested him."

In court Richl admitted that he was 41 and not 62 years of age. There is no Capt. Meehan in the department. There was a Captain Meehan on the pension list.

EAGLE HERE; WON'T TALK.

Texas Congressman Only "Thanks God" Money Bill Is Still in Senate.

Congressman Joe H. Eagle of Texas, who has been outspoken in his denunciation of the Currency bill, was discovered sitting in Peacock Alley at the Waldorf yesterday morning, with two other wide-brim-hatted men who looked like statesmen. The hats were all on, and apparently a conference was in progress.

Mr. Eagle said he had run up from Washington just to meet members of his family, who had been spending part of the Summer on the New Jersey coast. He declined to discuss the currency measure, though he said "thank God" the measure was not yet out of the Senate. He added that he would rather be at his desk in Washington opening his letters than be interviewed, and that he did not expect to be in New York long.

Sons of Revolution to West Point.

About five hundred members of the Sons of the Revolution with their families will visit West Point next Saturday afternoon to witness the usual Saturday inspection and parade of cadets and to attend the football game. DENIAL FROM MRS. BLAKE.

"Interview" by Telephone Fictitious, She Says Through Counsel.

George Gordon Battle, attorney for Mrs. Catherine Ketcham Blake in her suit against Mrs. Katherine Duer Mackay for $1,000,000, said yesterday:

"Mrs. Blake's decision on the question whether she will bring a suit for separation against her husband is awaiting Dr. Blake's return to this city. He is now in Connecticut. Of course, Mrs. Blake, who is living apart from her husband, wants to have her affairs definitely settled, either by agreement or by legal action. Either would be satisfactory to her."

Mr. Battle denounced as false a report in a morning newspaper that Mrs. Blake had given an interview in which she characterized her husband as the greatest surgeon in the world, and was represented as sobbing. Mr. Battle asserted:

"Mrs. Blake knew nothing about this interview until I called her on the telephone. She said she had not given any interview. When I asked her whether she had not spoken yesterday to some one concerning the matter, she replied that two persons called at the house the night before last and said that the statement had been made that Dr. Blake was a fine man.

"Mrs. Blake said that her only comment had been:

"'I am not going to deny that.'

"When the afternoon mail of the telephone tried to investigate her into an interview, she said she was awaiting questions, she said, and having given no interview authorized any one else to give one. She made no further comment, based on the remark Dr. Straus was said to have made.

Mr. Battle added that the report was also fictitious in its representation that Mrs. Blake had authorized through a spokesman the statement that her Florida suit had been brought only for the purpose of inducing a reconciliation with her husband and would be dropped if Dr. Blake should return to her.

"There is no foundation for any such statement," said Mr. Battle.

AQUEDUCT NOT TAXABLE.

City Wins Assessment Fight with Two Ulster County Towns.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 26.—A decision of considerable importance to the City of New York has been handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court for the Third Department, which has decided that the Catskill aqueduct is not taxable, and has stricken from the tax rolls of two towns the assessment for the city's property. The amount involved is $140,000.

The towns affected are Gardiner and Shawangunk, in Ulster county, across which the city acquired a strip of land averaging one hundred feet in width. Additional land was acquired in other parts of the county, the total amount for a time being fixed at 1,000 acres, subject to a reduction to 600 acres, which the aqueduct could be confined if necessary. The total amount finally acquired was 400 acres.

The towns claimed the 1,000 acres for tax purposes, and Shawangunk based it assessment on that.

Mrs. Albert G. Wheeler, Jr., Returns

Arriving on the White Star liner Baltic from Liverpool yesterday was Mrs. Albert Gallatin Wheeler, Jr., of Chicago. After their marriage in London on Sept. 6 Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler had come over to make a short visit to Mrs. Wheeler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hamilton, of Chicago. Mrs. Wheeler separated from her husband a year ago and went to live in London.

SEX HYGIENE FOR SCHOOLS.

Settlement Workers Urge That Modified Course Be Given.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 26.—Teaching of sex hygiene in the public schools, with restrictions and modifications, was recommended to-day by the National Federation of Settlement Workers, action being taken on a resolution presented by W. E. McLennan of Buffalo.

The recommendation stated that the conference would register its belief, based on intimate association in settlement work with youths of all ages, that it would be well for school authorities generally to attempt teaching, by persons of recognized character, understanding, and pedagogic knowledge of such matters to pupils of high schools and gradually, if the efforts promised good results, introduce the teaching, modified as the ages might demand, to children of the lower school grades.

The conference voiced that the subject was one for the serious consideration of parents first and that the greatest care was necessary in selecting persons to deal with the essential physical facts of sex.

A feature of the conference, which closed to-day, was a memorial service conducted by Jane Addams, of Chicago, for Samuel A. Barnett, of Westminster Abbey, London, founder of Toynbee Hall, the first settlement house in London, and Miss Addams had a brief tribute to the Canon's work. Among the prominent persons who sent letters of greeting were Mrs. Humphry Ward, Lord Bryce, Premier Asquith, Premier Briand, of France, and Premier Luzzatti, of Italy. Miss Addams presided at the conference and read letters and telegrams from Canon Barnett's friends. Mrs. Ward wrote of Canon Barnett's work in the Whitechapel district of London. Premier Asquith wrote of his personal reminiscences of conferences and collaborations with him. A letter from Premier Briand, a greeting from Premier Luzzatti, and a telegram from Premier Venizelos, of Greece, were read by Miss Addams.

Officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Graham Taylor, of Chicago; Vice Presidents, Mrs. Glendower Evans, of Boston, and Robert A. Woods, of Boston; recording Secretary, Miss Lillian D. Wald, of New York; corresponding Secretary, Miss Vida D. Scudder, of Boston, and Treasurer, Robert Hunter, of New York.

COURSE IN SEX HYGIENE.

New York University to Give Ten Lectures for Teachers.

A new course in sex hygiene for teachers at the School of Pedagogy of New York University in Washington Square was announced yesterday by Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown. The ten or more lectures will begin on Oct. 10 and will be given on alternate Saturdays, at 11:30 A. M.

The aim of the course will be to give teachers a knowledge of the facts and principles constituting the matter of such instruction. The question of method will be treated only incidentally, and will form the special topic of a similar course to be given next year.

Dr. Edward L. Keyes, Jr., Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton, George W. Hunter, and Dr. Thomas M. Balliet will be the lecturers.

WHEELER HERE TO EXPLAIN.

Secretary of Embassy at Rome Refuses to Speak of Trouble There.

Among the arrivals last night on the White Star steamship Baltic was Post Wheeler, Secretary of the United States Embassy at Rome, who is on his way to Washington to report to the State Department. It was charged here that Wheeler took advantage of the position as a diplomat to have sufficient smelling salts sent in his line of duty to last six years. Mr. Wheeler will also be asked to explain the nature of the recent trouble between the Embassy and another official attached to the Embassy.

When the Baltic arrived in Quarantine a number of reporters went to Mr. Wheeler's cabin on the promenade deck and knocked, but received no answer. Some one decided to open the door, and Mr. Wheeler finally came out and said that he was sorry he was not able to say anything until he had been to Washington. Mrs. Wheeler accompanied him.

A Large and Exceptionally Fine Collection of

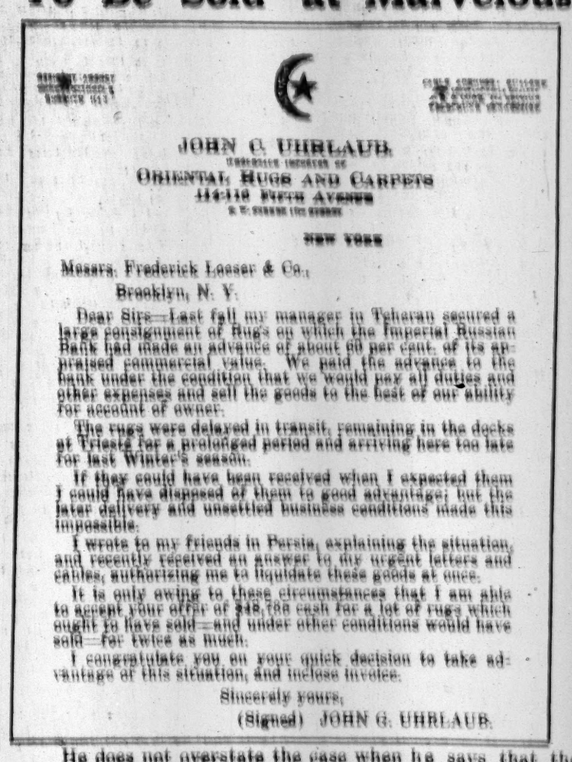
Bought from J. C. Uhrlaub, as Explained Below,

To Be Sold at Marvelous Low Prices.



JOHN G. UHRLAUB
IMPORTER AND JOBBER OF
ORIENTAL RUGS AND CARPETS
16-18 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

Messrs. Frederick Loeser & Co.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dear Sirs—Last fall my manager in Teheran secured a large consignment of Rugs on which the Imperial Russian Bank had made an advance of about 60 per cent. of its appraised commercial value. We paid the advance to the bank under the condition that we would pay all duties and other expenses and sell the goods to the best of our ability for account of owner.

The rugs were delayed in transit, remaining in the docks at Trieste for a prolonged period and arriving here too late for last Winter's season.

If they could have been received when I expected them I could have disposed of them to good advantage; but the later delivery and unsettled business conditions made this impossible.

I wrote to my friends in Persia, explaining the situation, and recently received an answer to my urgent letters and cables, authorizing me to liquidate these goods at once.

It is only owing to these circumstances that I am able to accept your offer of $48,788 cash for a lot of rugs which ought to have sold—and under other conditions would have sold—for twice as much.

I congratulate you on your quick decision to take advantage of this situation, and inclose invoice.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) JOHN G. UHRLAUB.

IN SOME RESPECTS this is the most beautiful collection of Oriental Rugs we have ever shown.

The Persian Kirmans, for example, are a finer group, we believe, than have been assembled anywhere in New York. We have some very magnificent Hokharas, such as seldom come into the market at all nowadays.

Altogether the display in the Loeser Eastern Bazar today will be one to delight the Rug connoisseur and every lover of exquisite home furnishings.

But this event is more than an exhibit.

It is as extraordinary a sale of special values as ever was announced hereabout.

The letter to us from Mr. Uhrlaub, who is one of the chief importers of fine Rugs, and with whom we have had many large transactions, is explanation of the reason for the sale.

He does not overstate the case when he says that these Rugs, under ordinarily favorable conditions, might have been sold for twice what we paid for them.

We hope that no one who cares at all for Rugs will miss the Sale, for we are certain it will be a matter of regret to those who do let the chance slip past without inspecting one of the most wonderful collections of Rugs ever brought together.

Small Rugs of $15 to $800 Grades at $9.85 to $149

It is not possible to tell by the types the infinite beauty and great variety of this superb collection. There are Persia's choicest weaves in magnificent showing—Kashans, Sarugs and Kirmans. There are also fine Baluchistans, Shirvans, Mosuls, Kurdistans, Kazaks, etc. It will be easy to pick the Rugs that delight your eye and suit your requirements as to size:

Carpet Rugs : : $100 to $1,600 Grades at $65 to $915.

The finest Oriental Carpets ever exhibited in this vicinity are in this large collection. There are Kashans, Sarugs, wonderful Kirmanshahs, Mesheds, Gorevans, Afghans, Mahals, etc. A very great variety of the carpet sizes range up to unusually large Rugs.

A Group of $300 Kashan Rugs at $149 Each.

This is one of the most marvelous groups in the Sale, the choicest Rugs among Persia's best weave. So close woven is the fabric, in fact, that in a Rug of 4x7 size there will be 1,728,000 hand-tied knots. We have 17 of these Rugs at this price, all worth at least $800, and a few worth more.

$75 to $125 Persian Carradjas, $39 to $55.

These are large, thick and heavy Rugs in most unusual patterns, a group that is unlike any heretofore shown in this vicinity. They range from 8½ to 4½ feet wide and from 9 to 13 feet long, sizes that are not common and that cannot always be found when wanted.

$70 to $200 Saruk Rugs at $35 to $125.

These are well called "the picture Rug," and a very large assortment has always been a feature of our stocks. We have never before, however, had a collection so beautiful at such extraordinary little prices. The Rug lover who wants to add to his collection at a moderate cost is advised to look first at the Sarugs.

$65 to $200 Kirmans at $35 to $125.

This group also is the very finest we ever had of these very popular Persian Rugs. The specimens are particularly soft in color, fine in weave and beautiful in designs. Sizes include 8x5 feet, 8½x6 feet, 4x7 feet and 6x8 feet. The largest number of the Rugs are within the medium price range.

$15 to $35 Baluchistans at $9.85 to $21.50.

A notably fine variety of durable and handsome Oriental Rugs for those who wish selection at very low prices. A much better collection than we have often been able to secure even at the full prices. The colors are soft and the Rugs are very lustrous.

190 New and Lovely Dress Tunics

Such as Formed a Part of Many of the Exquisite Gowns Shown in the Loeser Pageant of Fashions,

$7.50 to $75 Values at $2.98 to $25 Each

NO ONE WHO HAS OBSERVED the new Paris Fashions needs to be informed of the desirability and usefulness of the beaded chiffon or net Tunic.

Such garnitures indeed reach the elaboration of providing practically the complete decoration of a dress.

Now the Loeser Store invites you to select from an exquisite collection of the very newest Tunics—and pay a fraction of the ordinary prices.

There is a reason, of course, an unusual business happening that we shall not detail here. Its result in opportunity for you is the important matter now.

These Dress Tunics are the newest shapes and the finest workmanship. Some are but just from the Custom House. None have been in the city many weeks.

Nearly all are beaded. Some are in combinations of beading and embroidery. All of them have brilliancy—glitter. A few are in black, but the majority are white or colors, including every one of the best colors of the season.

Not one passe Tunic among them. None better to be found at full prices. Scarcely two alike, and all marvelous values at $2.98 to $25 each.

1,000 Books : : Many Old and Rare Will Be HALF PRICE Today.

A Characteristic Loeser Disposal.

BOOK TREASURES such as these do not generally come under the reduction pencil. The average Book specialist who deals in them considers it is foolish to reduce the prices of such Books simply because they have not sold within a specified time.

"They are growing more valuable rather than less," he will say. "The prices should go up rather than down."

Yet it is the Loeser policy, even with old and rare Books, to make periodic clearances when Books have been here a certain time.

In today's sale are Books on a wide variety of subjects—

Americana
Travel
Essays History
Biography
Social Science
Natural History
Economics.

The high quality and desirability of these Books will be realized by bookish persons at a glance. We regret that the fact there is generally but one Book of a kind makes a list impossible.

Prices have been very moderate and are now cut practically in half.

WRECK ENGINEER DIES FROM GRIEF

Doherty, Whose Locomotive Ran Into Express at Stamford, Suffered Torture.

SAW VISIONS OF THE DEAD

Kept Little Sons Awake Because He Could Not Sleep—Had Been Freed by Coroner.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 26.—His nervous system shattered by the Stamford wreck, on the New Haven Road, Charles J. Doherty, engineer, fell dead in his home early to-day. It was Doherty's section of the westbound Boston-New York express that crashed into the first section on June 11, and he since had been in a condition bordering on collapse. Unable to sleep, he sank gradually. His death, however, was unexpected. After the wreck, he was detained for the Coroner's investigation, but the verdict held the railroad company responsible and freed Doherty.

The engineer obtained employment running a stationary engine, but was compelled to quit work frequently to gain temporary relief from the strain. His habits were exemplary. He was 52 years old. A widow and two young children survive him. He had been employed by the railroad twelve years. His brother-in-law, John H. Dillon, said to-night:

"Charlie had been suffering every moment since the wreck, and that's what killed him. There never was a day passed but he spoke of it, and he never could mention it without becoming very nervous. At night, he suffered, for he could not sleep. Whenever he did close his tired eyes for a few minutes, his slumber was disturbed by horrible nightmares.

"He always carried visions of those unfortunates who were killed in the wreck, and spoke continually, night and day, of one old woman in particular, whom he saw thrown on the top of a car. Usually, he felt so nervous before retiring that he had to keep one of his two children, the elder of whom is only 5 years old, awake with him for a time, so that he might have somebody to talk to. In the morning, he would tell me about it and then would end up with that pitiful wail, 'I just couldn't sleep and I had to have some one to talk to.'"

NEW HAVEN ROAD GETS OFF.

Connecticut Won't Prosecute Officials for Fatal Wreck.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 26.—There will be no prosecution of New Haven Railroad officials by the authorities of Connecticut for the fatal North Haven wreck, although Attorney General McReynolds advised one. The question of prosecution lies primarily with Coroner Eli Mix, who made the investigation for the State's attorney, with whom he filed a report recently laying the blame for the wreck on four employes and making no recommendation regarding the railroad officials.

Coroner Mix was asked this evening about his plans for adopting the suggestion of Mr. McReynolds and beginning a prosecution against the railroad. He answered:

"I have made my finding in the case and I propose to stick by it."

State's Attorney Ailing simply called attention to the Coroner's report. No action by either is expected, although neither has made a definite statement to that effect.

BRIDGE JUMPER LITTLE HURT

Laborer Tries Suicide by Leaping from Manhattan Span.

Persons walking on the promenade of the Manhattan Bridge at 6:25 o'clock last night saw a man climb over the guardrail and jump into the East River. Two of them, Carl and Annie Engler, of 4,713 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, informed the police of Bridge Squad A. A telephone call to the Fulton Street Station turned police from that place and the launch of Harbor Squad A out to search for the bridge jumper.

Meanwhile Capt. Charles Thorsen of the Central Railroad of New Jersey's tug Red Ash saw the man drop into the water. His crew manned a rowboat and fished the man out. He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital from Pier 30 and revived. He said he was Thomas Navanzik, a laborer, and homeless. He gave no reason for the attempt at suicide, for which he is under arrest. Dr. Gardner says his condition is not serious.

LIMITS POWER OVER BONDS.

Massachusetts Board Can't Bar New Haven Issue.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—The contention of counsel that the Massachusetts Public Service Commission had no jurisdiction over an issue of bonds providing for expenditures outside of Massachusetts was supported to-day by Frederick J. Macleod, chairman, at the hearing on the petition of the New Haven road for approval of a proposed debenture bond issue of $67,000,000.

"I am convinced," said Chairman Macleod, "that we have no jurisdiction over the issue involved, which, if approved, is to be expended in Connecticut, and that our sole jurisdiction is on expenditures to be made in Massachusetts. I shall apply the same principle to all other petitions which come before this board."

Chairman Macleod's ruling was prompted by the argument of Bradley Palmer, who as counsel to the Stockholders' Protective Committee favored the proposed issue. Mr. Palmer urged that the Massachusetts Commission could not impose restrictions on the bond issue which would impair the power of the Connecticut Commission to authorize the same issue.

Opposition was voiced by Edward F. Cole of Waterbury, Conn., a small stockholder. He believed the railroad should earn the money to pay its indebtedness and not add to its funded debt by further borrowing.

Edward D. Robbins, general counsel to the company, said earlier in the afternoon that unless President Howard Elliott and Vice President J. H. Hustis were provided with the funds necessary to make safer the transportation of almost 87,000,000 persons annually, others must divide the responsibility for the result.

OBJECT TO OVERTIME RATE.

Managers Will Resist Demand Put Forward by Trainmen.

Members of the arbitration board which is passing on the demands of the trainmen and conductors of the Eastern railroads, departed from the city for their homes yesterday. They will return for the meeting of the board on Monday.

It was learned yesterday that the demand for time and a half for overtime on double-headed trains and double time if Mallett engines were used would be made the principal issue by the railroads, which would oppose the demand before the arbitrators.

ST. ANDREW'S CONVENTION.

5,000 Delegates Expected—Mass-Meeting to be Held at Carnegie Hall

The twenty-eighth national convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will be held here from Oct. 1 to Oct. 5. It is probable that 5,000 delegates will be present.

The brotherhood leaders have taken advantage of the nearness of the triennial convention of the Episcopal Church, and many who will take a leading part in the Church's General Council will also be heard at the great public mass meetings in Carnegie Hall. The religious services will be held in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the Church of Zion, and St. Timothy and new St. Thomas's Church in Fifth Avenue. The great mass meeting will be held in Carnegie Hall.

Among the speakers will be Bishop Brent of the Philippines, Chairman of the International Opium Conference; Dean Sumner of Chicago, whose work on the Chicago Vice Commission attracted much attention; George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia, Bishops Greer, Anderson, Burch, Burgess, Lloyd, Lines, Moreland, Rhinelander, Spaulding, and Woodcock.

Pick S. C. Mead for Secretary.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 26.—Although the election of officers of the American Association of Commercial Executives is not to be held until to-morrow, nominations, which are equivalent to election, were made to-day. S. C. Mead, Secretary of the New York Merchants' Association, was named for President and Emmett Hay Naylor of Springfield, Mass., for Secretary Treasurer.

Gives Birth to Four Boys.

CENTRALIA, Ill., Sept. 26.—Four boys were born to-day to Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Yates, who live here. Physicians believe all will live.

BOMBARDED A SCHOOL.

Boys Sent to Jail for Hurling Missiles Through the Windows.

This is the season for horse chestnuts, and Principal Theodore C. Mitchill of the Jamaica High School might have kept his temper if a volley of horse chestnuts, flung through the window of his office in the school shortly before noon yesterday, had been all he had to bear. He had scarcely got over his surprise when a fusillade of stones followed the chestnuts. Then things began to happen in the school.

Hatless, the athletic principal sped from the room, down the hall, out upon Hillside Avenue, where he saw a group of boys dispersing just as two of their number cast a few more stones through the window—as if for good measure.

Although a good runner, Principal Mitchell was no match for the boys. But he is resourceful, and he hailed a passing automobile. The driver grinned when told the cause of the disturbance. He had been a boy once himself. But he obligingly helped Mr. Mitchell to overtake the two boys who, it was said, threw the stones. The boys had a free ride to the police court, where Magistrate Voorhees sentenced them to two days in jail and to pay a fine of $2 each. They described themselves as Emil Vlosch, 14, of 1,320 First Avenue, and George Fundel, 18, of 1,336 First Avenue, both of Manhattan.

Fagin Knocks Out Dempsey.

Bert Fagin of California knocked out Mike Dempsey of Brooklyn in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round bout at Brown's Far Rockaway Club last night. Dempsey showed up well earlier in the bout. In the third round, a right swing opened Fagin's eye, and he went to his corner groggy. Fagin recuperated and a right-hand punch to the jaw put Dempsey out in the fifth.

PUTNAM'S NEW BOOKS

Now Ready

The Eagle's Talon

By GEORGES OHNET

Author of "The Ironmaster."

12°. With 16 Illustrations by A. de Parys. $1.25 net. By mail, $1.40.

A stirring story of love and adventure during a stormy era of French history. A constant succession of brisk, dramatic events and rousing surprises. The book involves the Bourbon conspiracies against Napoleon and the counter-checks and reprisals of the Republicans, and the narrative overlaps the execution of the Duke d'Enghien.

The Trail of Lewis and Clark

A Story of the Great Exploration Across the Continent, 1803-1806; with a Description of the Old Trail, Based Upon Actual Travel Over It, and of the Changes Found a Century Later.

By O. D. WHEELER

Member of the Minnesota Historical Society.

800 Pages. With Colored Frontispieces and about 200 Illustrations, including Maps and Diagrams. 2 vols. $4.00 net. By mail, $4.50.

Mr. Wheeler writes from the standpoint of actual knowledge of the old trail and the country through which it passes, and he connects the past and the present by introducing brief extracts from Lewis and Clark and other historical and narrative writers. A valuable contribution to our historical literature, containing material hitherto unknown and inaccessible.

Sex Antagonism

By WALTER HEAPE, M.A., F.R.S.

8°. Putnam's Science Series. $1.50 net. By mail, $1.65.

The author traces the age-old struggle for supremacy between the masculine and the feminine elements in society, and shows that to the domination now of one, now of the other, are traceable some of the world's most fundamental institutions and social principles.

A Short History of English Liberalism

By W. LYON BLEASE

8°. $3.50 net. By mail, $3.75.

The book traces the progress of Liberalism during the last century and a half. The author's method is not so much to narrate events, as to quote from speeches and letters, which show the way in which the governing classes looked at themselves and their subjects, and the way in which the prevailing ideas of these classes were modified.

Two modern women—their dramatic stories—

ANNE, ACTRESS

By JULIET G. SAGER, herself a retired actress, tells the story of a plucky woman who worked hard for success on the stage, supporting her daughter. The developments are dramatic, and the stage is pictured, not in lurid colors, but as it is—a natural, work-a-day world with its peculiar troubles and pleasures.

$1.25 net; postpaid $1.37.

A MODERN EVE

By MAY EDGINTON, a young Englishwoman, tells of a girl of the modern sort, intelligent, eager to reform the world. How she fights her battle, how two men struggle for her love, and what comes of her plunge into affairs—these things make a really good story.

THE GAME OF MIND

By Percy A. Campbell

A psychological antidote to the present-day superstition of "discarnate" existence. Characterized by one critic as a "philosophical jest." Other "philosophical jests" have been the conception of the earth as round an in motion, and that of the evolutional descent of man from an ape-like animal.

SAFETY SHOW HELD BY PENNSYLVANIA

Thousands of Road's Employes See Devices for Saving Life and Limb in Operation.

FIRST AID ON THIRD RAIL

Spectators Impressed by a Section of Road Where Workman Is Shocked and Quickly Revived.

The Manhattan Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad gave a "Safety First" exhibition yesterday in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on the fourth floor of the Pennsylvania Station. Three large rooms were equipped with modern safety appliances of every description, and it was estimated that between 2,500 and 3,000 employes of every department of the service saw the actual demonstrations of the various devices. The exhibit opened at 2 o'clock and lasted until 10:30.

In the large auditorium last night they witnessed a practical demonstration of first aid methods, the most interesting of which was the resuscitation of a victim of electric shock. Across one end of the room there was a twelve-foot section of track. There were the two steel rails fastened to the wooden ties resting on the rock-ballasted roadbed and running parallel to the dangerous third rail, which was protected by a wooden shield. To make it realistic there was a string of telegraph poles with their burden of wires and except that no cows were grazing on the Eighth Avenue meadows you could easily imagine yourself to be standing alongside the Pennsylvania tracks at Metuchen, Rahway, or Elizabeth.

A workman in overalls stepped onto the track and walked along testing the bolts that clamped the rails to the ties. About the middle of the section he found one bolt that was defective, and as he stooped to examine it more closely he allowed his body to come in contact with the third rail. Instantly there was a blinding (imaginary) flash and the careless workman toppled over across the third rail in a manner that would have done credit to a moving picture actor.

A short distance away two other workmen saw the flash in their minds' eye and raced to the rescue. They kneeled on the wooden shield on each side of their unfortunate comrade, and with pieces of dry board, picked up along the track, broke the contact between the third rail and its victim. Then they hauled him to the middle of the roadbed. The audience leaned forward breathlessly. To all intents and purposes the man was dead.

A fourth workman was at once sent for one of the company's physicians, and, in the meantime, the other two started the work of resuscitation. The interested onlookers were pushed back a few feet—to give the victim plenty of fresh air—and Workman No. 1 quickly stuck his fingers in the victim's mouth to see if there was any tobacco quid or false teeth to impede artificial respiration.

There was no stopping to loosen the clothing because every moment of delay might be serious. The victim was turned over on his stomach with his arms extended forward beyond his head. His face was turned to one side so that his nose and mouth were free for breathing. Workman No. 2 drew the victim's tongue forward.

Then Workman No. 1 knelt straddling the victim's thighs and rested the palms of his hands on the muscles of the back over the lower ribs. Gradually he brought the weight of his body down upon the victim and then swung backward to remove the pressure. He did this from twelve to fifteen times a minute and if necessary would have continued for at least three hours, but the victim soon began to show signs of life and after a few moments was fully restored. The applause was tremendous and the picture was unanimously passed by the Board of Censorship.

Then a demonstration of first aid in cases of hemorrhage, fracture, burns and scalds was given by employes armed with the company's first aid kit, containing aseptic compresses wrapped in oil paper, bandages, adhesive plaster and safety pins. One of the employe-actors was bandaged from head to foot and it was evident that he must have been in a head-on collision in which every bone of his body was broken.

Demonstrator L. J. Griffith explained the various exhibits.

"Many of our men are careless about leaving nails protruding from planks with the result that others step on a rusty nail and are liable to lockjaw," said he. "One month four or four men were injured in this way. These planks here show the men that they either should pull out the nails or hammer them down level with the wood.

"We have instituted a new protective device for men working at emery wheels by equipping them with goggles so that the chips can't fly off and perhaps strike them in the eyes. The heads of chisels also fly off sometimes and we have ordered that all chisels with 'mushroom' heads must be taken to the blacksmith and made over.

"Ladders that slip on concrete floors have also injured several men so now we equip the bottom of each ladder with blocks of basswood making it impossible for them to slip. Ladders for use on wooden floors are fitted with steel spikes to give a firm hold on the floor.

"The men are careless too about using files and other tools without handles. Recently one of them was hurt by having the sharp end of the file forced backward against his abdomen. This man is now demonstrating how to avoid such accidents by the use of a file with a handle.

"All the machinery in our shops, buss saws, lathes, planers, etc., is being equipped with guards to prevent injuries to employes."

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD QUITS COAL TRADE

Announces, Without Explanation, It Will Sell Its Holdings in Anthracite Companies.

STEEL STOCK MAY GO, TOO

System Supposed to be Confining Itself to Transportation to Avoid Prosecution.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announced to-day its intention to sell all its property interests in anthracite coal companies, some of which have been attached to the system almost forty years. Coming with the pending negotiations for the sale of its $22,000,000 of Cambria Steel Company holdings, to-day's announcement was regarded generally in railroad and financial circles as evidence that the company intended to divest itself of all its properties extraneous to transportation.

The action of the road, it is understood, is taken to avert Government prosecution. Although the Federal authorities have not taken any action against the Pennsylvania the fact that other roads have been made the defendants in suits has led to the belief that such action might be started. The formal announcement given out from the company's office offered no reason for the decision. It follows:

The President of the Pennsylvania Railroad announces that the Board of Directors has decided to sell its security holdings in the anthracite coal companies, which have been attached to its system for nearly forty years. The Susquehanna Coal Company is the principal operating company and selling agency for these companies.

In taking this action, the Pennsylvania is following the lead of the Lehigh Valley and the Lackawanna, both of which companies have disposed of their security holdings in anthracite mining companies.

Although it has been held by the Supreme Court that under the commodities clause of the Hepburn act a stock ownership of coal companies by railroad companies is not a direct or indirect interest in the commodity in the meaning of the act, the close connection between coal-carrying railroads and coal-mining companies always has been a target for public attack.

According to word from Washington, the Department of Justice has on hand an active campaign to dissociate the so-called hard coal railroads from their coal properties. Suits are pending against the Reading and Lackawanna under the anti-trust law. The application of the commodities clause of the Interstate Commerce act to the Erie and the Lehigh Valley has been under consideration.

Compared with the other anthracite roads, the Pennsylvania's coal holdings are regarded as small.

The last annual report of the Pennsylvania showed that it had invested $8,136,000 in the Susquehanna Coal Company, $10,002 in the Mineral Railroad and Mining Company, $25,000 in the Summit Branch Mining Company, and $4,000 in the Lykens Valley and Railroad Company. The road's Susquehanna holdings represented $6,000,000 in 5 per cent. certificates and $2,136,000 in stock.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—It was stated in the Department of Justice to-night that no communication had been received from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company announcing its purpose to separate the railroad corporation from its coal mine affiliations and their business. The Attorney General, it was said, regarded the Pennsylvania as being essentially in the same position as the Reading and believed that the announcement of the Pennsylvania voluntarily made to undertake to separate the coal properties from the business of the common carrier was a distinct recognition of the strength of the Government case against the Reading.

It therefore was more than ordinarily gratifying to the Attorney General and the department officials associated with him, according to the statement made, to learn of the purpose of the Pennsylvania company, and it encouraged them to believe that the impregnability of the Government argument in the prosecution of the Reading case would appear when the case was tried, and that eventually the principle would be established that a common carrier must not have a monopoly in any line of outside business against the interests of competition and the public.

FORTY SEEK $7,000,000.

They Will Fight for Estate of Abel Stearns of Los Angeles.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—The estate of Abel Stearns of Los Angeles, valued at $7,000,000, will be contested for by forty New England relatives when the question of its distribution comes up in the California city on Dec. 5.

Mr. Stearns died forty years ago, leaving property, consisting principally of Los Angeles real estate, to his widow, Mrs. Arcadia Stearns Baker, who died intestate in Los Angeles a year ago. The New England heirs have engaged former Judge J. W. McKinley to represent them in the court proceedings.

Lynched Negro, Condemned Dead.

HINCHCLIFFE, Miss., Sept. 26.—Walter Brownlee, negro, accused of attacking the wife of a white farmer near here, was taken from the town prison at Marks early yesterday by a mob and hanged. Opinion was divided as to the guilt of the negro, and at a mass meeting held later resolutions were adopted in condemnation of the lynching.

McCORMICK STATION CLOSED

$50,000 Spent in Experiments on Aeroplane Construction.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Harold F. McCormick's costly station at Cicero, maintained for testing methods of aeroplane construction, has been closed. Some of the equipment, which can be used for hydo-aeroplanes, is being shipped to the McCormick estate at Lake Forest. The rest is being sold, and it is believed that this ends the efforts made by Mr. McCormick for the last two years to produce an aerial machine that would be safer and more efficient than any model heretofore evolved.

Announcement of Mr. McCormick's intention to abandon Cicero was made at a luncheon of the Aero Club to-day. Failures of models from which much had been hoped is believed to be mainly responsible for this decision. He lately has become an enthusiast on flying boats, and this also is believed to have influenced him in quitting the Cicero field.

It is estimated that at least $50,000 has been spent at the experiment station. The plant has occupied three buildings, and expensive machinery has been installed. On one design alone, the machine which has become known as the umbrella plane, $25,000 was spent. This plane was constructed in the belief that its stability could be maintained automatically. Another machine dubbed "the mustard plaster," because of its unusual form, also was being tried out.

Mr. McCormick is a son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller.

WIDOW GUILTY OF MURDER.

Killed Husband in Sleep After He Let Son Strike Her.

FULTON, Mo., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Susan Ross, who has been on trial here for the murder of her husband, J. H. Ross, was found guilty to-day of murder in the second degree. The jury fixed the penalty at ten years' imprisonment. The case went to the jury yesterday.

Ross was murdered as he slept. A revolver with which he was shot was found hidden under a rug in the room. His son Ernest, 17 years old, first was arrested, but was released, and a charge was made against the widow.

The son testified at the trial that he had struck his mother, and the defense dwelt on the turmoil that had prevailed in the family, and stated that the son had mistreated his mother without hindrance from his father. If Mrs. Ross killed her husband, it was argued, she was insane when she fired the shot.

RILEY IN CHINATOWN TO STOP GAMBLING

Waldo Sends Capt. Tierney to Greenwich Street Station After His Raids.

LAHEY ASKED TO EXPLAIN

Commissioner Announces That There Will Be No Loosening of the Gaynor Lid—Kline Satisfied.

Commissioner of Police Rhinelander Waldo made it clear yesterday that the lid placed on New York by Mayor Gaynor was not going to be pried loose or eased any by his permission. The Commissioner announced that in the remaining days of his office he was going to continue to suppress gambling and enforce the excise laws.

This news from headquarters, together with the Commissioner's trip to Chinatown and the removal of a Captain, a sergeant, and a detective for permitting gambling houses to exist there, has renewed curiosity in the future policy of Mayor Adolph L. Kline.

The Mayor saw the Commissioner yesterday, but the Chinatown raid and the suspension of Capt. Frank A. Tierney under charges were not discussed, it was said. The Mayor saw the drill of police recruits at the Twelfth Regiment Armory, and Commissioner Waldo, who was there also, accompanied him downtown.

The Mayor later in the day was asked about the situation. He was told that common rumor in the city was that the gamblers and proprietors of gaming houses were counting the hours until the lid was removed and that they fully expected to open at once. He was also told that gamblers were saying that Waldo would have to get out of the way.

"I don't know anything about that," the Mayor said. "The gamblers can't figure me for a minute."

"Well, are you satisfied with Waldo?" he was asked.

"I have been," said the Mayor, and he paused, "and I am at present. I don't know anything about this Chinatown matter. It has not been brought to my attention yet."

While the Mayor was professing ignorance of the latest development in the police administration, Commissioner Waldo was busy. He had Deputy Commissioner Newburger hard at work on the official conduct of Inspector Lahey, in charge of the Second Inspection District. This investigation followed a long conference between Waldo and Lahey. The Inspector had been on an eighteen-hour leave when the Commissioner made his nocturnal visit to Chinatown and found three gambling houses. The Commissioner demanded of Lahey how those places could be fitted up as gambling houses in the district without the Inspector's knowledge. Whatever Waldo may have deduced from his interview with Lahey he did not divulge, but immediately turned over to Deputy Commissioner Newburger such information as he possessed. It is expected that Newburger will report to Waldo as soon as possible, but what action may be taken by Waldo then is problematical.

Meanwhile Capt. Tierney, Sergt. Owen J. Keegan, attached to the office of Inspector Lahey and Detective Louis Gray of Lahey's staff, face charges before the Trial Board. Their cases are expected to come up on Tuesday.

While the officers were stripped of their police powers on Thursday night by Commissioner Waldo they were in a measure restored yesterday. Capt. Tierney, who has been in charge of the Elizabeth Street Station, has been transferred to the Greenwich Street Station and Capt. Dominick Riley put in Tierney's place. Riley's orders are to clean up Chinatown.

Riley relieves Lieut. Brenner, who was temporarily in command after Commissioner Waldo posted the notice on the Elizabeth Street blotter that Tierney, Keegan, and Gray were suspended.

When the Commissioner and two friends found the fully equipped gambling houses at 18, 26 and 26½ Pell Street, they were temporarily halted by the ice box doors which sheltered the gaming rooms. Capt. Tierney had joined the "sightseers," and when the keys to the suspected rooms were not produced, Commissioner Waldo gave Tierney five minutes to get the door opened. At the expiration of four minutes he again called on Tierney, and the doors were opened. He did not threaten Tierney with the loss of his Captaincy, but he did tell him that he would not command that precinct longer. He made good his threat and Tierney is out of Chinatown.

This rebuke to Tierney has surprised the police, because when Inspector John Daly cleaned up Chinatown, Tierney was commended. Waldo's first dissatisfaction with Chinatown was evinced three weeks ago on his return from Coney Island. He went through Chinatown and saw a few things that displeased him. He waited a reasonable length of time, and Thursday night's motor car trip was the result.

Yesterday the theory was advanced that the raided Chinatown joints were "show places," and fitted up as "gambling hells" for the edification of the "rubberneck" wagon tourists who go through Chinatown. Commissioner Waldo disposed of this theory. He described the houses visited as gambling houses, and said that while there was no evidence of gambling, there was undisputed evidence that the places were prepared for fan tan and other Chinatown gambling operations.

Another phase of the effort to keep gambling suppressed was shown when charges were preferred by Deputy Commissioner Newberger against Capt. August Kuhne of the Lenox Avenue station. These charges developed after raids conducted by Newburger in resorts at 135th Street and Lenox Avenue. The charges against Kuhne are failure to maintain proper discipline in his command and failure to report gambling.

The Lenox Avenue raids resulted in the arrest of thirty-four prisoners. Thirty-one of these were fined $10 each as common gamblers, and three others charged with maintaining gambling resorts were held for trial.

The Chinatown raid has excited the Tenderloin, and it is asking itself what is going to happen next. Bridge players and poker players in upper New York have been confidently predicting that the lid would be taken off before the election. Stuss game operators on the east side are said to have anticipated this, and opened their games. The Chinatown operations were said to be the test case, and that the Kline policy would be "tried on the dog."

The saloon men also have expected some relief from Mayor Gaynor's enforcement of the 1 o'clock law. Mayor Kline was quoted as favoring a relaxation of the restaurant regulations to permit them to remain open until 2 o'clock instead of 1 as at present. Commissioner Waldo stopped speculation on this. He announced that he would enforce the 1 o'clock rule unless the places had all-night licenses.

The result of this was the rumor that Mayor Kline would issue more all-night licenses, and applications have been filed in City Hall for them. Among those who applied yesterday were the Shanley Company, Forty-third Street and Broadway; Churchill's, at Broadway and Forty-ninth Street; Reisenweber's, at Eighth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street; the Café de Paris, Forty-second Street and Broadway; Maxim's Hotel in Thirty-ninth Street; Café Raub Company, Brooklyn; the Kaiserhof, Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street, and Bustanoby's in Thirty-ninth Street.

The Mayor has not indicated that he will grant more all-night licenses, but the prediction is freely made that he will.

KLINE AT POLICE DRILL.

500 New Men Being Instructed by Regular Army Officer.

Mayor Kline saw 500 recruits for the Police Department being drilled for the service yesterday in the Twelfth Regiment Armory and came away with Commissioner Waldo enthusiastic over the modern idea of police instruction. He was delighted with the progress Capt. Koehler of the regular army has made with the men. The instruction of the men in foot movements and the teaching of them to stand in the position of soldiers has been under way for about five weeks. The Mayor said the selection of Capt. Koehler, a West Point man, was a happy one.

Chief Magistrate William McAdoo instructed 125 of the recruits in court practice at Headquarters in the afternoon. The Magistrate's lecture was on how to present a police case in court. Under his direction a mock trial was held. The class of 500 has been divided into four law sections. The Magistrate will deliver three more lectures at Headquarters.

The next lesson of the probationers will be given by Inspector Cornelius F. Cahalane of the Fifth Inspection District, who will show the new men how to make an arrest.

MURET DENIES PLAN TO ACCUSE SCHMIDT

But District Attorney Keeps Him from Federal Authorities to Hear His Evidence.

ALIENISTS WITH THE PRIEST

He Talks Freely of His Early Life, but Will Not Let Counsel Hear His Story.

A rumor spread yesterday that Ernest A. Muret, the self-styled dentist, now in the Tombs, would turn State's evidence against Hans Schmidt, the confessed slayer of Anna Aumuller. Muret late last night denied it, and from his cell sent out this statement:

I wish to deny emphatically that I am in the remotest way able to aid the State in one of the cases against Schmidt. Even if I should be punished to the full extent of the law for keeping the baby revolver in my drawer, I would be utterly unable to aid the State in order to free myself

Yours very truly,
ERNEST MURET.

All attempts to connect Muret with the murder case have failed, but several incidents yesterday made it seem probable that the self-styled dentist knew something of the killing of Anna Aumuller that he has hitherto denied.

Earlier in the day neither Muret himself or anyone connected with the District Attorney's office, would deny the rumor, and Mr. Whitman went so far as to admit that Muret "might be useful" to him. He would not say whether the "dentist" had promised a confession or only valuable evidence. Muret would see no one in his cell in the Tombs yesterday, but the question, "Will you admit or deny the rumor that you intend to confess to a part in the murder of Anna Aumuller or that you will give evidence against Schmidt?" was written and sent to him, and in reply the prisoner wrote, "I won't deny it."

The fact that the Sullivan law case against Muret was not disposed of in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday, added strength to the report of his turning State's evidence in the murder case. According to the original plan, Muret was to have been arraigned in Special Sessions yesterday for sentence and the court was to have suspended the sentence so that the prisoner could be taken into custody by officers of the Federal Court, who want him for counterfeiting.

When Muret came up for sentence Deputy Assistant District Attorney Willmot asked that the case be delayed two weeks. He said that District Attorney Whitman wished to confer with the man before the Federal authorities took charge of him. Accordingly, the Federal warrant was lodged with the Warden of the Tombs to be served when Muret's Sullivan law case is disposed of.

It was recalled yesterday that Schmidt was said to have spent several hours in Muret's apartment shortly before he murdered the woman.

Dr. George H. Kirby, Director of the clinic for suspected insanity cases at the Manhattan State Hospital on Blackwell's Island, and Assistant Professor of Mental Diseases in the Medical College of New York University, was called in yesterday to examine Schmidt by the District Attorney. Doctors Carlos F. MacDonald and William Mabon, the alienists who first questioned the priest, met yesterday with Dr. Kirby and the three put Schmidt through another test. They were closeted with him in a room in the District Attorney's office for more than an hour, and, when the examination was over, although no intimation of the opinions of the doctors concerning Schmidt's sanity would be given out, it was said that the priest had talked more freely than ever before.

The questions asked him were confined to events of his early life in Germany and his motive for entering the priesthood of the Catholic Church. Schmidt's lawyer, Alphonse G. Koeble, was invited by Assistant District Attorney James A. Delahanty to attend the examination, but he was not present, owing, it was said, to Schmidt's special request. His reason for the request, said Schmidt, was that he did not care to have anyone except the doctors know all the details of his early life.

The alienists will not see Schmidt again until next week. Assistant District Attorney Delahanty arranged this because he expects reports from the priest's native town of Aschaffenburg, Germany, concerning Schmidt's early life and family that will be of material aid in determining his sanity. Dr. Kirby will have a private interview with Schmidt next Monday, and all three doctors will resume their examination next Tuesday. Mr. Whitman said yesterday that he expected a full report from the alienists by the end of next week.

The letters Schmidt is said to have written Anna Aumuller were translated yesterday from the German, but Inspector Faurot, in whose keeping they are, refused to make any of them public. He would not say whether or not they had any bearing on the murder case.

Coroner Feinberg said yesterday that he had not received a report of those who had been served with summonses to appear for the inquest jury on Oct. 3, but that he expected to have the report this morning and select his jury at once.

It was said yesterday in the District Attorney's office that the trial of Schmidt for murder was expected to begin on Oct. 28.

FINES BLANCK FOR LOCKS.

Court Imposes Smallest Penalty and Chides Inspectors.

For locking the doors of a factory in which 150 girl employés were at work at 70 Fifth Avenue, Max Blanc, one of the proprietors of the Triangle Shirtwaist Company, was fined $20 by Chief Justice Russell in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday.

The law under which Chief Justice Russell imposed the fine was enacted after the disastrous fire in which 147 girls and men lost their lives in the plant of the Triangle Shirtwaist Company, when it occupied a loft on Washington Place. Chief Justice Russell imposed the minimum fine allowed under the law and apologized to Mr. Blanck because he was compelled to impose any fine at all. The Chief Justice said that the State Labor Bureau and the factory Inspectors should have devised a type of lock which would be satisfactory to them and at the same time would protect proprietors of factories from theft.

The case against Blanck was presented by Walter J. Dugan, an Inspector of the Bureau of Fire Prevention, who said that he had found the doors of the Triangle Shirtwaist Company's factory locked in such a manner that the 150 girl employes in the building would have been caught in a trap in case of fire.

"You seem to have shown every disposition to abide by the law," said Chief Justice Russell in finding Blanck guilty, "and I find that Labor Bureau Inspectors passed your locks regularly before this inspection by an agent of the Bureau of Fire Prevention. It seems to have been a case of a failure of the two sets of Inspectors to agree as to what constitutes a dangerous lock under the law."

The fire-prevention law provides a maximum penalty of a $50 fine with imprisonment for twenty days. It says that no locks of any kind shall be used in factories during working hours. Magistrates Kernochan and Herrman sat with Chief Justice Russell during the trial.

The Man Who Saw Wrong

Greatest story of artist life since "Trilby"

By JACOB FISHER, Author of "The Cradle of the Deep," etc.

A story that grips the imagination from the very outset. A simple plot, seemingly—two artists competing for a great prize and using the same model—but it almost ends in a tragedy. Each artist delineates the girl's character differently, and each for a different purpose. What those purposes were and how the whole affair terminates makes one of the most absorbing stories you have read in many a day.

Fanny of the Forty Frocks

A potpourri of politics and fun

By FRANCES AYMAR MATHEWS, Author of "My Lady Peggy Goes to Town," etc.

Fanny was poor, very poor, and had but one frock. But she didn't sit by and mope and mourn over her apparent misfortune—not Fanny. "It's the call of forty frocks for me," she said one day. "I'm going to Europe." And she did go to Europe, and soon had her forty frocks. Some unusual experiences, too, of course, but Fanny had a sense of humor that carried her over the rough spots. Read about Fanny and you'll see the same sunshine that Fanny saw behind the cloud. It's a story that will do you good.

The Fate of Felix Brand

More Fascinating than "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"

By FLORENCE FINCH KELLY, Author of "The Delafield Affair," etc.

Felix Brand deliberately chose the worst side of his nature, cherished it and tried to ignore and cast out the other, the better side. It was a tremendous battle, but the odds were against him, the odds being a strong-minded woman, who fought equally hard to redeem him from his fate. If you like a quick-moving, powerful tale of intense dramatic interest read this fascinating story of Felix Brand.

THE BUSINESS OF LIFE

"The Business of Life" is the season's greatest novel. It is a big story of real people—people who become living, breathing realities to you, who enthuse and inspire you, who thrill you and grip you and go beneath the surface straight to your heart. "The Business of Life" concerns every man and every woman. It is a story of the problem confronting beautiful Jacqueline Nevers, and which confronts women every day.

"The Business of Life" is a story, charming, fascinating, real and unusual. And it is the greatest work of America's foremost story teller, Robert W. Chambers. The pictures by Charles Dana Gibson are superb.

There are novels and novels. "The Business of Life" rises out of the world of novels like a giant among dwarfs. Read it and you will read it again. Get it at your booksellers. It's an investment in pleasure. $1.40 net.

THE INNER MAN

FROM THE FRENCH OF MICHEL CORDAY AND ARDRE COUVREUR.

By FLORENCE CREWE-JONES

WOULDN'T you like to take a peep into the actual inner workings of the minds of those around you? Your wife, for instance—if you could only know with absolute certainty just what she really thinks of you, wouldn't you take a chance on it? Your business partner—wouldn't you like to know if he were trying to double-cross you on that big deal in which you are both so interested? And that man and woman who think they love each other—would they continue to do so if each could ferret out the secret, inmost thoughts of the other? Assuredly, there would be some big surprises in this old world if everybody had a front-glass window to their brains!

It is a strong mystery story, hinging upon a scientist's discovery of a wonderful serum which so increases the sensibilities of the person using it that he is enabled to perceive the secret inner workings of the human mind.

COMPARING WORLD'S SERIES PLAYERS---GIANTS WIN---HORSE SHOW

FULLERTON'S FIRST COMPARISON SHOWS McINNIS LEADING MERKLE

Gives the Athletics' First Baseman Everything But Speed on the Work of the Season—Says Polo Grounds Man Is One of McGraw's Most Useful Players.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.
Written for The New York Times.

This is the second of a series of twelve preliminary articles in which the contestants in the world's series are discussed critically and impartially. It is to be followed by Fullerton's daily reports of the games played in the world's series.

	Merkle.	McInnes.
Speed	.93	.91
Batting	.76	.92
Waiting	.80	.81
Throwing	.88	.90
Fielding	.72	.74
Average	.81 4-5	.83 3-5
Team value	.722	.751

Philadelphia's Athletics draw first blood in the comparison of the men who make the teams. A strict and severe study of Fred Merkle and Stuffy McInnis reveals the fact that, for the purpose of playing baseball, in the regular season McInnis is the better man, having advantages in the departments of the game which count for the most, especially in batting, and that increases his advantage for world's series purposes. The only place in which the Giant first baseman shows a superiority is in speed on the bases, and this largely is offset by the fact that McInnis is on the bases much oftener because of his greater hitting power, and the fact that he reaches first base in faster time even than his rival. Merkle shows a paper superiority on the bases, being a fine base runner from any standpoint and one of the most useful of McGraw's men.

In speed I have calculated both the ability to sprint to first, quick starting from first, and speed in stealing and traveling around the bases. There is so little to choose between the relative sprinting ability of the two men that it is negligible. McInnis, of course, gets away from the plate quicker than Merkle can, but this is offset by Merkle's quicker starting from first. I believe that McInnis can run from base to base a trifle faster, but he loses more ground turning a base than Merkle does, and does not take the bags as well in full stride.

Where McInnis Excels.

In batting McInnis is greatly Merkle's superior, and besides that Merkle has not been hitting this season as he normally should do. He has been around or below the .260 point all season and he has not been hitting good pitching to any great extent, in studying his batting I have been puzzled to find that by Speaker he has been hitting speed, but not reliably, and the fast curve fellows have been troubling him severely. He has not hit the left handers as well as he did last year. McInnis has been going about .320 most of the season, hitting all kinds of pitching, excepting the better of the left handers. The spit ball pitchers, on the face of the returns, have not troubled him as much as they seemed to a couple of years ago. He is a wonderful natural hitter and likely to crack any kind of pitching. I examined the scores of fourteen games in which he batted against Scott, Johnson, Boehling, Wood, Gregg, and Mitchell, and in those fourteen games, practically all low scores, his batting average was just in shade under .300, which is wonderful batting against such pitching.

I took ten games of Merkle against Cheney, Hendrix, Adams, Dickson, and four Philadelphia pitchers, and he batted over .267 in those games, and of the ten games New York scored 5 or more runs in six.

After comparing the values of the men as regular players I studied them from the standpoint of the pitchers that they must face during the coming series. On games (eleven) in which McInnis hit against pitchers of the type of Mathewson, Marquard and Demaree, he batted .274. In fourteen games in which Merkle batted against pitchers of the general style of Bender, Plank and Houck, he batted .177.

Merkle and McInnis on Bases.

Merkle's comparative weakness at bat is somewhat offset by his waiting game and the fact that he gets hit by pitched balls more frequently than does his rival. I was unable to get complete returns as to the number of times each man has reached first base on errors but by collecting data from running accounts of games it appears as if McInnis leads in a comfortable margin in that respect, due to his slightly greater speed in reaching first base.

Before making the comparison of the men as base runners an explanation is due. In the base on balls, hit by pitched balls and stolen base comparisons we must make allowance for the difference of style of play of the two teams. McGraw's men work to reach first by any means whatever, and the hit by pitched ball route is one of their favorites in a pinch. If they cannot hit a pitcher's offerings they resort to waiting and jockeying at the plate and to getting hit by the ball if they can. This hit by pitched ball element may be ignored as far as it concerns the world's series. The umpires in a world's series will not permit batters to take their bases if it is evident they allowed the ball to hit them purposely. In other words world's series umpires enforce the rules much more strictly than they are enforced against the Giants during the regular playing season. Mack's men do not resort to that, nor do they wait as well or jockey as much around the plate as do their rivals; this probably being due to the fact that the majority of them can hit so well they consider it a waste of time.

The other thing to consider is the difference of style in base running. McGraw is an exponent of the "run all the time" game. His men have the speed. It is their best asset and he uses it to the limit. They are caught on the bases a larger percentage of times than the runners of any other major league team, yet at the same time they steal more bases than any other team, with the possible exception of Washington. The Athletics do not start as frequently as do the Giants, depending more upon the hit and run, but they succeed in a larger percentage of attempts at stealing than their rivals do, not because they are better base runners, but because they take more legitimate and less daring chances. We will study more about this when we come to consider the catchers and pitchers who will have to stop the base stealing.

Merkle has a paper lead on McInnis as a base runner, but it is slight. Either man is speedy enough to steal and willing enough to run. I believe McInnis, playing with New York under McGraw, would steal more bases a year than Merkle does now and that if Merkle played under Mack he would not steal as many bases as McInnis now does. In going from first to third there is little to choose between them excepting that Merkle, as stated before, takes the bags in better stride, saves ground and gets there a little more quickly.

The Base Stealing Feature.

Some one has remarked that prohibiting runners from stealing first base is the big handicap of the Giants in winning the world's championship. If they get to first often enough they are quite as dangerous as are the Athletics and we shall see later, in studying the pitchers, that they are likely to have this chance this Fall, so that the base running becomes more important than it has been for the last two world's championship games. In other words, the Giants are easier to stop before they get to first than afterward.

Merkle is scarcely above the average as a defensive first baseman, and has grave faults in playing the bag. He has improved a lot in the last two years, but still handles himself awkwardly on some balls, and still backs up and takes the ball behind the base in many cases. He does not handle the ball nearly as well or as fast to second base as his rival does, does not cover the ground and does not jump for a play with the savage determination of Mack's sensational youngster. Even so, from what I saw of McInnis during the last series in Chicago, it looked as if he had lost some of the fire and dash that won him a place on the team and made him the sensation of the league. He seemed a bit sluggish or disinterested at times, and did not get into play as fast as he did a year ago. Two of his team mates told me this was my imagination, and recalled things he had done, and I was judging him only from a few games. They say he is steadier and just as fast, a little cooler, and therefore more certain.

Merkle never has been an aggressive player, although on an aggressive team. And he has been unfortunate in some ways. His famous blunder won him the undeserved accusation of being bonehead. He made a mistake that has been made by scores, but made it at such a time he became famous. Last Fall he was bitterly scored for failure to catch a pop foul hit by Speaker in the last inning of the final game of the series; a failure which, more than Snodgrass's muff, lost the series for the Giants. The players of both Boston and New York declare that Mathewson claimed the catch and tried to reach the ball, but had no chance to get near it, and drove Merkle away.

Merkle's Weak Point.

That, in my opinion, is his weak point. McInnis, in the same fix, would have tried for the ball anyhow and risked a collision when he saw the pitcher could not reach and catch the fly. Merkle let it fall, showing he lacks the aggressive spirit to some degree.

McInnis is superior in taking throws in any position and from an angle, save alone low throws at his right from near second base. His awkwardness appears due entirely to turning to catch a ball while in the act of turning to get into position. They say in baseball that every man has his pet weakness, and it seems to me to be McInnis's. At the same time Merkle is usually in better position to catch a thrown ball, and does less twisting and twirling around the base, making fewer false starts forward when a ball is hit. McInnis seems impetuous, wild to win, and moves with every ball that is hit, whether there is a chance to get into the play or not, and this very impetuosity leads sometimes to errors. In a world's series to let even one throw get by that should have been stopped or held often leads to disaster.

In figuring the relative value of the men on the basis of the worth of the men to their teams in a seven-game series, such as is at hand, I have reduced the worth of Merkle to 722 on a scale of 1,000 as the limit of ability, and given McInnis 751, an extraordinary difference to be found among first basemen. I calculate this by taking 1,000 as absolutely perfect and 800 as a composite of Chase, Daubert, Konetchy, and Hollitzell, and seeing how near this standard the others come. If any one could field, run, hit, and throw as well as the best of the composite quartet can, he would be rated 800, and you may see how near it McInnis comes. The chief difference is, of course, in hitting strength.

The difference between the individual strengths of those two men is almost too great to be covered by any sheer luck. McInnis ought to outplay him all through the series.

There is another element to study. Two years ago, on the eve of a World's Championship series, McInnes broke his arm—and almost his heart. He was wild to play and, although he was permitted to get into the final game after it was settled and get one put-out, he did not get the chance to play in a real world's series contest. This will act as another spur to urge him to greater effort. Knowing him, it is not necessary to figure that over-anxiety will be likely to affect his work. He isn't built that way. The tighter the pinch and the more important the game the better ball player McInnis is.

Tomorrow we will take up the study of the second basemen, which is one of the hardest of those dope lessons because again we are figuring two totally different styles of players and trying to calculate which is best.

THE ATHLETICS' INFIELD.

Figures Showing How This Great Quartet Has Batted During Season.

In this his third article of comparative figures on the World's series players, Irwin M. Howe, official statistician of the American League, shows how the Athletics infield has batted against the best American League pitchers.

When the Athletics infield comes up for discussion, arguments cease. No fact in present day baseball has been more thoroughly demonstrated to the satisfaction of the great army of fans than the fact that Connie Mack's infield quartet is the greatest combination of recent years. In all around effectiveness it surpasses anything in baseball history. During the last four years the Philadelphia infield has made more hits, more runs, stolen more bases, made more putouts and assists and fewer errors than any other infield combination has ever done in a like period.

In the world's series of 1911 against the Giants the Mack infield hit for a grand average of .307. In that series Davis was at first owing to an injury to McInnis. Most recent figures show McInnis batting .323; Collins, .342; Barry, .268; Baker, .333.

McInnis, the smallest and youngest first baseman in the major leagues, is a regular Mack product. His dexterity in handling thrown balls, his steady fielding, speed of foot and hard hitting have won for him a steady place on the greatest of all infields.

The best all the business is a true expression of the worth of Eddie Collins, Mack's second baseman. There may be infielders as brilliant, batsmen who hit as hard, and base-runners who steal more bases, but none combines all these qualities in so large a measure as the Athletic second baseman. In the field his "pep" and courage are equalled only by his skill. With Jack Barry he helps to form a wonderful team around second base.

Barry, as fielder of the brilliant type, is the lightest hitter of the quartet, but in a pinch is feared as much as any player in the game. At laying down bunts and working the squeeze play Barry has no equal in baseball. He has a habit of hitting much beyond his regular form during important series.

Baker needs no introduction. His title of "Home Run" has been justly earned, and he ranks among the greatest batsmen of recent days. As a fielder he has improved wonderfully during the last two years. He fields, bunts well, gets as many foul flies as any third baseman in the game, and can now handle thrown balls splendidly.

The following tables show how Mack's infield has batted against the best of the American League pitchers:

SALE OF BASEBALL TICKETS.

Only Upper Grand Stand at Polo Grounds Will Be Reserved.

Owing to a misunderstanding which has arisen in regard to the purchase of reserved seats for the coming world's series games at the Polo Grounds Secretary John B. Foster of the New York Club yesterday announced that the rule adopted by the commission in regard to purchasing seats for three games referred only to the special advance sale by the club. It does not include the public sale of reserved seats, which will take place on Monday morning, Oct. 6, the day before the opening game. This sale, which will begin at 9 o'clock, will be conducted on precisely the same lines as last year.

Applications are now being received at the office of the New York Club for reserved seats. The club will allot a certain number for purchase by newspapers and boxholders at the Polo Grounds. In no case will these tickets be sold for single games, each order being necessarily for three games. In case a third game is not played here the money will be refunded. What remains of the reserved seat section will be put on sale Monday morning, Oct. 6, at the Polo Grounds, where seats will be sold for the games separately, the same as last year.

GIANTS GET A PEEK AT REAL PITCHING

Brown Doesn't Allow a Hit—New York Wins Game Off Allen.

Elmer Brown, a scion of the more or less well-known Brown family of Montgomery, Ala., understudied Frank Allen in the pitcher's role at Ebbets Field yesterday, and didn't give the Giants anything like a hit. Brown, who is no relation whatever to the Browns of Hoboken, pitched the last six innings of the game, and if any of the Athletic flingers can spin the ball like E. Brown in the World's Series, it will go hard with the Giants.

Leave it to Bad Bill Dahlen to lock the barn door after the "hoss" has been stolen. Frank Allen didn't have enough speed in the first three innings to propel the ball through a fog, but Dahlen kept him in the box until the Giants had created enough runs to win the game. The final reckoning was 4 to 2.

But speaking about pitching, Jeff Tesreau showed that he was in the pale-pink of condition. He had only one bad inning, when a couple of hits were augmented by a pass and an error and gave the Dodgers their only two runs. Outside of that, the Brooklyns got only two other hits, both unimpressive singles.

Jeff calculates that after the way he pitched yesterday he ought to be in tolerable good shape for the impending setto with the Quaker brethren. He figures that if he can pitch so well in Brooklyn, he ought to be able to pitch even better in Philadelphia. There's something about that Brooklyn place that makes ballplayers tired. The Dodgers have been tired all season.

Fred Snodgrass opened on Allen in the first inning with a smash to right, but as he was rounding first base he pulled a tendon and had to limp out of the game, Claudius Cooper of Texas taking his place. Herzog singled, and when Fletcher bounded a hit off Red Smith's shoes Cooper scored. In the second inning, with one down, Merkle walked and Tesreau sent him to third with a single. Cooper shot a hit to centre, scoring Merkle.

In the third inning Burns was safe on Smith's ludicrous fumble. Shafer got a pass. Murray singled to centre, scoring Burns. Shafer tried to steal third, but was nipped in the operation. Chief Meyers then crashed a double to right, scoring Murray. Meyers did his nerve with him, for he also tried to steal third and demised in the undertaking. Right there the Giants lost a couple of runs by trying to steal third, for following Meyers's out Merkle singled to centre and ended the inning by floating a rocket to Moran.

Brooklyn got its pair in the third. Kirkpatrick, batting for Allen, struck out, and Moran walked. He went to third on Cutshaw's single to right. Stengel rolled to Herzog, who tossed the ball to Shafer to force Cutshaw, and Shafer muffed the ball. Collins forced Stengel at second and Moran scored. Daubert walked, filling the bases. Smith singled to short, scoring Cutshaw. The score:

LARRY DOYLE INJURED.

Giant Captain Runs Automobile Into Tree and Wrenches Shoulder.

Larry Doyle, the Captain of the Giants, was injured in an automobile accident on Jerome Avenue late on Thursday night, and will be out of the game for at least a week. Doyle was driving his own machine and had Arthur Fromme, the pitcher, for a companion. As they were rounding a curve, returning to the city, the fog was so thick that Doyle could see only a few feet ahead of the car.

He was going along slowly, and the machine crashed into a tree at the side of the road. Fromme was pitched over the wind shield, but Doyle stuck to the wheel, and when the collision came his right shoulder was wrenched. The injury gave him much pain, and it was at first thought that a bone in the shoulder had been broken.

Manager McGraw said yesterday that Doyle's shoulder was badly wrenched and bruised, and that he would be out for five or six days. Doyle's shoulder has been bandaged, and he believes that he will be able to take part in the world's series, which begins on Oct. 7.

CHARGER WINS AT MORRISTOWN SHOW

Champ Clark Defeats Miss Atterbury's Kildare Among the Saddle Horses.

Military mounts proved to be the most important feature of the second day's session of the Morristown Field Club horse show yesterday, and a popular victory was the outcome of the work of the judges, who announced that W. S. Mitchell's bay gelding Charger was the best of those shown. Capt. W. A. Bryant of Essex Troop, Newark, managed to corral second honors with First Call, while Saginor, the entry of Thomas B. Clarke, Jr., of this city gathered in the yellow ribbon for third place.

Some little dissatisfaction was manifest with the decisions in several of the classes, and particularly when the ribbons were given in the saddle horse division for mounts up to carrying 200 pounds, and again in the combination harness and saddle ponies. Among the first named quite the surprise of the series was in store for the railbirds when Miss H. D. Atterbury's many time winner Kildare was placed second to Mrs. Charles M. Allaire's Champ Clark. This was followed later in the afternoon by an unpopular decision when Frills, a 12.3 black mare, entered by Mrs. William P. Jenks was put so far down the list of awards that she got but fourth place.

Lion Heart, a gelding, accorded second honors in the class for ladies' hunters, which was ridden by Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue (Miss Caroline Bryce) gave a demonstration of bad temper, but just prior to the time when he was to be placed in the hands of the judges, with the aid of several grooms, he was quieted down and shown to such advantage as to gain the red. In this class Moonblossom, ridden by Miss Mary Pyne of Bernardsville, gathered in the chief honors, while third place was accounted for by a stable mate, Vanity.

Donnybrook Farm's Merry Widow made the best impression in the hunters' class, which opened up the afternoon's proceedings, and which called out the largest field of the session. The entry of the O'Donohue's was closely pressed by Isnow, which was sent in by K. B. Schley of Far Hills, whose performance was considered to have been excellent, while W. Symmes Richardson's Ironmonger received third.

Otto H. Kahn scored in the harness pairs with Rocket and Lord Algy, two of the four which had won on the preceding day in the four-in-hand. Moses G. Byers furnished second and fourth pairs, with Rex and Signal and Signal and Duke, respectively, while Bexley Hocombe filled third position with Margaret and Dick, which had figured in the fours' class on the first day.

There was plenty of quality evident when the ponies in harness were trotted out. Mrs. William P. Jenks sent in the winner in Kemble King, a brown gelding of 13.3 hands, which carried himself with all the manners of a well-trained roadster. Miss Anne B. Bradley scored in the horse and runabout division with Salt, a roan gelding, which beat Charles M. Fleischmann's Live Oak and Walter D. Briggs's Sport. In the saddle horse class for ladies to ride, Miss H. D. Atterbury's Patricia tallied her second win of the show.

S. Bryce Wing showed the best of the qualified hunters up to carrying 190 pounds to hounds when Brampton was placed at the top of the list over The Whale, Ivanhoe, and Lenox. Mrs. Paul Moore's Kara scored the blue among the harness horses, which were shown before a lady's phaeton, and in which ladies were the drivers. Arthur Whitney's Carnival was the best of those shown in the local saddle horse class.

The Woodbury G. Langdon prize for the best collection of three horses, the property of one exhibitor, was won by Otto H. Kahn, when he sent in Emier, Comet, and Rocket. This trio were awarded the palm over the entries of W. D. Henry of Sewickley and Moses G. Byers.

Teneriffe and Mahlon Wilkes, W. M. V. Hoffman's roadsters, had matters all their own way in the class for single

HARPER'S BOOKS

The Way Home
By the Author of "The Inner Shrine." (Basil King)

This new novel, "The Way Home," touches greater depths of human nature than even "The Wild Olive" or "The Street Called Straight." It deals with the most important things of life, single life, married life, and church life, and portrays the inner motives of a self-centered man. It is the story of the struggle between the spiritual and the material in the average man—a series of tense, emotional situations in which a strong man who was far from being a hero found himself. He found, too, a tower of strength in the love of the woman he had misunderstood.

The Iron Trail
By Rex Beach

Of course you remember Kipling's "If" about the man who could keep his head in every emergency. Well, here he is, the hero, as Rex Beach has drawn him in his new Alaskan story. There were plenty of things to stand up against, too; other men's scheming, lack of funds, storms, glaciers, and misrepresentation. But he won his fight against Nature as he won the heart of an unusual heroine. The scene of their wild wooing on the bridge threatened by the flood is more dramatic than anything the author has ever written.

The Desired Woman
By Will N. Harben

"Full of strength and interest from the beginning to the end," says The New York World.

We ourselves believe that this is by far the best book Will Harben has ever written. In its pages life in Georgia of to-day is encountered in all its intensity. It is the Georgia of great mills and big enterprises, of heavy speculation and the sophistications of people in great cities, as well as of simple mountain folk and their homely ways. Its keynote is the inevitable triumph of love and tolerance, the far-spreading influence of good impulses.

The Golden Rule Dollivers
By Margaret Cameron

This story is pure fun. Two incorrigible optimists, when they became owners of a touring motor car, tried to share their pleasure with others. Their kindness led them into all kinds of predicaments. This novel has a laughter-compelling quality about it that is irresistible and adds greatly to the reputation the author has made as an inventor of humorous situations.

The Argyle Case
By Arthur Hornblow

This story is the novelization of one of the most successful plays, and is based upon the romantic experiences of the famous detective, William J. Burns, in bringing a certain band of criminals to justice by his unusual methods. The love story which runs through it is simple and delightful.

OUIMET DEFEATS CHAMPION TRAVERS

Open Golf Title Holder Leads Massachusetts to Victory in Lesley Cup Contest.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 26.—Champion met champion to-day, and Francis Ouimet, America's national open golf title holder, added to his recent laurels by vanquishing Jerome D. Travers, the national amateur champion. Their match went twenty holes of varying golf before the youth prevailed.

Ouimet's victory marked a clean sweep for the players of the Boston district against those of New York in the singles division of the preliminary tie for the Lesley Cup. It was the first time in Lesley Cup competition that any city had won all the matches in a division of play. New York had won three times out of five foursomes matches in the forenoon, and the intercity score for the day was, Boston, 12; New York, 3. The local team will meet the Philadelphia team, the present holders of the Lesley Cup, in the final round to-morrow.

A gallery of one thousand persons, which spread over the links of the Country Club after the Ouimet-Travers match to the entire neglect of the other nine matches, became so overwrought on the green at the twentieth hole as to commit what President R. C. Watson of the United States Golf Association declared to be "the worst exhibition of partisan feeling in American golfing history, and a disgrace to the sport."

The outbreak followed Travers's ill-fortune in driving into a trap beyond the twentieth hole on his approach. The champions had tied at 18 holes, and had halved the nineteenth, and Ouimet had reached the green in the twentieth with two strokes. Travers's mishap was appreciated to be the deciding break, and the gallery, or a small portion of it, gave vent to its feelings by clapping of hands. When Travers came on the green he looked the crowd in the face for a moment and then turned to the business of extricating his ball. He almost trapped himself again, then failed on a twelve-foot putt, and saw the match go to Ouimet when the latter sank a two-foot putt after failing to run down one of eight feet for a three.

Ouimet outnerved Travers to-day, as he did the British professionals, Vardon and Ray, in the memorable national open championship play-off on the same course last Saturday. Starting poorly, he was outdriven and outputted by Travers in the early holes. Both Ouimet and Travers had opportunity to win on the nineteenth, but Ouimet overran his first putt. Travers missed a putt of eight feet, and they halved the hole for five. Then came the twentieth, which was won by Ouimet. The summary:

Play-Off in Veterans' Tie.

By defeating Herman Wendel of Philadelphia, in the play-off of the tie for the gross prize for 36 holes in the Seniors' tournament at the Apawamis Club yesterday, Walter Fairbanks of Denver, becomes the possessor of the gross trophy. Fairbanks handed in a score of 43—40—83, as against 42—45—88. Wendel, however, has a consolation in view of the fact that he becomes the winner of the second best net score for the first day, originally won by Wilson P. Foss of Deal, but as Foss captured the award for the best net score at 36 holes, he had to leave vacant the first day's second net.

British Golfers Coming Next Year.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the English golf experts, to-day twice defeated John Harland and J. C. Wilson, local professionals. In the first game the score stood: Vardon, 71; Ray, 72; Harland, 77; Wilson, 77. The second game resulted: Vardon and Ray, 71; Harland and Wilson, 76. It was reported that Lord Northcliffe, patron of the English players, was here to-day and stated that the team would be entered in the American open championship again next Spring.

International Golf Match.

There will be a thirty-six-hole exhibition match played to-day at Canoe Brook Golf and Country Club, Summit, N. J., between Alec Smith of Wykagyl and Orrin Terry, the home professional, against Louis Tellier of La Boulie, France, and Wilfred Reid of Banstead Downs, England.

Baby Reliance Wins Race.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 26.—The Baby Reliance, driven by Jay Smith of Algenax, Mich., won the first heat to-day of the 7½ miles national speed contest for motor boats, the principal event of the two days' regatta of the Kansas City Yacht Club. The Baby Reliance swept across the finish line five lengths in front of The Tango, while the Oregon Kid finished a poor third after her driver, S. F. Brock of Portland, Ore., had been precipitated into the river on a turn in the course. He was uninjured. The remaining two heats of the race will be run to-morrow.

MARSTON RETAINS LEAD.

Schoolboy Will Play Cheeseman in Final Round on Essex Links.

As the result of the semi-final round of the invitation tournament of the Essex County Country Club yesterday, Maxwell R. Marston of Baltusrol will meet J. E. Cheeseman of the home club in the thirty-six final test to-day.

Marston, the medalist, advanced through accomplishing the defeat of F. W. Dyer of Montclair in a match which was carried to the nineteenth hole. Meanwhile C. W. O'Connor of the home contingent advanced to the semi-final by trouncing Howard Giffin of Baltusrol, 2 up and 1 to play. Marston then took O'Connor into camp by a 4 and 3 margin.

Cheeseman first dealt with Dr. D. W. Granberry of Baltusrol and triumphed by 4 and 2, Robert I. Barr meanwhile beating Theodore Keer of Baltusrol, 3 and 2. Then Cheeseman eliminated Barr by a 2 and 1 margin.

PRIZE FOR MRS. GILKES.

Siwanoy Golfer Placed First After Three-Cornered Tie.

Mrs. A. B. Gilkes of Siwanoy, formerly Miss Frances Gwyer, won the net prize in the one-day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association over the links of the Brooklawn Country Club, near Bridgeport, yesterday with a card of 104, 14-90, but it was not without considerable discussion, for her 104 was the same as the gross of Mrs. Burnside Winslow of New Haven, and of Miss Georgianna M. Bishop of the home club, former national and metropolitan champion. Miss Bishop refused to consider herself in the tie, however, in view of the fact that she acted as Chairman of the committee in charge. As Mrs. Winslow's net of 95 was second best the situation resolved itself into a question as to whether or not Mrs. Gilkes and Mrs. Winslow should play off, for they had the two prizes between them.

To end the question and settle matters without difficulty, they decided not to take the trouble, so Mrs. Gilkes took the net and left the gross for Mrs. Winslow. It was a noticeable fact that not a member of the Executive Committee of the W. M. G. A. was present.

McMAHON DEFEATS LEWIS.

New York A. C. Gunner Wins Cup at Long Beach Shoot.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BEACH, L. I., Sept. 26.—D. F. McMahon, Chairman of the Shooting Committee of the New York Athletic Club, lowered the colors of "Bart" Lewis, the Western champion, to-day in the preliminary shoot of the metropolitan trapshooting championship here. In the event for the Hotel Nassau Cup, the Winged Foot marksman led the field with a total of 96 out of a possible 100 targets. He then won the special shoot at 150 targets with a total of 143.

The Western expert finished second in both events. He had a total of 93 in the 100 "bird" shoot as did also S. G. Vance. Continuing into the 150 string, Lewis made 138 as did also Mr. Vance. The gunners then matched for the choice of the prizes.

Two women were on the firing line to-day. The better work was done by Mrs. F. F. Rogers who broke 90 out of a possible 150 targets. The other shooter was Miss R. Browne who had a total of 61 out of a possible 125 targets. H. H. Stevens was the high professional with a total of 139 out of a possible 150 targets. To-morrow the metropolitan championship will be decided.

NEGRO HEAVIES TO BOX.

Jeannette and Langford Matched for Madison Square Garden.

Manager Gibson of the Garden A. C. last night matched Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette, negro heavyweights, for a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden on Friday night, Oct. 3. The men will box for 55 per cent. of the receipts, which will be equally divided.

Jeannette has been working for several days at Hoboken, and will begin hard training to-day. Langford has been training for a week past at Boston in preparation for the bout with Gunboat Smith, which was called off by the State Athletic Commission.

Joe Woodman, manager of Langford, announced last night that the Bostonian would come to New York in a few days and complete his training at Woodlawn Inn.

Straight Heats at Mineola.

Straight heats ruled in the three races carded yesterday at the Mineola Fair. In the opening event for 2:26 trotters, Cecilia Dillon, the bay mare, driven by her owner, A. J. Cornwell, winner of the 2:30 class on the opening day repeated her performance and was easily the class, winning handily each time. The 2:18 trot produced a series of close finishes, but the staying qualities of Fort Orange Lad, a bay gelding, served it in good stead and it won out in the final drives. In the 2:20 pace, Ashlook was the winner. The summary:

SEASON OPENS FOR BIG COLLEGE TEAMS

All Members of "Big Five" Have Preliminary Games on Gridiron To-day.

Football Games To-day.

Yale vs. Holy Cross, at New Haven.
Harvard vs. Maine, at Cambridge.
Princeton vs. Rutgers, at Princeton.
Cornell vs. Colgate, at Ithaca.
Pennsylvania vs. Gettysburg, at Philadelphia.
Dartmouth vs. Massachusetts Agricultural, at Hanover.
Carlisle vs. West Virginia, at Carlisle.
Army vs. Norwich, at West Point.
Amherst vs. Rhode Island State, at Amherst.
Fordham vs. St. Peter's, at Fordham.
Brown vs. Colby, at Providence.
Lehigh vs. Albright, at South Bethlehem.
Lafayette vs. Muhlenberg, at Easton.
St. Lawrence vs. Union, at Schnectady.
Syracuse vs. Hobart, at Syracuse.
New York Military Academy vs. St. Paul's, at Garden City.

While a few of the college football teams played games on Wednesday, to-day marks the real opening of the football season, when the big teams of the East, West, and South begin play on the gridiron. Harvard will open with Maine, and Princeton will have Rutgers for an opponent. Pennsylvania will have its first trial under George Brookes's régime when the Quakers face Gettysburg. Cornell, Dartmouth, Brown, and Yale all have comparatively easy preliminary games. The first football game in this district will be played by Fordham, when the eleven which is being coached by Tom Thorpe will play St. Peters.

With the restrictions taken off the kicking game and the forward pass, the game this year will be more open than ever before, and the football sharps all predict a most successful season.

In no case is a 'Varsity eleven called upon to face a really dangerous opponent, yet the result of each and every game will be watched by undergraduates and alumni with interest. Coaches will send many players into the game in order to ascertain the ability of candidates under fire. The results of the changes in the playing rules for this season also will be noted in order that coaches and captains may be familiar with new developments possible under the 1913 code. Much interest will naturally attach to the opening game on the Harvard schedule. The Eastern championship eleven of last Autumn, while not intact, still has many representatives upon the Crimson squad of this year. Capt. Storer will try out a number of men during the game with Maine, and a better idea of the ranking of the present squad will be obtainable.

Princeton appears to have one of the hardest games of the day in the East, for the Tigers will line up against the Rutgers College team, and some very favorable reports have been heard in and about New Brunswick regarding Rutgers football prospects. Under the coaching of Foster Sanford and his assistants, the smaller college eleven has been coming along fast.

Pennsylvania faces Gettysburg, but no cloud of anxiety is visible on the brow of Coach George Brookes, for the Quakers appear to have resumed a better system of coaching and preparation this season, and Gettysburg, defeated last Fall by a 35 to 0 score, does not appear to be any more formidable than in 1912. The same statement does not hold true in reference to Cornell, however, for the Ithaca team must face Colgate, and the Hamilton collegians always turn out a strong eleven. Last season Colgate defeated Cornell 13 to 7, but Coach Sharpe has better material and an established system, so that while a close game is expected Cornell adherents do not anticipate a repetition of the 1912 setback.

In the South, Virginia will open the season against Randolph-Macon and West Virginia Wesleyan will journey to Carlisle, Penn., for a game with Glenn Warner's Indians. The Naval Academy team will not open its season for another week, and the same holds true of the Army team at West Point.

N. Y. A. C. GAMES TO-DAY.

Irish Long-Distance Champion to Run at Travers Island.

Surprises are promised at the New York Athletic Club games this afternoon. The sports, which will begin at 2.30 P. M. on the Travers Island grounds have attracted a host of the best track and field men of the territory inclusive of a number of Olympic and national title holders.

Among the features carded will be the attempts of James I. Wendell, the intercollegiate champion high and low hurdler, who will try to crowd Father Time in his tries against the 100 yards high hurdle and the 250 yards low hurdle marks. All of his work to date in anticipation of record beating has been such as to warrant the prediction that new marks will take the places of those now on the books when the former Wesleyan lad has finished his day's work.

Another event will be the three-mile handicap in which the marks have been made from Hannes Kolehmainen. The race will mark the first showing in America of Patrick Flynn, the Irish international champion four-miler, who is accredited a wonder at the foot-running game.

Savannah Auto Club Gets Offer.

A. G. Kaufmann, President of the Peugeot Auto Import Company, has agreed to enter three Peugeot cars in the Vanderbilt Cup and Grand Prize races, providing the Savannah Automobile Club will put up an additional prize of $5,000 in the Grand Prize race for the winning car, providing it breaks the Grand Prize record for the Savannah course.

RACE JUDGES HESITATE.

Fourteen Heats Decided at the Columbus Grand Circuit Races.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 26.—All three of the class races, which, with the finish of the 2:09 trot that was started on Thursday, comprised the programme for the fifth day of Columbus Grand Circuit racing, were split up so that fourteen heats were raced during the afternoon. Compared to that of previous days, the time average was slow. The fields were large.

Judges hesitated about declaring the 2:11 pace completed after the fifth heat, done in 2:18¾, with a sprint through the last quarter in 28¾ seconds, had been won by Colonel Franklin. Hydric won the fourth heat, but was outbrushed in the fifth. After a delay, the race was declared to be ended.

Great Scott, except in the second heat, when a path along the rail was blocked, had no trouble in leading the 2:18 pacers home. He was second choice, Lady Richmond being the favorite. The summary:

The White Linen Nurse

In this novel the brilliant author of "Molly Make-Believe" has achieved an idyllic love story out of the strangest human elements that were ever compounded in fiction:

A little trained nurse, with a "doll face" that belies her strength of character; an overworked surgeon, who seeks relief in profanity and a yearly excursion with John Barleycorn, and his pathetic little daughter, whose sharp temper hides her hungry heart—these are the central characters.

And Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, in her own wonderfully characteristic way, sets forth these faulty, lovable, unforgetable people and their piquant situation in a narrative that bites deep in its humanity and in its vivid revelation of true love in a strange setting.

BUT THERE IS ONE WAY LEFT TO GET IT.

THE rotogravure portrait of William J. Gaynor to be issued as a special section of THE NEW YORK TIMES to-morrow will be obtainable only from newsdealers, as they have bought the entire Sunday edition in advance. Any one who wants the picture, and who has not already arranged to get the SUNDAY TIMES, must order it to-day.

No other portrait of the late Mayor is equal to THE TIMES'S art print either in photographic accuracy, composition, or quality of reproduction. There can be only one best. This picture is the best likeness of Mr. Gaynor. It is also the best example of a newly developed printing process—the rotogravure method, which is an adaptation of photogravure to modern commercial needs. Only an expert can distinguish it from expensive photogravures produced with painstaking slowness.

Another unique feature of the Sunday edition will be three full pages of pictures, on supercalendered pages in the regular Pictorial Section, of scenes at the Gaynor funeral—remarkable photographs of the most impressive ceremonial witnessed in America within half a century.

See your newsdealer TO-DAY. Only the dealers can now offer for sale

TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY TIMES.

Mineola Horse Show.

Hunters Shown Over the Olympic Course with an Entry List of Twenty-five, Eighteen of Which Accepted the Conditions, Featured the Second Day's Judging of the Twelfth Annual Mineola Horse Show held in Conjunction with the Queens-Nassau Fair at the Mineola Fair Grounds yesterday.

The course which extended over almost a half mile was laid out between the show ring and the half mile running track, presenting a regular cross-country spectacle. The horses were compelled to take four obstacles, and on the general summing up Samuel Willetz's black mare Black Bird was adjudged the winner. Philip Boyer's brown gelding Gaylight was second, Squadron C Farm produced the horse, and the fourth position went to Mrs. Ralph Ellis's Nora. Mrs. Colgate Chabonnier, owner of Dorene, was the only woman competitor, and, although she was unplaced in the winnings, acquitted herself in splendid fashion. Her mount was somewhat awkward in taking the jumps, but her riding was perfect, and she received hearty applause after her trials.

Fantasy's other victories were in the class for saddlers over 14.2 and not exceeding 15.2 hands. This class brought out practically the same nominations as the ladies' event, and the ribbons were distributed exactly the same. Fantasy, first; Blackstone, second; Queenlight, third, and Gloribird fourth. The only class in which the harness horse was seen was the first, in which Fantasy made her first bid for honors, being awarded the palm for a horse best suited for both purposes.

In the class for heavyweight polo ponies, in which speed, handiness, conformation, and manners were considered, Howard Kipps's bay gelding Cob Web, which he procured from the stable of English ponies used in the international matches, was the winner. Cob Web played the game under a British saddle, and outshone the homebreds easily. Godfrey Preece, with the handy bay gelding Splinters, accounted for the red, with another Phipps entry, Australia, and Mortimer L. Schiff's gray gelding Blue, placed as named.

Fly Casting in Central Park.

Fly casters, members of the Anglers' Club of New York, began a two days' competition yesterday in the club's annual Fall tournament on the lake at Central Park. Dr. R. J. Held was the all-star performer, taking the premier honors in three of the five events arranged. In the open bait-casting event for distance Dr. Held for his five casts averaged 116.4 feet, his best individual fling covering a distance of 129 feet. In the dry fly casting event for distance, with five-ounce rods, his average was 61.4 feet, and he topped off his day by averaging 96 4-6 feet in the wet fly cast. In the opening contest for distance bait casting, limited to contestants never having cast better than 120 feet in competition, Charles H. Higby was the winner, with an average of 108.5 feet. The tournament will close to-day, when the anglers will put in an entire day at the lake, with ten events slated.

BANKING AND POLITICS.

Prof. JEREMIAH W. JENKS, in his address to the students of commerce and finance of the New York University Thursday evening, said that in his belief the Owen-Glass Currency bill is "the best possible now"; it would be amended and improved under the tests of experience. Very likely it is the best possible "now." That is the ground of the argument for postponement of final action until the regular session, in order that the bill may be made better. Prof. JENKS means that the bill in its present form is the best that it is now politically possible to enact. "Best" does not seem to be quite the word to apply to a bill so defective that its enactment is opposed and its effects feared by substantially the whole of the great interests it will control.

This is not an overstatement. The banking interests of the whole country were represented in the Chicago conference. They suggested many amendments to the bill, some of them vital, which Congress has not seen fit to accept. The bankers of the Northwest, of Western Pennsylvania, of New England, have in formal resolutions made known their objections to the measure. Southern bankers, by some of their chief representatives, have spoken in criticism of its provisions. The leading bankers of the great cities are of like mind. Now, a body of opinion so completely representative of the banking interest, so authoritative, and so reasonably and even helpfully expressed, should have great weight with the Administration and with both houses of Congress. Would it be wise to enact a law which though the best politically possible was nevertheless a very defective law, a dangerous law in the judgment of those who know most about it, those who must do business under it? Prudence and common sense command further deliberation in order that the "best possible" law may be made actually good.

Prof. JENKS pointed out that Congress and the bankers seem to misunderstand each other. Upon this point he said:

> The bankers have assumed that Congress is acting from partisan rather than from patriotic motives, and willfully ignoring the advice of the experienced and trained experts. Some Congressmen have assumed that bankers are wholly selfish and unpatriotic, but nothing is so harmful to the banks as bad business. They want the law that will best promote public prosperity, and they in turn have not realized, as a better understanding of political methods would have shown them, that the Congressmen do not always find it politically possible to get the ideal law.

It was said during the debate in the House and Senate more than once that the circulating notes to be issued under the bill were made obligations of the Government because Mr. BRYAN insisted upon that as a compliance with the Baltimore platform, and, of course, with his own well-known views. Mr. BRYAN believes that the money of the people should be Government money. But Mr. BRYAN'S views in respect to the currency have been weighed by the people, found wanting, and definitely rejected. It is an extraordinary situation when a candidate whom the people, knowing all about him, thoroughly understanding his views and opinions, have three times defeated at the polls through the election of another candidate, comes into a position where he can dictate the country's currency laws. It is not because the Democratic Congress is suspected of acting from partisan motives, but because it is known to be acting without sufficient knowledge and against reason and experience that the bankers and business men have objected to the Administration bill. The bankers have tried to be helpful, but they speak with full conviction when they say that it is dangerous to involve the credit of the Government in the provision made for the redemption of a practically unlimited volume of currency. They speak with knowledge and conviction when they point out that redemption "in gold or lawful money" would be dangerous. They view with an apprehension which the country shares the prospect that a law may be passed embodying provisions that invite financial trouble.

The House has yielded in some things, but upon others much more important it has turned a deaf ear to the bankers. The Senate is more attentive and more open minded. The known disposition of many Senators, some of them on the Democratic side, gives ground for the hope that the upper house will not be content merely with what is now politically the best possible bill, but will take time for making it actually better. The risks and the danger of proceeding to enactment with a measure admitted to be defective and as to which nobody can now foresee how little or how great would be the trouble it would cause, are far too serious to be incurred on partisan or any other grounds. It is all too plain that the House passed this bill before it had taken time to learn what a banking and currency bill should be. We trust that the Senate will not act with like haste and with a like want of understanding.

THE LINCOLN MONUMENT.

The proposed temple of white marble in the new Potomac Park will be a fitting monument to the memory of ABRAHAM LINCOLN, and most appropriately situated. There has been some delay in awarding the contracts for the construction of the foundation, as the work will be of such a difficult character, and so important, that haste has been out of the question. It is now hoped that all the preliminaries will be finished to-day and the promoters of the various alternative plans finally silenced. They have lately made a great deal of noise.

One of the plans was the construction of a so-called national highway between Washington and Gettysburg, which was naturally favored by persons owning property along the proposed route, but received no approval from others. The Lincoln Memorial Commission, however, expects to have the temple in the park an assured fact before its session in Washington is finished to-day. There is no truth whatever in the reports that the foundations will be insecure, and nothing remains to be done before the work of excavating for the massive foundations is started except the formal approval of the contracts.

TAXING BILLBOARDS AND SIGNS.

The propaganda against signs that disfigure the landscape, which took form in a law of 1911 in this State forbidding the erection or posting of signs on the public highways, has spread through all the States. Mr. WILLIAM S. PARDEE of New Haven, Conn., acting for the National Order of Sign Removers, has drawn a bill requiring that the business of posting signs on public or private property be severely restricted by a license system. Chairman EVERETT L. MILLARD of the Chicago City Club's Committee on Municipal Art is fighting an injunction brought by an advertising company that erects and uses billboards in defiance of the city's ordinances. Secretary EDWARD S. CORNELL of the National Highways Protective Society has led in the movement which resulted last year in the tearing down of nearly 100,000 signs illegally posted on the highways of New York State, and in pledging hundreds of reputable concerns not to advertise their wares in a way contrary to law. But in this, as in other States, the attempt to restrict persons from posting bills on private property has been futile, owing to constitutional limitations. Yet it would be possible to tax them out of existence.

Col. CORNELL calls attention to the fact that the French Government has suppressed the billboard advertisements along the principal lines of travel in that country by taxing them higher than any profit that can accrue from each advertisement. The signs disfigure the landscape and obstruct the view of drivers of motor cars and other vehicles, sometimes to their peril. They are often an offense to decency and almost invariably a nuisance to the eye. The proposal to tax them off the highways and out of the public view should be seriously considered.

FARM TO FAMILY.

The closing the other day of the Housewives' League "farm-to-family" experiment station in Brooklyn was not due, according to its promoters, to failure of the experiment, but to the fact that the store was leased for only one month, and for purposes of experiment. The experiment is said to have been successful, inasmuch as it demonstrated certain facts in regard to co-operation which are now to be made use of in planning a permanent co-operative market in Brooklyn, and also one on Staten Island.

The fact that an organized attempt on the co-operative principle is now to be made within the boundaries of Greater New York naturally directs attention to a movement which is now eighteen years old internationally, dating from the International Co-operative Alliance, which held its first meeting in London in 1895, and whose ninth congress was held in Glasgow last August. In that congress there were 600 delegates, representing over 20,000,000 members of 130,000 societies in the twenty-four nations incorporated in the alliance. While the co-operative movement in its international form is a little less than two decades old, the movement itself started in Scotland in 1769. Of its growth in Europe it is sufficient to say that in Switzerland there are 5,000 co-operative societies, in Belgium 3,800, and in Germany 20,000. Its development on the Continent in connection with agriculture is, perhaps, the most notable incident of agricultural progress in Germany, Denmark, France, Italy, and Belgium. In Great Britain, with the exception of Ireland, its progress has not been so rapid.

In his inaugural address, before the recent congress in Glasgow to which we have referred, Lord GREY confidently predicted the co-operative commonwealth will yet be "co-equal and co-extensive with the whole civilized world." As The London Times in a leader on Lord GREY'S address remarked: "Coming from a statesman of his wide and ripe experience, the whole-hearted belief he expressed in the possibilities of co-operation is stimulating indeed at a time when other movements of a less peaceful character are pressed more aggressively upon our attention."

That the movement has a future seems certain when its progress in recent years and at the present time in Europe is considered. That it will also claim more attention in America in the near future than it has hitherto received seems tolerably certain. But such progress in America can only be brought about, as it has been in Europe, by actual experiment and demonstration of its benefits. Such experiments and demonstrations have not yet been made on a sufficiently large scale to attract general attention in the United States. That it should keep clear of socialism, syndicalism, and communism is a condition precedent to its success in America, just as it has been in Europe.

POIRET AND THE FASHIONS.

The Frenchman, POIRET, who has come across the ocean, as he says, chiefly to defend himself from a charge of sensationalism and extravagance, is worth listening to when he talks about what women should wear. Perhaps all that he says about his art is not entirely comprehensible to the common mind, but we infer that he would not countenance the wearing of clothes suitable only to a very young woman by her mother and grandmother, or of garments devised for the slender by the corpulent. In his lecture the other night he said that the American women were well dressed "from the academic point of view," which seems a novel and polite way of stating a disagreeable fact.

If he can influence our women to look upon the "modes" as suggestions to be adapted to meet physical requirements, not as models to be slavishly followed, he will accomplish a good work. Recent fashions seem to have been designed principally to suit youth and beauty; plain girls who have dressed in fashion have often transformed themselves into veritable frights when they might, at no greater expense, have so garbed themselves as to mitigate their plainness. We can assure M. POIRET that he can find a fertile field here for missionary endeavor. His views on color, his conception of beauty, his individual fancies are all commendable; but if he clings to the one idea of inducing American women to wear garments which suit their forms and faces, rather than those of certain comely models, the American men will bless him, and that seems to be worth while.

VACCINATING CHILDREN FOR TYPHOID.

Just as vaccination against smallpox became compulsory, so health authorities in the near future will seek to bring about the compulsory vaccination of all children against typhoid. Health Commissioner LEDERLE, prompted by the existence of a severe typhoid epidemic on the east side, caused by the drinking of infected milk, favors this measure, although he believes the protest against a compulsory vaccination law would be too strong for its speedy enactment.

All the recruits for the American army are inoculated with anti-typhoid serum. Vaccination at intervals of three years is required of every member of the army corps and its supervisors. The young men who enter the West Point Military Academy must submit to inoculation. The results achieved by this treatment are certain, they have diminished the terrors of campaigning by cheating death of more victims than fall in battle. The reaction from the perfected vaccine is less troublesome than that from vaccination against smallpox, and the immunity it confers is practically absolute during the three years' interval between treatments.

This city can hardly inspect the thousands of dairies in seven or eight States that daily furnish its milk supply. Much is done by way of inspection, more is left undone, and the river of milk is from time to time contaminated for the masses. The requirement of pasteurization would be wise, since it would insure against other diseases than typhoid, notably scarlet fever and tuberculosis. But the pasteurized milk must itself be guarded, for it is peculiarly susceptible to reinfection. A measure that would make the individual immune against typhoid that comes from milk and water supplies, vegetables, and from filth and dust of the city, need not be lightly rejected.

CLARETIE AND THE COMEDIE.

For a full quarter of a century and longer JULES CLARETIE has been the director of the Théâtre Français, the executive head of the renowned Comédie, a State endowed dramatic troupe and institution organized to perpetuate the traditions of the classic stage and also to keep the French drama a living thing. He had been a writer, a journalist, in some way a dramatist, but had no other training for theatrical enterprise. He has filled his task with ample skill and discretion.

We have countless theatres and plays without number in this country. We have nothing like the Comédie Française and we never shall have unless the people feel the need of an endowed institution. A public subsidy is out of the question, but private capital will be generously advanced for endowment when the demand for it is made clear. Perhaps the demand will never be manifested.

It must be frankly admitted that the Comédie has not made much progress in recent years. It has kept alive the classical traditions, to be sure, but it has not lately developed young actors of the classical mold. French comedy in its best modern estate runs to conversation and much of the conversation relates to topics which might as well be avoided. In the newer forms of drama the Scandinavians and Germans have led the way, though the path they have taken is full of pitfalls. In France the romantic impulse of ROSTAND and MAETERLINCK has led to nothing, and the influence of the Comédie never extended to those two poets. CLARETIE, however, has not been at fault for the dimmed lustre of the Comédie Française. He has "kept abreast" of the times, and he retires now because he has worked at his not too grateful task long enough.

If ALBERT CARRE succeeds him there will be no great change. CARRE is an impresario of the same outlook who has been subjected to the same influences. What France needs is a more exalted drama, which could be as novel as necessary, but should be of an uplifting, not a debasing, influence. A director for the Comédie might have young blood, high aspirations, the most alert mind, the most ardent temperament, and yet not find the materials wherewith to reconstruct the theatre which arose on RICHELIEU'S foundation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Explicable, But Not Justifiable.

There is, of course, no difficulty in understanding the rage of the passengers who had gathered at Queenstown to board the Olympic when she steamed away without them. The least that any of them suffered was the annoyance of a delay, irritating in proportion to his or her eagerness to be started for home. To others, it meant the breaking of more or less important engagements for this side, made with a definiteness and confidence based on what has come to be the adherence to schedule time by steamers almost as closely as by railway trains. To still others, another day ashore meant expenditures made embarrassing by the common tourist practice of carrying aboard the homebound steamer a purse with just enough money in it for meeting expected needs.

But though the troubles of these travelers were real and sufficiently serious to explain manifestations of ill-temper, it does seem strange that at least a few of them did not see the unreasonableness of charging the steamship company with inflicting upon them, voluntarily and for nefarious purposes of its own, a needless hardship.

By natural, inevitable, and thoroughly understood implication, every contract made by such a company contains the qualification, "wind and weather permitting," and the question whether wind and weather permit the doing of any particular thing is one to be answered, not by passengers, but by the Captain. It is his business to decide, and his discretionary power in such a matter as this is and ought to be almost unlimited. Whether or not the Olympic could enter the inner harbor at Queenstown in the conditions then existing was for her commander to decide, and while it is something more than possible that he could twice have taken his big ship safely through that narrow entrance, that possibility would not have excused him had he come to grief, and the consequences of an accident would have been vastly more serious than those which followed the course he took.

Those who are denouncing him might have remembered that he did not lightly or willingly leave a lot of passengers behind, for that not only made trouble for them, but it caused even more for his owners, besides imposing not a little expense upon them. And the passengers all knew, or should have known, that they risked just what happened when they planned to board the steamer at her port of last call. They took chances for the sake of half a day or so more in London, and when luck turned against them they should have shown a more philosophical spirit.

Enemies of All Travelers.

Most of us have had sad experiences with express companies, but, of course, that will not prevent general sympathy with the loss and worse than loss just suffered by one of these companies through the forgery of its "travelers' checks." The public will feel another emotion, too, about this crime because of the probability that the express checks offered by tourists in payment of their bills will hereafter be subjected to much closer scrutiny than has been the case in the past. Their ready acceptance everywhere from strangers in strange lands has been their most valued characteristic—the one that made their purchase well worth while—and this they must lose to some degree if the now warranted apprehensions of hotel clerks and tradesmen lead to new requirements as to identification. That would mean inconvenience for many and more or less serious trouble for some, for it is no slight thing—it may be distinctly tragical—to find one's self in a foreign city with money gone and the only means of promptly getting more a failure.

Of course the large fraction of Europe's population that profits from American willingness to spend money is not going to put any difficulties not considered by it absolutely necessary in the way of our yielding to the natural tendency. That fraction has, too, a faith in our intention and power to pay our bills that sometimes goes to astonishing lengths. But underlying the confidence is a capacity for distrust that is equally wonderful, and it is this capacity which these check forgeries seem likely to rouse into excited and troublesome action.

Hence are the forgers most obnoxious criminals, and the trouble is that their apprehension, conviction, and punishment will not end the matter or limit the consequences of what they have done to a loss suffered by a single corporation. In this case, as always, the counterfeiter is a public enemy to a much greater extent than are thieves of other sorts, and it is not strange that in the old days, not so remote, the authorities everywhere took in chopping off his head or hanging him a satisfaction which was widely shared.

Flies Have Found a Defender!

One CHARLES E. PAGE, who, being, or claiming to be, both a doctor and a Bostonian, is under a double obligation to be both wise and virtuous, has proved that he is neither by writing about flies an article which is at once foolish and wicked. Had he contented himself with saying, as he does, that "swatting" flies is an ineffectual, and therefore stupid, way of attacking them, there would have been some excuse for him, though if the slaughter be done at just the right season, when the comparatively few flies that live through the Winter are preparing to go into seclusion, it has some utility. What Dr. PAGE does, however, is to defend flies as "busy little scavengers," accomplishing wonders in the way of making harmful matter harmless and to be treated as friends rather than as enemies by lovers of cleanliness! Still more amazing is the man's assertion that "not one fly in ten millions alights on a human being, and when one does the contact is harmless."

It is difficult to keep within the limits of moderation when commenting on statements like these. Some of them are false, the rest truth misinterpreted and misapplied.

Of course flies do something, and in the aggregate a good deal, toward hastening the disintegration of "filth" into its innocuous elements, but they do it with much incidental scattering of a sort most dangerous to health, and their help as scavengers is consequently intolerable. The assertion that their contact is harmless is denied by all authority and refuted by all experience.

Flies are known to be efficient and industrious carriers of all diseases the germs of which pass one period in their life-cycles in decaying matter, and the sooner they are exterminated, as among the most noxious of beasts, the better, and the best way—the one good way—to exterminate them is to deprive them of breeding places.

Curiously enough, Dr. PAGE'S deplorable article has just been printed with apparent approval in The New Rochelle Star, where it will be a discouragement and an obstacle to the sanitary campaign now in progress in that city, and where it will doubtless serve certain maintainers of nuisances and certain negligent officials as excuse, the one for resisting reform and the other for leaving their duty unperformed. Any paper that diffuses misinformation on a subject like this, concerning which ignorance is unpardonable, incurs a heavy responsibility.

DIVINING ROD EXPLAINED.

Engineer's Experiments Confirm Dr. Morris's Theory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am very pleased to be able to confirm the theory of Dr. Morris, given in THE TIMES.

As a consulting engineer for capitalists in Europe I was asked while residing in California fifteen years ago to investigate the claims of two brothers who had invented what they called a magnetic electric instrument which, when carried in the hands like a divining rod, could be made to discover any mineral substance, as well as water and oil, by simply using special amalgams in cartridge tips like pistol cartridges.

My instructions were to find if the instrument was of a scientific character like a magnet that would work independently of the will of the operator, and what its value would be in the field. I very quickly found that its indications depended entirely, as Dr. Morris says, on the unconscious co-ordination of mind and muscle of the operator, but I found far more than that. I found that the mind must be specially sensitive to ethereal radiations from the subterraneous regions of the earth as well as surface indications, and that it could be guided and controlled by the thought radiations of other minds.

Furthermore I found that, (contrary to what Dr. Morris says,) the senses played no part in the indications when those proved to be correct; that, in fact, one of the requirements of an accurate operator is to be able so to concentrate the attention on what he wishes to find as to exclude all sensible phenomena, and to have such strong faith in his instrument as to believe that he could not possibly make a mistake.

Wreck Report Criticised.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Once more the amazing mental processes of the Interstate Commerce Commission presided over by Commissioner McChord are revealed in its report on the recent New Haven Railroad disaster. Although the rules of the company were grossly violated by an engineer who disregarded the signal properly set against him and by a trainman who failed to perform the duty distinctly imposed upon him to protect the rear of the standing train, the commission holds the company blamable.

Such a deduction is an outrage to common sense and a travesty upon justice. Unless it puts the blame where it belongs, the commission or you will never stop or aid in stopping these dreadful happenings. All the rules in the world are of no value if disregarded.

A Remarkable Male Voice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may surprise Mr. Weld and even make him doubt, if not actually disbelieve, that there is at least one contemporary male singer who, without using the so-called falsetto tones, can sing up to the C above high C. It may tax Mr. Weld's credulity even further to be told that this same singer descends into the bass without a break in tone or quality to the A below low C, thus making a range of 52 complete semitones.

When the time is ripe this man can speak for himself through his singing, although many eminent people could do it for him now.

Mr. Kline for Mayor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Ardolph L. Kline is unquestionably the logical successor of the late Mr. Gaynor, and everything is in his favor. His record—if not wholly political, and we should surely be glad of that—is without blemish; he is certainly the "dark horse" that is always so welcome in a political emergency, and is fully equal to the emergency, and would, I think, be so accepted by Mr. Gaynor. If he is a Republican—are we not seeking to override party and put the best men in office?

LIVE BEEF IN THE EAST

Could Be Raised Profitably if Farmers Had a Market.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The attitude of the American meat packers' convention recently held in Chicago is noteworthy with reference to the raising of beef animals in New England especially, and elsewhere, by farmers. One of the reports said that "Every small farmer should raise at least two beef steers a year, to offset the decreased production of the Western ranches."

This is well said. Farmers should raise beef, especially in New England, and the other Eastern States. They can now raise beef profitably, if they go at it right, and if there is a sure and convenient market to absorb their cattle. Previously the cost of bringing steers to marketable age and condition in New England, and along the whole Atlantic region, has been so high, and the price to be obtained on the hoof so low, that the farmers could not afford to feed through the long and cold Winters. In the West, where most of the beef cattle are raised, they are obliged to shift for themselves nearly all the time until they are taken in hand to fatten for the market. If the New England farmers were inclined to let their young beef stock rough it a little more during the Winters, and then took them into warm quarters when they were ready to put on the fat for the market, they could cut down the cost of the beef to them quite a bit. The young creatures need not be starved nor subjected to great cold, but they do not need to be fed up so generously during their first two years, and they will get along very well indeed with less warm shelters than they mostly get. The first two years should be given over to making size, and the last few months to putting on flesh.

In the grazing sections, where land is cheap and where there is plenty of pasturage for the stock in Summers, beef can be raised at a profit. Many thrifty New England farmers are now raising it. But the great trouble with the theory of the packers is that there is no market for good beef on the hoof anywhere in the East.

There are provisions for handling discarded cows near all large centres, and calves and pork can be disposed of readily. The abattoirs that handle cows cannot handle first-class beef. They supply the canneries, but have not facilities for handling good beef. Neither have they trade affiliations that would enable them to market it. If the packers wish to get the farmers of the East into the beef-raising habit, they should come into this territory and build abattoirs, and arrange to take all the beef the farmers will raise, at living rates. Such action would bring a large supply from New England and other sections of the East. Without a market the farmers in this part of the country cannot raise beef at a profit. With a market they can raise beef at a profit, in the present condition of the milk market. If they could get fair prices for their milk they could better afford to raise cows for milk than steers for beef. They are now between the devil of the milk contractors' methods and prices and the deep sea of the beef market, and they find it more profitable to raise onions than either cows or steers.

When farmers get together and market their product through co-operative organizations they will deliver their milk directly to the consumers, and their fine, fat steer beef directly to the retailers. Then there will be a good margin of profit in raising both cows for milk and steers for beef. Until then the packers will appeal in vain to farmers to raise two beef steers every year. GEORGE FRENCH.

"HAMLET" LINE EXPLAINED.

Walker's Dictionary Justifies the Use of "Mobled Queen."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed a letter in THE TIMES in reference to the use of the word "mobled" by E. H. Sothern in "Hamlet." In Walker's Dictionary, which is an old book, the following appears in reference to this word, which may prove of interest:

> To Mobile—mō'bl. v. a. To dress grossly or inelegantly. Obsolete. This word now exists as spoken nowhere but in "Hamlet" of Shakespeare: "But, who, alas! had seen the mobled Queen!"

This is always pronounced mobb-led upon the stage, and this reading appears more correct than mab-led and mob-led, which some critics have substituted; for Dr. Farmer tells us he has met with this word in Shirley's "Gentleman of Venice": "The moon does mobble up herself."

This seems to receive confirmation from the name women give to a cap, which is little more than a piece of linen drawn together with strings round the head. The learned Mr. Upton's supposition, that this word signifies "led by the mob," is an anachronism, as the word mob was not in use in the time of Shakespeare.

Fusion Summary Found Helpful.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to thank you for THE TIMES'S summary of the Fusion campaign, "Signposts of the Political Highway." It is the nicest, clearest, most sensible one and a half columns that have yet appeared anywhere in connection with this most complicated political campaign. I have made a clipping of this and I hope toward the close of the campaign you will again summarize the weekly situations, just as clearly and concisely as that of yesterday's paper.

I don't think you will consider it any reflection upon a woman's mental capacity for politics when she admits she was "all at sea" this time, until your chronology set her straight.

Napkin Rings in Demand.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an indication that napkin rings are still used, the fact stands that quantities of this article, both made here and imported, are still in demand. The materials they are made of include sterling silver, plated brass, nickel, aluminium, horn, rubber, wood, plain and paper covered, ivory, and bone, and a sterling silver initialed or monogram napkin ring, lately introduced by a large engraving firm, found a large sale. J. N.
New York, Sept. 25, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To me the use of a napkin ring does not necessarily signify the repeated use of the napkin. Its purpose might be purely decorative and as such would add its share to the attractiveness of the table just as the crystal, flowers, and other silver, or gold, as the case might be. I think a snowy napkin, neatly rolled and slipped through a glistening ring, would add much to the beauty of a well-set table. However, I believe that in very many well-ordered households the napkin ring is not obsolete and the same napkin does service for more than one meal.

FOR ELLIS ISLAND REFORMS.

Research Bureau Would Abolish Commissary Contract System.

The Bureau of Municipal Research has sent to Chairman Hughes of the commission appointed to investigate the Commissary Department at Ellis Island suggestions for improving the food supplied to the immigrants and employes on the island. The bureau suggests that the attention of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor and that of President Wilson be called to the advisability of discontinuing the practice of having this food supplied by contract.

Here are some of the recommendations made by the bureau for improving the conditions on the island:

Continuous records and reports to be kept regarding persons served, purchases, inspection, and conditions of food; provision for adequate inspection and testing, and adequate reports by the Government through the Commissioner of Immigration and the Bureau of Animal Industry, and by the contractors; special attention to inspection and testing raw foods, and to the cleanliness and safety under which all foods are served and prepared, including attention to buildings, receptacles, clothing and persons of employes and ventilation.

Continuous inspection of both the contents of food boxes sold and of the methods of preparing and selling, with daily reports showing quantities and prices of articles inspected, with results; physical examination by Government physicians of all employes engaged in handling food; a testing laboratory to be maintained by the Government for making chemical, bacteriological and other tests of milk and of all other food, and for recording and publishing results of tests. All citizens to have access to any part of the commissary, except private papers, at reasonable hours, on the general permit to the island, which now excludes visitors from the commissary.

FOR BILLBOARD REFORMS.

Municipal Art Society to Hold Symposium on Oct. 8.

Billboard advertising from the standpoint of general ugliness will be discussed at a meeting of the Municipal Art Society to be held in the galleries of the National Arts Club on Oct. 8.

William Laurel Harris, President of the society, said yesterday that he was making every effort to interest advertisers in the forthcoming meeting and that he hoped a good many of them would attend.

"We have found that billboard advertising is much more advanced as an art product in Germany and Austria-Hungary than it is in the United States," Mr. Harris remarked. "German and Austrian designers are turning out the best posters to be found anywhere. James P. Heney, director of art in the city high schools, who has just completed a tour of Europe in which he gave special attention to advertising posters, will tell of the results. He will be the chief speaker at the evening session."

A plan to make all signboards public property to be rented out for municipal revenue will be discussed at the meeting. This plan, it is stated, is now in vogue in many European cities.

MASSED CHOIRS TO SING.

Six Churches to Contribute Voices for Episcopal Convention Music.

A musical programme in which the combined choirs of six Episcopal churches in this city will participate has been arranged for the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church to be held here in October. Miles Farrow, organist of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and master of choristers, will have charge of the singing. At the celebration of the Holy Communion in the Cathedral on Wednesday morning, Oct. 8, there will be singing by the regular Cathedral choir of twenty men and thirty-two boys. At the festival services, to be held in the evening, the consolidated choirs, consisting of 300 voices, will make their first appearance.

The choirs to participate will be those of the Cathedral, Trinity, Grace, and St. James Churches and the Trinity and St. Agnes Chapels of Trinity Parish. At Trinity Church a series of special noonday prayers for the convention, which will be continued until Oct. 5, began yesterday. The services, which are simple in character, will be open to all.

BARNARD PLANS MUSEUM.

Sculptor Will House Art Treasures and Public Will Benefit.

George Grey Barnard, the sculptor, has had plans prepared for a one-story museum to be built on Fort Washington Avenue above 181st Street. The structure will cost $11,000, and while it is designed primarily to house a large part of Mr. Barnard's art collection, the museum will be open to the public without charge. Mr. Barnard for many years has been collecting French art objects and antiques from all parts of the world and these will be placed in the museum.

The building will be constructed on a large lot owned by Mr. Barnard on Fort Washington Avenue about half a mile north of 181st Street. Mr. Barnard owns a parcel there of 200 feet front and later he intends to build a house for his own occupancy. The museum will have a frontage of fifty-four feet, depth of ninety feet and will be thirty-seven feet high. Horace B. Mann and Perry R. MacNeille are the architects. The facade will be of brick in simple design.

M. E. Assembly Meets Tuesday.

More than a thousand clergymen from the Newark, Troy, New York East, and New York conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church are expected at the mid-year Methodist Episcopal Assembly to be held at the Metropolitan Temple at Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street next Tuesday morning. The Rev. Bishop Luther B. Wilson will preside. This is the first mid-year Assembly ever held for an entire Episcopal district. Laymen will not be admitted.

Bible Teachers' School Grows.

The Faculty of the Bible Teachers' Training School, at Forty-ninth Street and Lexington Avenue, has received applications from more than 100 new students, who expect to begin work with the opening of the Fall semester on Oct. 1. The applications represent a large increase in the enrollment of former years. The faculty expects a large increase in the membership of the extension-work classes.

THE LEADING QUESTION.

Statesmen still are talking tariff—
They may settle it some day.
Now, too, on the money bill
Financiers have lots to say.
These are most important questions,
Or, at least, they tell us so,
But who'll win the big world's series
Is the thing we want to know.

Just at present we're not worried
By the game of politics.
Our attention is all centred
On the men who wield the sticks.
We hear there's some sort of trouble
In the States of Mexico,
But who'll win the big world's series
Is the thing we want to know.

Oh, of course, we read of Sulzer,
And we read of Harry Thaw,
But with not that close attention
That we give to John McGraw.
When the Giants meet the Quakers,
Which will lay the other low?
Who will win the big world's series?
That is what we want to know.

ANTI-TRUST FIRM GETS ARMOR ORDER

Carbon Steel Company Underbids Combination on Bolts for New Warship.

DANIELS SCORES A POINT

Breaks Up Practice of Lumping Bronze and Steel Bids and Dividing the Profits.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Another sharply contested engagement took place to-day in the campaign between Secretary Daniels and the armor plate companies with the result that an award for the contract to make the steel armor bolts for Dreadnought No. 39, went to the Carbon Steel Company of Pittsburgh. The amount involved is sixty tons and the Carbon company offered to make the bolts for $448 a ton, which was $100 a ton below the identical bids of the Carnegie, Midvale and Bethlehem companies.

Heretofore the specifications prepared in the Navy Department have not separated bronze and steel armor bolts from the armor plates, and the three companies have bid practically the same price for them and divided the contract. This time, Secretary Daniels had the bids for the bolts advertised separately so that a concern outside the alleged combination could compete if it wished to do so. Mr. Daniels decided that the bids for these bolts had been much too high and he determined to break up the practice of paying excessive prices by permitting essentially identical bids and the division of the spoils.

On his way back to Washington yesterday from Indianapolis, Secretary Daniels inspected the works of the Carbon Steel Company. He said to-day that the visit demonstrated to him that it was possible to obtain competitive conditions in the manufacture of armor plate. The officials of the company expressed their conviction that they could increase facilities so as to make it practicable to make the heaviest plates. They are now competing in the manufacture of deck plates with the handicap of a rail rate of 96 cents a ton on ore from Conneaut to Pittsburgh, while the United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries pay only 24 cents a ton over their own line.

The Carbon Company officials told Mr. Daniels, he said, that they could get ore from the Mesaba mines, but that they were compelled to pay excessive freight rates. There is a complaint now before the Interstate Commerce Commission to correct this discrimination.

On Secretary Daniels's desk lies a large, sealed envelope marked "Confidential. For the exclusive information of the Secretary of the Navy."

In this envelope the Carnegie Steel Company has placed the data in regard to the actual cost of making armor plate, and in response to the request of Mr. Daniels has sent it to him for his own information.

"I have told these gentlemen," said Mr. Daniels to-day, "that I could not receive from them any information that I could not give to the President and to Congress—and that means the whole world. I have not opened the package and I told the representatives of the company that I should not do so until I have given several days' consideration to their request. I don't think I shall open it at all on their terms."

The Midvale and the Bethlehem Companies also have offered to furnish full data as to the cost of making armor plate in their factories, but have insisted that the information be treated as absolutely confidential. The Secretary includes these offers with that of the Carnegie Company and has made the same reply.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 26.—Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, left here for Washington early this morning after a short visit which steel men said portended plans to build a Government armor plate plant here. After a visit to the Carnegie Steel Company and the Carbon Steel Company, he conferred late last night with Naval Constructor Schlabach and Lieut. Cresap concerning the plans. Mr. Daniels said: "The idea got considerable impetus recently when we opened bids from American manufacturers of armor plate and found them all alike and very high."

"Would you consider Pittsburgh the most suitable place for a Government armor plate plant?" he was asked.

"I cannot say now," he replied. "That would remain for a commission to determine. It would require two years for Congress to act and for a commission to select a site. Then it would require two more years, I presume, for the erection of a plant. The cost, I imagine, of such a plant would be in the neighborhood of $8,000,000. The President looks upon the project favorably."

LINCOLN MEMORIAL AWARD.

Fuller Company Gets Contract for the Superstructure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The Lincoln Memorial Commission, of which William Howard Taft is Chairman, made to-day a part award of the contracts for the memorial. The Fuller Construction Company of New York was chosen to erect the superstructure at a cost of $1,637,800. The foundations are to cost $230,000 or less. The only company that made a bid anywhere near the required figure for foundation work was the Underpinning Company of New York, but its specifications were not those of the commission, and new bids probably will be invited.

The lack of successful competitors for the foundation work called for a rather unusual feature in the contract of the Fuller Company. Its original bid had been modified to bring it in the specifications, and to-day, when it became known that no award would be made for the foundation, it looked as if the contract for the superstructure would have to be delayed. The construction company thereupon guaranteed that the foundations would cost not exceeding the allotted $230,000, and its contract was signed.

For the statue of Lincoln $50,000 has been set aside, but a sculptor has not been selected. It is estimated that the whole cost of the memorial will come within $10,000 of the $2,000,000 authorized.

FORBES-ROBERTSON COMES FOR A TOUR

He's Sir Johnston Now, and, with Lady Forbes-Robertson, Will Open Shubert Theatre.

IN ON THE MAURETANIA

Retiring from the Stage When He Says His Farewell to This Country in 1915.

Bronzed and hardened by outdoor life, although a trifle stouter than when he was here two years ago, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the most recently knighted English actor, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Mauretania to begin his long farewell tour of the United States before retiring from the stage." He was accompanied by Lady Forbes-Robertson, known on the stage as Miss Gertrude Elliott, who appears to have grown younger since she went abroad. She will be the leading woman in support of her husband on tour. Nine carloads of scenery arrived yesterday via Boston, followed by the company of more than sixty members, who played with Sir Johnston recently at the Drury Lane Theatre.

In talking with a TIMES reporter on the Mauretania Sir Johnston said that it was a great pleasure to him to find himself again in the United States, where he had been so kindly received before, and where he had many warm-hearted friends.

"There is no place like New York that I can think of," said he, "where a stranger can land and the same day be put up at half a dozen of the best clubs, where every member tries to do his best to make him feel at home. Those things move slower in the old country and might well be revised. If an American friend of mine comes to London, unless I have been advised ahead, it takes me three weeks to get him put up at my clubs, and by that time he will have left for Paris.

"I ought to feel very grateful to the United States because my wife is an American woman, and also it was America that first made it possible for me even to think of retiring. You see I have been on the stage for forty years and that is a large bite out of a man's life, is it not? It is quite right for the older men to step back and give the younger generation a chance if they are fortunate enough to be able to afford it.

"This is my seventh visit to America and the anniversary day of my first visit twenty-five years ago, when I came with Miss Mary Anderson and played in her company on a tour which went as far as the Pacific Coast. It is a great contrast to come from the Drury Lane Theatre, the oldest playhouse in the world, with its traditions of David Garrick, Edmund Kean, and Macready, to open here in New York at the Shubert Theatre, which will be the newest playhouse in the world."

Speaking of the taste of the public for Shakespearian plays, the English actor said that the enthusiasm of the audiences at Drury Lane Theatre demonstrated that interest was not waning in England, and he believed that the same thing could be said of America.

"I am going to spend my first night of my return to New York at the Manhattan Theatre," said he, "witnessing Miss Marlowe and Mr. Sothern in 'Much Ado About Nothing.'"

When asked for his opinion on the merits of American and English actors, Sir Johnston replied tactfully that both had their points of excellence. "The American actor is great," he said, "in the matter of naturalness and ease, and after all, that is the true aim of the actor, to hold a mirror up to nature, as it were.

"The theatre was never in better condition than it is to-day. Young actors are better equipped and more able than at any previous period I can recall to take up the advancement of the stage. Better acting, better plays, and better staging are evident everywhere, and it has always seemed to me that America is in the vanguard of this splendid progress."

Sir Johnston said that he intended to positively retire at the end of his American tour, which will last until the Spring of 1915. His wife would not retire when he did, he said.

When asked how he intended to pass his days after leaving the stage, he replied that he felt like a schoolboy looking forward to a holiday after a long session of hard work. "I shall indulge myself in all my hobbies," said he, "painting, golf, reading, and generally enjoy the delicious sense of having no taskmaster.

"I want my public to remember me at my best. I feel I am at my best to-day. We shall present a repertoire of eight plays—"Hamlet," "Mice and Men," "The Light That Failed," Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra," "The Merchant of Venice," "Othello," and, possibly, owing to many requests, a few special performances of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in conjunction with "The Sacrament of Judas," a strong one-act drama from the French, which I have never played in this country. After a limited season in New York at the Shubert Theatre, we will tour the East. Next Fall we go West.

"It is sad to say farewell, and I feel that in America I am saying it to friends of long standing."

A reception will be given to Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson by Lee and J. J. Shubert on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Shubert Theatre in West Forty-fourth Street.

The farewell tour will open there on Thursday night, Oct. 2, with "Hamlet," followed by "Mice and Men" on Friday night and Saturday matinée, and "Hamlet" again at the evening performance.

CRANE BACK FROM EUROPE.

Ready to Act in "The Henrietta"—Saw Good Plays in London.

William H. Crane returned yesterday from Europe on the Baltic after a five months' vacation ready to take his part in the new version of "The Henrietta."

Mr. Crane said that it was not correct to say that there were no good plays in England. What he saw were very good indeed. "The Great Adventure," now playing in London, is one of the best plays I ever saw," Mr. Crane said. Mr. Crane also admired Charles Hawtrey in "Never Say Die."

SOCIAL NOTES.

That dancing will be more in favor during the coming season than last Winter is shown by the large number of dancing classes which are being formed in society. The Saturday evening dances are to be continued at Delmonico's, and the first meeting is to be on Dec. 27. The other dates are Jan. 10 and 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Drelincourt Martin, who have been in Europe since their wedding in spring time, returned to the Waldorf-Astoria, and will spend the Winter in New York.

Mrs. Frederic Neilson returned yesterday from Europe, and is at the Plaza for a brief visit.

Announcement is made of the marriage of William P. Sayre, son of Mrs. Lewis Hall Sayre, on April 9, 1925 Seventh Avenue, to Miss Frances Miner of San Francisco, which took place at Lingfield, England, on Sept. 18. Mr. Sayre is a graduate of Harvard, class of '02.

Miss Lida Louise Fleitmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Fleitmann, returned yesterday from Europe. She will ride at the Piping Rock Fall meeting in October.

Mrs. James A. O'Gorman, wife of Senator O'Gorman, will return from Washington, D. C., shortly to spend October at her New York home.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant is in town for a visit, and is at the Manhattan.

Three out-of-town weddings will take place to-day. Miss Laura P. Hazard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ayrault Hazard, and Frederic Rhinelander Brown are to be married this afternoon in St. John's Church at Far Rockaway, with a reception afterward at the country home of the bride's parents at Cedarhurst, L. I. Miss Anne Bunner, daughter of the late H. C. Bunner, editor of Puck, and Winslow B. Ingham are to wed at New London, Conn., and Miss Madeleine M. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. C. Smith, will be married to Irvin W. Day of this city in Christ Church, Greenwich, Conn.

WALTER CAMP, JR., TO WED.

Son of Yale Football Authority to Marry Miss Frances English.

Mrs. John C. English of New Haven, Conn., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Frances English, to Walter Camp, Jr., son of the Yale football authority and President of the New Haven Clock Company.

Miss English is the granddaughter of ex-Gov. English of Connecticut, and a direct descendant on the maternal side of the first land owner and settler of Cincinnati, Ohio, Denman Fletcher, known as "Cincinnatus" to his army.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Capt. Gillem Weds Mrs. Stevenson.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Capt. Alvin Gillem of the United States Cavalry and Mrs. Harry Stevenson, daughter-in-law of former Vice President Adlai Stevenson, were married at the home of the bride in Bloomington, Ill., to-night. The couple will go immediately to the Philippines, where Capt. Gillem is assigned to duty.

Miss Guggenheim's Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Myrtle Margaret Guggenheim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon F. Guggenheim, to William Rosenberg, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rosenberg of 74 West Eighty-eighth Street, will take place on Wednesday evening, Oct. 8, at the Hotel Gotham. Only the families and a few friends are to be present.

Spring-Arguimbeau Engagement.

The engagement of Miss Dorothy Wheelock Spring, daughter of George W. Spring of this city, to Frank S. Arguimbeau has been announced. Miss Spring spends the Winters with her father at the Belleclair, Seventy-seventh Street and Broadway, and they are now at their Summer home at Freeport, L. I., where Miss Spring first met Mr. Arguimbeau. Mr. Arguimbeau is a well-known automobilist, and his father is a son-in-law of the late Mayor Schroeder of Brooklyn. The wedding is to take place next Spring in this city.

Miss Cox to Wed Jerome T. Shaw.

Miss Catherine Cox of 1,376 Nelson Avenue, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Florence Cecelia Cox, to Jerome Thomas Shaw. Miss Cox is prominently identified with church and social circles at Highbridge. Mr. Shaw is associate editor of The Horseless Age, and is well known in amateur athletic organizations. The wedding has been set for early in January, 1914.

HAYS—AUERBACH.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. Hays of 276 Riverside Drive, who are still at their country place, Hillcrest, Pleasantville, N. Y., announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Miss Helen H. Hays, to Irvin Auerbach.

GREEK THEATRE SET FOR MISS HEWITT

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hewitt to Make Debut To-day at Play of "Lysistrata"

IN THE RAMAPO MOUNTAINS

Guests at Wewappo Farm to Form the Chorus, and Professionals to Act the Roles.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Hewitt of this city are to give a unique entertainment this afternoon at their country place in the Ramapo Mountains, near Tuxedo, to introduce their daughter, Miss Candace Hewitt, who will be formally presented at a reception to be given in New York during the coming season.

A Greek open air theatre has been built by Mr. Hewitt in a natural amphitheatre near Wewappo Farm, which is the name of his country seat, and it will be used for the first time to-day since completion for the staging of the old play of Aristophanes, "Lysistrata," in honor of Miss Hewitt.

Professionals are to take the rôles, and the chorus of men and women will be made up of young society people numbering about twenty-five, who are the week-end guests at Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt's house party. Miss Martia Leonard, who has a Greek theatre of her own at Mt. Kisco, is to assume the role of Lysistrata.

The theatre is picturesque, being built in the valley of the Wewappo, which is an Indian name for barking water, between two funnel shaped hills, at an elevation of twenty feet. Huge rocks hang over the sides of the theatre, and the Ramapo Mountains form a striking back-drop.

The play will commence at 4 o'clock and the guests, including many from Tuxedo and the nearby country estates, will view it from a plane, where there are masses of flowers and a little brook.

RECEPTION AT BARNARD.

Religious and Philanthropic Clubs Entertain the Freshmen.

By way of introducing the Freshmen to Barnard College, the religious and philanthropic clubs entertained them yesterday in the Barnard Theatre with Dean Gildersleeve herself as the chief speaker of the occasion. Each Freshman was escorted to the theatre by a junior and the auditorium was crowded.

After the talks had closed the more serious part of the programme, there was dancing by Elizabeth Palmer, '15 and Ruth Guernsey, '14. Then each Freshman was presented to Dean Gildersleeve and the reception closed with refreshments and dancing.

GIRLS IN AIRBOAT FLIGHTS.

Misses Andrews and Mason Ascend with MacGordon at Newport.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 26.—Miss Margaret F. Andrews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Andrews, made a flight of 500 feet this morning with Stephen MacGordon in the Thaw-MacGordon flying boat over Narragansett Bay and the Naval Station. Louis Bruglere took Miss Andrews in his automobile to King Park, where the flight started and ended.

Miss Marguerite Mason, daughter of E. Livingston Mason, took a flight later.

Miss Eloise Talcott Engaged.

Mrs. Edward Wyckoff Harris of 53 West Forty-fifth Street announces the engagement of her daughter by a former marriage, Miss Eloise Talcott, to Horace Dorsey Newson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dorsey Newson of Llewellyn Park, N. J. Miss Talcott made her début in society two seasons ago and has been active in the younger set. She is with her mother and stepfather at Hillcrest, their country place, at Rye, N. Y., where the wedding will take place this Fall.

Rae-Newcomb Wedding on Oct. 18.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Sexton Newcomb, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newcomb of Brooklyn, to Stephen Tinden Rae, son of Mrs. Robert P. Rae, also of Brooklyn, will take place on Saturday, Oct. 18, at the home of Miss Newcomb's sister, Mrs. John Starin Spraker, Ardsley Park, Ardsley-on-the-Hudson. The Rev. Frank M. Townley, rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, Brooklyn, will officiate. Miss Newcomb will be attended by Miss Mary Rae, sister of the bridegroom, and Robert Rae will be his brother's best man.

ALICE LLOYD HERE AGAIN.

Slides Down Ladder Rail of Mauretania for Moving Picture.

Alice Lloyd, the English singer and comedienne, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Maurctania to make a tour to the Pacific Coast and Australia with a company of British stars under the management of William Morris. The company will open in Brooklyn on Oct. 20 for one week, and then go direct to San Francisco.

William Morris met the ship at the pier with a moving picture machine, and pictures were taken on the boat deck, where Miss Lloyd provided some comedy by sliding down the rail of the ladder from the bridge deck. Tom McNaughton, her husband, will not go on the tour. He remains in New York to play his part in "Sweethearts." Marie Lloyd, elder sister of Alice, arrives next week on the Olympic.

JOSEPH SCHENK IN JAIL.

Loew's Booking Agent Arrested on a Nixon-Nirdlinger Warrant.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—Joseph Schenk, booking agent for the Marcus Loew vaudeville interests, was arrested here to-night on a train bound from Washington to New York. He was locked up on a warrant issued with several others at the instance of Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger a few days ago.

These warrants call for the arrest of Mr. Loew as well as others identified with him, and charge them with interfering with the Nixon-Nirdlinger interests.

The Nixon-Nirdlinger forces had kept a close watch on their rivals, and learned that Mr. Schenk was on his way from Washington to-night. A constable was at the Broad Street station when the train arrived.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

In the audience at the Hudson Theatre this afternoon will be a party of students from Vassar. Thirty seats have been reserved for them for the performance of "The Fight."

Forbes-Robinson and Gertrude Elliott attended E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe's performance of "Much Ado About Nothing," at the Manhattan Opera House last night. After the performance the English actor and his wife visited Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe on the stage.

Edward Childs Carpenter of the staff of The Philadelphia Ledger is the author of "The Tongues of Men," the new play to be produced by Henrietta Crosman this season.

H. Cooper Cliff has been engaged by F. C. Whitney for an important role in the forthcoming production or "Rachel," Carina Jordan's play in which Madame Bertha Kalich is to star.

"Shadowed," the Calthorpe-Lennox play which was produced last Wednesday night at the Fulton Theatre, will come to an end to-night.

The new play by Porter Emmerson Browne, which Cohan & Harris will produce with Douglas Fairbanks in the leading role, is to be called "Dollars and Sense."

DEFENDS MAXWELL'S STAND

Education Association Assails Board for Its Censure.

The recent action taken by the Board of Education concerning Supt. Maxwell's refusal to obey the mandate of the President of the board to decline the invitation to a budget conference extended by the Public Education Association has elicited this comment from the association:

Dr. Hanus and his staff repeatedly pointed out the urgent need throughout the New York school system of greater flexibility and freedom of speech and action. The action of the Board of Education is calculated to produce precisely the opposite effect. In urging legislation in the past members of the Board of Education have advocated the need of greater flexibility and initiative within the rank and file of the employes of the system, and since then this democratic ideal has been repeatedly enunciated as the cardinal doctrine of their so-called progressive policy. No surer way of defeating this legitimate purpose could be devised than that adopted at the recent meeting of the Board of Education.

In this connection, moreover, the Public Education Association feels constrained to point out that the recent action of the Board of Education seems but a further indication of its determination, already manifested by the support of the McKee bills, to limit and restrict the functions of trained educators by subordinating them to the technical direction rather than to the general supervision of the lay board.

It is hard to conceive how, under the circumstances, intelligent and ambitious men and women can long be retained in the school system of New York City or enterprising educators be attracted to it from outside if the proposed ban is placed upon freedom of action and speech.

The Association adds that the Board of Education has raised a question of principle which should not be overlooked.

$30,000 GONE FROM MINT.

Iron Washers in San Francisco Bag That Had Held Coin.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—A report of a $30,000 theft from the vaults of the United States Mint in this city, which T. W. H. Shanahan, Superintendent of the mint, refused either to affirm or deny, gained circulation through mint employes to-day.

Accordingly to the report the Government agents engaged in checking up the amount of coin on hand at the mint found a sack filled with iron washers in one of the vaults. The sack originally contained $30,000 in coin.

Immediately following the discovery of the theft the full details were telegraphed to Washington.

STEVENS INSTITUTE OPENS.

Improvements Made in Laboratories and Machine Shop.

With a hundred new students, the college year at Stevens Institute of Technology began yesterday with an address in the auditorium by President Alexander J. Humphreys.

In the Summer several changes have been made in the curriculum, looking toward a closer co-ordination of the work of the departments. Improvements in the equipment of the physical and experimental engineering laboratories have been made and in the equipment of the machine shop.

Change Title to "Miss Caprice."

Monday night the title of the musical comedy now playing at the Casino will be changed from "Lieber Augustin" to "Miss Caprice." In London the piece is known as "Princess Caprice." The Shuberts offered a prize of $50 for the best name to be used instead of "Lieber Augustin" and the prize was yesterday awarded to Miss Freda Tencer of 926 Southern Boulevard. The change of name was felt necessary because many theatre-goers got the impression that "Lieber Augustin" was being given in German.

PROF. J. R. EASTMAN DIES.

Astronomer Was on Staff of U. S. Naval Observatory for Years.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Sept. 26.—Prof. John Robie Eastman, the astronomer, died at a private hospital here to-day following a general breakdown. He was 77 years old. Prof. Eastman was born at Andover, N. H., in 1837, and was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1862 with the degree of M. S., receiving a Ph. D. from the same institution in 1877. In 1866 he married Mary J. Ambrose.

Prof. Eastman was an assistant at the United States Naval Observatory at Washington from 1861 to 1865, and Professor of Mathematics since then. He was retired age in July, 1898, with the rank of Captain. In June, 1906, he was promoted to the rank of Rear Admiral.

He had been engaged almost continuously in astronomical observations, computations, and research since 1862, the bulk of his published work appearing in the annual volumes of the Government Observatory. Prof. Eastman was the first President of the Washington Academy of Sciences and was in charge of the meridian circle work at the observatory from 1874 to 1891. He observed the total solar eclipses Aug. 7, 1869, at Des Moines, Iowa; Dec. 22, 1870, at Syracuse, Sicily; July 29, 1878, at West Las Animas, Col., and May 28, 1900, at Barnesville, Ga. He was also in charge of the transit of Venus party at Cedar Keys, Fla., in 1882.

Prof. Eastman prepared and edited the Second Washington Star Catalogue, which contains the results of nearly 80,000 observations made at the Naval Observatory, 1866-91. He was the author of "Transit Circle Observations of the Sun, Moon, Planets, and Comets," 1903. Since his retirement he had lived at Andover.

MRS. R. MIGLIETTA DEAD.

Former Wife of Charles G. Gates Succumbs at Ritz-Carlton.

Mrs. Mary W. Miglietta, the wife of Romeo Miglietta, of Florence, Italy, and formerly the wife of Charles G. Gates, son of the late John W. Gates, died yesterday after a short illness in her apartment at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. She was 35 years old, and is survived by her husband and a baby daughter. Mr. Miglietta has been in this country with his wife for the last four months looking after his interests in Texas.

Mrs. Miglietta married Charles G. Gates in 1898 in her home city, St. Louis, Mo. She was then Miss Mary Whedon Edgar, the step-daughter of Selwyn C. Edgar, a wealthy manufacturer of St. Louis. Her mother was Mrs. Kate W. Martin, but when she married Edgar, the daughter took her step-father's name.

After their marriage, Charles G. Gates and his wife lived together for thirteen years, but in 1911 Mrs. Gates brought suit for divorce in New York, which she won. A few months after the divorce was granted, in the same year, Gates married Miss Florence Hopwood of Minneapolis, his present wife. Some time later the first Mrs. Gates married Mr. Miglietta.

Although Gates did not fight his wife's suit in the courts at the time he was served with the papers, he made a great effort to have the suit stopped, rushing from Los Angeles to New York in a special train.

Requiem Mass for C. M. Maxwell.

The Rev. Luke J. Evers will celebrate a solemn high mass of requiem at 11 o'clock on Monday morning at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church in Duane Street for the repose of the soul of Charles M. BISHOP BOWMAN DYING.

Senior Bishop of Methodist Episcopal Church Is 96 Years Old.

The Right Rev. Thomas Bowman, D. D., LL. D., Senior Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who is 96 years old, is dying at the home of his son-in-law, Burns D. Caldwell, President of the Wells Fargo Express Company, 81 High Street, Orange, N. J. For several weeks the aged clergyman has been confined to his bed.

Bishop Bowman has dedicated 1,100 churches in the United States. While serving as chaplain in the army in 1864-65 he warned President Lincoln that he was in danger of being assassinated, and five days later his prophecy came true, when the President was shot down by John Wilkes Booth.

Bishop Bowman has lived in the Orranges for fifteen years. He has attended religious gatherings in Mexico, Europe, China, and Japan. His family consists of five sons, Theodore, Thomas, Charles, Samuel Brittain, and Cecelius Bowman, and two daughters, Miss Mary Bowman and Mrs. Caldwell. Mrs. Bowman died several years ago.

ADRIAN MESEROLE DIES AT 91

President of Greenpoint Savings Bank Left $2,000,000.

Adrian Meserole, President of the Greenpoint Savings Bank, and one of the largest property owners in Greenpoint, died yesterday at the old Meserole homestead, 1,000 Lorimer Street, Greenpoint. Mr. Meserole died in the house where he was born nearly 91 years ago. It was built by his father in 1790.

Mr. Meserole as a young man went into business as a grocer at Meserole Street and Manhattan Avenue. After a few years ship chandlers induced him to open a factory for the manufacture of brass goods needed in ship construction. In 1868 Mr. Meserole retired from business to manage his large real estate holdings in Greenpoint. It is estimated that his fortune amounts to $2,000,000. He was interested in the defunct Mechanics and Traders' Bank, and was a founder of the Greenpoint Savings Bank.

The first of the family, Jean Meserole, came from France to Long Island in 1663.

Mr. Meserole is survived by a son, Walter M. Meserole, and a daughter, Mrs. William C. Hands.

Dr. William Anderson Mitchell.

Dr. William Anderson Mitchell, Second Vice President of the Safe Deposit Company of New York, of 149 Broadway, with which company he had been identified for the last 40 years, died yesterday after a short illness at his home, 148 Hancock Street, Brooklyn. He was born 70 years ago in White Plains, N. Y., and was graduated from Columbia University and the Medical School of Yale University. Dr. Mitchell was a surgeon in the army during the civil war. At the outbreak of the war he was Colonel of the Seventh Regiment. Dr. Mitchell was a member of the Founders and Patriots Society, New England Society, Veterans of the Seventh Regiment, and Tefft Post, G. A. R.

Otis K. Dimock Dies on Train.

Otis K. Dimock, a wealthy Summer resident of New London, Conn., died suddenly yesterday afternoon while on a train nearing Mount Vernon, N. Y. With Mrs. Dimock he was on the way to spend the week-end in New London. Mr. Dimock's business partner in this city last night said that heart disease was the cause of death. The body was taken from the train at Mount Vernon, and will be removed to New London for burial there. Mr. Dimock was President of Dimock & Fink Company, for thirty years in the plumbing supply business in Harlem. He was 57 years old. His city home was at 12 East Eighty-seventh Street.

Edward James Chaffee.

Edward James Chaffee, who at one time was well known as a dry goods merchant in this city and Philadelphia, died yesterday from heart disease in South Manchester, Conn. He was born in Somers, Conn., on Aug. 1, 1836, and was a member of the old dry goods firm of Billings, Chaffee & Co. Mr. Chaffee was formerly a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Club, and the Sons of the American Revolution.

Dr. Edna Terry Dead in China.

The family of Dr. Edna Terry at Port Jefferson, L. I. received word yesterday that Dr. Terry had died in China. Dr. Terry, whose family is one of the oldest at Port Jefferson, went to China in 1887 as a representative of the New England Branch of the Women's Foreign Mission Society. She was a graduate of the Northfield Seminary and took her doctor's degree at Boston University. Mrs. Terry was anticipating her daughter's return within a year.

William F. Ray.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—William F. Ray, General Superintendent of the Boston & Maine Railroad, died suddenly in a department store here to-day. Mr. Ray was 56 years old, and had been in the Boston & Maine service for more than thirty years, starting as a fireman. He was made General Superintendent of the road a year ago.

HARRY G. PELISSIER DEAD.

London Comedian Was Head of "The Follies" Troupe.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The well-known comedian H. G. Pelissier died here to-day. He was the head of "The Follies," whose burlesque entertainments until recently attracted all of London.

Harry Gabriel Pelissier was born in Finchley, England, in 1873, his mother being an Englishwoman and his father a Frenchman. He went on the stage while very young and soon afterward began to attract attention as a composer of popular songs, and deserted the "legitimate" for the concert halls, singing his own ballads. He also wrote a number of burlesques on grand opera which were successful.

About eight years ago he organized "The Follies," a company made up of a few actors presenting an entertainment somewhat along the lines of an American minstrel show. "The Follies" became immediately immensely popular in London and made much money for Mr. Pelissier.

Mr. Pelissier presented short one-act plays and became known as the originator, in England, of the so-called "potted plays." These were given as features by "The Follies" troupe.

A futile attempt was made several years ago to give "The Follies" in New York, but Pelissier had no connection with the organization here.

Frederick Stanhope Hill.

Frederick Stanhope Hill, author and publisher, is dead at his home at Cambridge, Mass. He was born in Boston on Aug. 4, 1829. He entered the United States Navy in 1861, was at the capture of New Orleans and Vicksburg and commander on the Coast of Texas and in the Mississippi Squadron. He was honorably discharged in 1866. Mr. Hill was the author of "Twenty Years at Sea," "The Story of the Lucky Little Enterprise," "The Continuity of the Anglican Church," "Twenty-Six Historic Ships" and "The Romance of the American Navy." In 1866 he bought The Cambridge Chronicle and for several years was editor of The Cambridge Tribune. Mr. Hill was a member of the Loyal Legion and the Naval Order of the United States American Historical Association.

Mrs. Susan E. J. Hudson.

Mrs. Susan Edwards Johnson Hudson, a descendant of Dr. Samuel Johnson, the founder of Kings College, which afterward became Columbia University, and herself one of the founders and the first Secretary of the Daughters of the Cincinnati, died from a complication of diseases last Sunday at her home in Stratford, Conn., where she was born more than eighty years ago. Another of her ancestors, William Samuel Johnson

LABOR COMMISSION READY FOR WORK

Chairman Frank P. Walsh Now on His Way to Confer with President Wilson.

WAITS ON APPROPRIATION

If It Is Granted at Once, Investigation of Industrial Unrest May Begin Next Month.

Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, Mo., who is Chairman of the new Commission on Industrial Relations, was at the Wolcott yesterday on his way to Washington. There he will discuss the work of the commission with the President and find out how soon an appropriation becomes available. He hopes that the commission will be able to begin work by the middle of October.

Mr. Walsh is a lawyer. The other members of the commission are Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York, Harris Weinstock, a retired merchant of San Francisco; Thruston Ballard, a miller, of Louisville; F. A. Delano, receiver and former President of the Wabash Railroad; J. B. Lennon, Treasurer of the American Federation of Labor; James O'Connell, President of the International Union of Machinists, and Austin B. Garretson, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Conductors.

Mr. Walsh said that no meeting of the commission had yet been held. "The appointments were confirmed only three weeks ago, though they have been in the Senate since June 10," he added. "I am on my way to Washington to get up details for the first meeting. Roughly speaking, our purpose is to inquire into the general conditions of labor in the principal industries of the United States, including agriculture, into relations between employers and employes, conditions of sanitation, safety, methods for avoiding or adjusting labor disputes through mediation and negotiation, the smuggling of Asiatics into the United States or its possessions, and the underlying causes of dissatisfaction in the industrial situation.

"The bill providing for this commission grew out of a campaign begun by the Rev. Stephen S. Wise, Samuel McCune Lindsay, Dr. Edward T. Devine, Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Miss Lillian D. Wald, Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks, John A. Fitch, Adolph Lewisohn and others who pushed legislation which went through during the Taft Administration. President Taft made appointments to the Commission, but the same people who had fathered the law made protests against the confirmation, charging that it was not non-partisan, and that Labor was not properly represented. The Labor members were selected by their own organization, and on this Commission are the same as on the first appointed.

"The law provides for three years of work, with a preliminary report to be made in six months. It also provides for sub-committees to take testimony wherever necessary in the United States and in Europe. The recent appointments seem to have met with the approval of the committee. We have on the Commission in Prof. Commons, the head of the Wisconsin Industrial Commission, the most accomplished political economist of this time. He has a perfect working scheme, including state officers and labor unions and employers of labor, who are working together.

"Mr. Weinstock, in behalf of the State of California, has studied industrial questions, and made an independent investigation of the San Diego affair, the Los Angeles dynamitings, and so on. Mrs. Harriman will take a very prominent and very active part in the work of the Commission, and will have particular charge of the women and children's end of the investigation.

"The sort of work we shall accomplish depends largely upon the Commission itself. We have the examples of many other commissions before us. If it can be accomplished, we are going to try to do some constructive work. If everything is smoothed out in Washington, and the appropriation is available, we hope to get to work by the middle of next month. Our headquarters will be in Washington, and there our hearings will mainly be held."

SINK HARLEM TUNNELS.

Second Section of Subway Tubes Put in Place in the River.

The second of the four sections of the subway tubes to run under the Harlem River was lowered into place yesterday by the contractors, Arthur McMullen & Hoff. This section was 220 feet long and consisted of four tubes, each with an 18-foot clearance. The section was floated into place in the middle of the Harlem River and was then slowly lowered by the admission of water into the tubes themselves and the air chambers on the top of the raft.

Commissioners Eustis and Maltbie and representatives of the Public Service Commission and engineers were entertained by the contractors at luncheon and invited to see the operation. Among those present were James B. Walker, assistant secretary of the Commission; Robert Ridgway, its engineer in charge of construction; C. V. V. Power, divisional engineer; Arthur McMullen, Olaf Hoff, N. R. Melvin, superintendent of construction for the contractors; George K. Graham and George Donnelly, representing the Bronx authorities.

The formal public hearings were held yesterday by the Commission on the forms of contract for the construction of the subway sections forming the Manhattan approaches to the two East River tunnels of the new system. Similar hearings are to be held on Oct. 14 on the forms of contract for the tunnels themselves. One of these, to be operated by the Interborough, will begin at Old Slip Manhattan and run under the East River to Clark Street, Brooklyn, with a station at Henry Street. The other, which has been assigned to the B. R. T., will begin at Whitehall Street, Manhattan, and run under the East River to Montague Street, Brooklyn, with a station at Clinton Street.

Only the approval of the Interborough is necessary now before the Commission can advertise for bids for the construction of Section 5 of the Seventh Avenue line, which runs from the heighborhood of Sixteenth Street to Thirtieth Street. This approval must be given within ten days. Bids for the construction of Section 2 of the same line will be opened on Oct. 1.

GOES INSANE IN STATION.

Mrs. Powell Taken to Bellevue from Pennsylvania Building.

Special Detective McDermott of the Pennsylvania Railroad was standing in the centre of the main waiting room of the Pennsylvania Station, at Thirty-second Street and Seventh Avenue, late last night, when a well-dressed woman, who said later that she was Mrs. Helen Powell of 404 West Fifty-third Street, ran up to him. She threw her arms around his neck, crying out, "Save me from that woman! She has trailed me all over. She means to injure me."

McDermott looked about, but could see no one following the woman, and he took her to the West Thirtieth Street Station. Dr. Farnum was summoned from the New York Hospital, and, after examining the young woman, suggested that she should be sent to the Bellevue psycopathic ward for observation. A nurse and an ambulance were called from that institution and Mrs. Powell was taken there.

ASSAILS WILSON POLICY.

Our Government Should Recognize Huerta, Says Harry S. Bryan.

Harry S. Bryan, President and General Manager of the Compania Mexicana de Impermeables of the City of Mexico, in New York on his way back to the capital of Mexico, is outspoken in his disapproval of the Wilson policy toward Mexico and accuses the American Government of unwarranted interference. Mr. Bryan has been in the United States two weeks. In that time he has visited his old home in Akron, Ohio., and came to New York from Washington, fresh from an interview with Assistant Secretary of State Osborne. He sails for Mexico with his wife next week.

Mr. Bryan, whose firm is interested to the extent of $150,000 in Mexico, declares that President Wilson's American evacuation order was a mistake. He also asserts that the United States has no definite policy toward Mexico. He says he urged the State Department to assume an attitude toward Mexico that would be assuring to both Mexicans and Americans.

"The only policy President Wilson seems to have is to prevent war," said Mr. Bryan, "and that is a laudable policy. But in the meantime the patrolling of the Mexican frontier with American soldiers is keeping alive the Constitutional movement and kindling the flames of insurrection.

"There is only one thing to do in Mexico and that is to recognize Huerta as President. Huerta is not much of a man and is not much of a force, but he is President and was elected by a Congress that has the appearance of more legality than any of its predecessors. I suggested this to Secretary Osborne.

"'We couldn't do that,' he told me. I wanted to know why. He said, 'Why all the newspapers in the country would be down upon us. You have no idea of the feeling against the Huerta government in this country. The State Department cannot reverse itself.'

"I told Mr. Osborne that there was one thing he could be sure of and that is Huerta is a bluff. He does not want to fight with the United States. He regarded the four propositions submitted by Envoy John Lind as absurd and Americans in Mexico so regard them.

"It will be an impossibility to hold a general election in Mexico. It simply cannot be done and all of the powers at Washington cannot make Americans of Mexicans.

"Americans are safe in Mexico City. In the interior it is different. You cannot get anywhere by rail. The revolt there will continue as long as Carranza can keep up the fight in the North and that will be eternity if the American Government continues to recognize belligerency in Mexico by guarding the Texas border. We ought to do one thing or another. Either recognize Huerta or take some other course. Personally I do not like Huerta, but as he is the Government now, recognize him, I say."

Mr. Bryan has little faith in Felix Diaz as a candidate. He also doubts the ability of Frederico Gamboa, Minister of Foreign Affairs and candidate of the Catholic party, to restore order in Mexico.

TAKES UP HERESY CHARGES.

Committee of Presbyterian Assembly Keeps Inquiry Secret.

The Committee of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, appointed in May to investigate the charges of heresy against the Union Theological Seminary, held its first meeting yesterday in the Waldorf. The Rev. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle, was in the chair, and there were present Rush Taggart of this city, George V. Massey of Philadelphia, Frank J. Loesch of Chicago, the Rev. W. C. Robinson of Philadelphia, and Dr. Roberts, the Secretary. The Rev. Drs. Work and Raymond of Buffalo were not present. Dr. Raymond was selected to take the place of Dr. George Alexander of the University Place Church, who refused to serve on the committee. His refusal was largely because of criticism that the influence of the Presbytery of New York was too strong in the committee.

Dr. Matthews said that nothing would be made public as to the nature of the evidence or the findings until the committee report was made next year.

The present committee was preceded by one of which the Rev. John F. Carson of Brooklyn was Chairman. The appointment of the Dr. Matthews Committee followed two days of bitter controversy in the meeting of the Assembly in Atlanta, Ga. Charges of teaching Pantheism and Hindu philosophy were made against the Faculty of the seminary.

In presenting a minority report Dr Montfort, editor of The Herald and Presbyter, published in Cincinnati, bitterly attacked the Union Faculty. The issue, he declared, lay between true faith and Hindu philosophy masqueraded in the guise of Christianity.

To these attacks Dr. Francis E. Brown, President of the seminary, made a spirited retort. He said that the seminary considered itself independent of the Assembly.

After a bitter debate Dr. Matthews introduced a motion for a special committee. It is that committee that held its first meeting here yesterday.

SAY TOWERMAN ERRED.

Failure to Hold Train Caused Collision on Long Island Road.

Evidence was given yesterday at the special inquiry into the recent wreck on the Long Island Railroad by the Public Service Commission as to the system of signals which regulated the stretch of the single track on which the accident occurred. H. W. Thornton, General Manager of the line, said that he was informed that the eastbound train, 308, was cleared into the single track stretch at what was known as the J—C junction, and received no orders below that point.

The train was late, he said, and had to go straight through at the risk of a theoretical collision which might occur from the rear. As a matter of fact, he asserted the westbound train, 311, had the right of way. Under the rules of the road 308 should have been held until 311 had passed or orders had been given to clear the signal for 308.

Mr. Thornton explained that the towerman at J. C., Walter R. Maize, was asked several times by the train dispatcher as to the whereabouts of No. 308, and that these inquiries should have been understood by him to mean that he was to inform the dispatcher as soon as No. 308 approached and to hold the train for orders.

Officials of the road told the commission that since the accident the company had put into operation a complete manual block system on this stretch of single track, which will make accidents of this kind impossible.

The hearing was adjourned until next Thursday morning.

JAIL FOR WIFE DESERTERS.

Two Men Who Abandoned Families Get Long Terms.

Barney Bloom and Abraham Akaviar, who deserted their families, received heavy sentences yesterday from Judge Rosalsky and Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions. Barney Bloom deserted his wife and children in 1907, leaving them homeless and destitute. They were cared for subsequently by charitable organizations. Judge Rosalsky sentenced him to not less than one year in the State Penitentiary and imposed a fine of $500, to be served at the rate of a day for each dollar.

Abraham Akaviar abandoned his wife and child in the early part of 1912 and went to Chicago. He was arrested there and was brought back to New York last week by Detective Russo. Judge Mulqueen sentenced him to serve a term not less than one year in State Prison and imposed a fine of $1,000, to be served at the rate of a day's imprisonment for each dollar.

SABLES NOW SCARCE, SAYS FUR HUNTER

As the Russian Government Has Forbidden Killing of More Animals Until 1916.

BOAT NOW IN ARCTIC ICE

But Whaling Is Not So Profitable as When Whalebone Was More Popular.

Henry C. Hibbard of Seattle, whose firm operates a trading steamer to the coast of Siberia, and buys furs there and in Alaska, says that sables have been difficult to get this season, owing to the fact that the Russian Government has forbidden the killing of more animals until 1916. Mr. Hibbard is on his way to Europe with 350 skins collected by his steamer on her last trip.

"Our boat goes from Seattle to Unalaska and thence to Petropavlovsk, and then up the coast to Anidir, around to Kolushin Bay and thence back to Nome," said Mr. Hibbard at the Astor yesterday. "She takes $100,000 worth of merchandise, and between $35,000 and $45,000 in Russian money, for the purposes of trading and bartering for furs, whalebone and ivory. This year she made a specialty of sables, and if the boat had been more liberally supplied with money we could have got a great deal more, in spite of the scarcity of the supply.

"Petropavlovsk is the centre of the sable industry in Siberia, traders and hunters bringing their skins there to sell or exchange. The London market is usually a great deal better for undressed skins than any in this country, and Leipsic is good, also. The selling markets that are the best are Paris, Vienna and St. Petersburg. Yet, if women knew it who buy their furs over there, they might be able to do a great deal better in this country.

"I know of a New York woman who purchased a sable coat in Paris that cost her $15,000, and presumably she had to pay 35 per cent. duty to get it into this country. Her sister, who lives in Seattle, wanted to get a similar coat, and she asked me what I thought it would cost. I told her I could save for her at least 50 per cent. She gave the order, and there was made up for her in this country a coat that cost a little under $7,000, and which was a far better garment than the one her sister had paid $15,000 for in Paris.

"Of course, Americans are big buyers of furs. But the fur game is funny. We have brought furs from Seattle to New York and offered them to all the big dealers, who have absolutely refused to buy. Then we would ship them to the London sales, and in many cases American buyers would purchase our furs and bring them back here, though if they bought them dressed they had to pay duty on them.

"Silver foxes are rather scarce this year, especially choice skins. I sold two skins the other day for $1,000 apiece which the retail customer will probably pay $2,000 apiece for when they are made up.

"After our boat gets back from Nome she makes a trip to Herschel island, at the mouth of the Mackenzie River. On her last trip she took a big cargo for the Stefansson party. She is the only craft that makes a regular annual trip up there, her main purpose being whaling. This time she is carrying a moving picture camera with 15,000 feet of film, and is looking for the bowhead whale, which is of considerable value because of the whalebone it yields. As against the $700 value of the sperm whale, the bowhead is worth $8,000, though its value has dwindled tremendously, because women nowadays wear so little whalebone in their corsets. Formerly a bowhead was worth $20,000. Last year, in four months, we caught eleven—a phenomenal number.

"The ice there is closing in already. We had news a while back that all the boats were frozen in and would not get back this Winter, but I think ours will return. She carries a crew of forty-five men, and was built for bucking ice.

"Business conditions in Seattle are excellent. Everything is going ahead fine. The big gold strike at Shushana, Alaska, has drawn lots of people through Seattle of late.

"By the way, owing to the Government restrictions against the killing of polar bears, those skins are getting scarcer. We had 150 skins come in not long ago, which I imagine is about half the world's supply of the skins this year. They have to come from the Siberian side.

"Sealskins are showing a marked decline. They are going out of style, and muskrat is taking their place. I could get real sealskin a lot easier than muskrat."

JEROME AIDS INJURED MAN.

Picks Up V. E. Consalus After Auto Spill and Hurries Him to Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 26.—William Travers Jerome, while returning from a dinner at Canton's Hotel on the Loudenville Road with Isidore Kresel and Franklin Kennedy, came upon an overturned automobile in the Shaker Road, a mile west of Albany at 10 o'clock to-night and picked up Victor E. Consalus, President and Treasurer of the Consalus Automobile Company of Albany, who was injured, and rushed him in to the Albany Hospital.

Mr. Consalus, who lives at 1403 State Street, Schenectady, is believed to be seriously injured. Mr. Jerome assisted in carrying the man to the operating table at the hospital and stood by him until he was put to bed.

CUTS TAPE IN TRUST SUITS.

Department of Justice Finds a Way to Hurry Them Along.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Under a new interpretation of the law designed to expedite anti-trust cases through the courts, the Department of Justice has just discovered that an anti-trust suit may be filed in a district court presided over by a single judge and directly appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

Under Attorney General Wickersham the law was construed as making it necessary to file an "expediting certificate" which placed the suit in the hands of three circuit judges sitting as a district court. Except in extraordinary cases expediting certificates were not to be filed in the future.

AUTO KILLS LITTLE GIRL.

Knocks Her Down as She Is Going to See Moving-Picture Show.

Eva Pillow, 10 years old, of 40 Vineyard Avenue, Yonkers, was knocked down by an automobile about a mile from her home last evening, and so badly crushed that she died in the ambulance while on the way to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The girl, who was crossing Riverdale Avenue, at Hudson Street, was bound for a moving picture house near by. She did not notice the approach of the auto of H. L. Levy of 17 Livingston Place. The chauffeur, William B. Horton, did not see the girl until the machine was upon her. Horton was arrested.

Sympathy to Ford's Family.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 26.—A resolution of sympathy with the members of the family of the late Patrick Ford of New York was adopted by the Urban Council to-day.

BUREAU TO IDENTIFY BODIES

Will Be Established as a Result of the Sullivan Case.

After an investigation of the circumstances attending the death of "Big Tim" Sullivan, Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty reported yesterday that he had found no evidence that death was caused either by suicide or foul play, but he did find evidence of neglect in the attempt to identify the body, and he recommends the establishment at Headquarters as a part of the Detective Bureau of a Bureau of Identification of Bodies. It is understood that Commissioner Waldo will carry this recommendation into effect.

Such a bureau would keep on record photographs of bodies found, finger prints, and accurate measurements. Clothing and other articles that might lead to identification would be stored there, and there would be scientifically accurate descriptions of all bodies found within the limits of the city accessible to inquirers and to the newspapers.

One member of the special staff for this bureau is as good as selected now, and that is Patrolman Peter Purfield, who, without ever having seen the Congressman alive, saved him from Potter's Field by his eleventh-hour recognition and so solved what probably would otherwise have remained the permanent mystery of the disappearance of "Big Tim." Mr. Dougherty recommends that Purfield's alertness be rewarded with a promotion to the rank of first-grade detective. Purfield has been on the force twenty years and has a clean record.

Mr. Dougherty also censures Detectives Cavanaugh and Clark for their laxity in the case—Cavanaugh, who has since retired, for his failure to make a thorough examination and investigation, and Clark for having signed Cavanaugh's report without doing any investigation of his own. He also censures the late Congressman's nurse, Francis J. McCloskey, for his carelessness in permitting the patient to wander off alone.

HELD UP AGED WOMAN

But Thieves Were Caught Who Tore Shawl from Her Shoulders.

Wrapped in a newly purchased shawl, Mrs. Mary Grossman, who is 85 years old, was walking toward her home at 71 East 109th Street yesterday afternoon, when, as she was going along Park Avenue, she was set upon by three men. One clutched her purse which had $1.85 in it, another pinioned her arms and the third tore her shawl from her shoulders. Then they ran off, leaving Mrs. Grossman so dazed and weak that she tottered home without telling anyone of what had happened to her. Nevertheless, before the afternoon was over, two youths had pleaded guilty to the robbery in the Harlem Court.

It was the shawl that did it. Detectives Quaine and Elkin of the East 104th Street station were in a Third Avenue pawn-shop when two young men entered, one of them with a bundle. At the sight of the detectives they retreated. There was a chase and a capture. The bundle was the shawl and, according to the police, the two prisoners confessed to the robbery after first pretending that the shawl belonged to the sister of one of them. The prisoners said they were Vincenzo Silvestri and Louis Lara of 235 East 107th Street.

HORSFIELD TO DINE BURTON

Thinks Skipper of Lipton's Yacht Among Best in England.

Major George William Horsfield of the Essex and Suffolk Royal Garrison Artillery, who founded the Suffolk County Englishmen's Association when he was in New York last Spring, arrived yesterday on the Baltic from Liverpool, and will spend three months in this city.

The Major said that he intended to make arrangements to give a dinner to Capt. William P. Burton when he arrived here to sail Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht for the America's Cup. "Burton is one of the best amateur yachtsmen in England," said the Major, "but I do not know how he will do here, where sailing conditions are so different."

Mrs. McAndless Weds Opera Singer

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 26.—Evelyn E. McAndless, who said she was divorced from David McAndless of White Plains in June, 1912, was married here this afternoon to Adolf Nickels, a German opera singer. Mrs. Nickels is the daughter of Col. Abraham Bassford of New York.

FEDERAL SUPPLY PROPOSALS.

No further information regarding these projects is available in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Correspondence regarding them should be direct with the offices named.

DRY GOODS TRADE IS ACTIVE

Advance in Prices of Ginghams, Print Cloths, and Percales.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

"The impetus given to the dry goods trade by the seasonable weather of the past week has added a comfortable increase to the gain in September business as contrasted with that of the same month a year ago. There is strong demand for merchandise to take care of the Fall trade.

"Owing to the continuous rise in the price of raw cotton, two well-known brands of gingham were advanced one-half cent a yard during the week. A strong advance has also been made on print cloths, and the wider goods, such as are used for percales, the higher count cloths having advanced one cent a yard.

"Prices now current on wool dress goods are probably as low as or lower than they will be later. Foreign manufacturers are asking advances on reorders of both cotton and wool goods.

"The fall openings that are being held by retailers throughout the country are resulting in heavy shipments of ready-to-wear apparel for women, misses and children. As pointed out by an Eastern cloak and suit trade publication, October deliveries of ready-to-wear apparel will be greatly interfered with, owing to an unusual number of Jewish holidays, which will limit many manufacturers to eighteen working days during the coming month. Retailers will need to make provision for their wants of the next two months at once in order to guard against the possibility of not having merchandise on hand to take care of their trade during the best part of the selling season."

MOTORS HAS BETTER YEAR.

Sales Advanced $22,000,000 and Net Profits $3,445,000.

The annual report of the General Motors Company for the year ended on July 31 says that subsidiary companies operated at a loss were few in number, and that the policy would be continued of preserving as going companies only those which yield a profit. The application of this rule last year enabled the company to make gross sales amounting to $85,603,920, an increase of nearly $22,000,000 over 1912, while net profits of $8,284,139 represented an advance of $3,445,000. A balance of $7,459,000 was left after the payment of fixed charges, which allowed for the usual 7 per cent. preferred dividend and applied to the surplus account the equivalent of 3.8 per cent. on the common shares. Total surplus at the close of the year was $7,-873,000.

The completion of readjustments among the affiliated companies, the report said, had necessitated the writing off from the profit and loss account of $4,728,000. The outstanding funded debt on July 31 consisted of $10,935,000 first lien 6 per cent. notes, being the unretired portion of an issue of $15,000,000 dated Oct. 1, 1910. The company's assets were placed at $20,458,977, a gain of $1,178,000 in the year.

PLAN NEW MOTOR ROUTE IN JERSEY

Change on Road to Coast Would End Eight Grade Crossings

—Work on Riverside.

According to a dispatch to THE TIMES from Trenton, should the State Road Department act upon the recommendation of Job H. Lippincott, Motor Vehicle Commissioner, that a road in Cape May County be improved, a new route will be opened to automobilists to the Jersey coast. With this change eight grade crossings will be eliminated. Mr. Lippincott has written to the Road Department as follows:

"I am forwarding herewith a blue print prepared by L. M. Rice, county engineer of Cape May, indicating a manner in which one of the main arteries of travel to the coast could be so changed as to eliminate eight of our grade crossings. Upon examination of this map, it would seem that by changing two and three-quarter miles of road, this very important result could be obtained. I am in favor of any scheme which would tend to eliminate grade crossings and this plan appeals to me as a practical method of doing so. I am informed by the local authorities of Cape May County that the railroads would be very glad to give assistance to the State authorities in this matter."

***

Work was begun this week on a contract which includes the resurfacing of Riverside Drive from Seventy-second to 110th Street. The specifications for then new pavement, so badly needed on this thoroughfare, call for a 6-inch foundation of Portland cement concrete, on which there is being laid a 3-inch surface of asphaltic concrete composed of crushed stone and asphalt. The contractors have agreed to maintain this pavement for five years, so that for that term at least motorists are assured against the rutted conditions which have made the drive a place of dread. The work is now progressing at the rate of from a block and a half to two blocks a day. The surface is of the same type as that tested by the Park Department during the Summer at the circle at Eighth Avenue and 110th Street, a point subject to very heavy motor traffic.

***

At a meeting held yesterday the chairmen of the Touring and Contest Committees of the Motor Dealers' Contest Association decided to hold a three-day reliability contest on Nov. 12, 13, and 14. David Beecroft, Emanuel Lascaris and George H. Robertson selected three routes. On the first day the run will be to Westchester, on the second day into Connecticut, and on the third over Long Island roads. The starts and finishes will all be in New York City. The contest will be for non-stock cars, and Mr. Beecroft is now formulating rules which will be submitted to the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association. It is believed that these rules will be adopted as those to govern all touring contests during the coming year.

At its annual meeting on Thursday night the New York Garage Association elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Capt. L. J. Jesselyn, President; William Burrows, Vice-President; George H. Reaney, Treasurer, and Charles T. Potter, Secretary. Plans were discussed for the establishment of a credit bureau of information for the benefit of the members of the association, and also for a general increase in storage charges, accompanied by a reduction in the price of gasoline at garages. This is a plan toward which Capt. Jesselyn and Mr. Potter are particularly favorable, as one tending to the greater satisfaction of customers.

New officers were elected at the recent annual meeting of the Simplex Automobile Company's stockholders, including Henry Lockhart, Jr., President; Otto Boessneck, First Vice-President; J. Hopkins Smith, Jr., Second Vice-President, and C. T. Neuburg, Secretary and Treasurer. In addition to these officers Hobart J. Park, G. Y. Lansing, Robert Behr, John C. Dale, C. E. Franquist, C. C. Goodrich and Hugo Boesneck were elected Directors. Mr. Dale will continue as sales manager, and Fred J. Titus has been engaged as assistant in view of the active campaign which is to be begun at once. It is planned to double the output of the factory at New Brunswick, N. J. "Automobile Row" also heard yesterday of the appointment of Rollin W. Hutchinson, Jr., as traffic engineer of the Packard Company, and of the fact that the Overland would be in its new quarters at Broadway and Fifty-fifth Street by Oct. 1.

ELECTED TO THE RUTLAND.

Elliott and Cuyler Succeed Mellen and Ledyard as Directors.

Howard Elliott and T. De Witt Cuyler were elected Directors of the Rutland Railroad yesterday, to succeed Charles S. Mellen and Lewis Cass Ledyard.

At the weekly meeting of the executive committee of the New Haven road, President Elliott said that the estimated gross earnings of the company and its subsidiary lines for the first three weeks of September showed a decrease of $121,500, and those of the Boston & Maine a decrease of $119,000, while the Maine Central showed an increase of $15,000.

President Elliott received yesterday a loving cup from the Chamber of Commerce of Spokane, Wash., in appreciation of his services to the city and "The Inland Empire."

—THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission began to receive applications yesterday for appointment of probation officer, male and female. Applications will be received until 4 P. M. on Oct. 10. The age limits are from 25 to 50 years. There is one vacancy in Brooklyn. The usual salary is from $600 to $1,200 a year.

The commission has approved the following:

Letter from Thomas G. Harr, 33 Crescent Avenue, New Brighton, saying that when he was notified by the commission to appear for a medical re-examination for patrolman, he was out of town and requesting that a later date be set for him. Examination withheld for 30 days.

Letter from Arthur L. Morgan, 1,772 Broadway, saying that he has been working as a first grade clerk in the Health Department since May and has not received his salary for the months of July and August, because he did not appear for non-competitive examination by the commission. He says that he did not receive a notice to appear for non-competitive examination. New examination allowed.

Request of Julius Bohn that certification of his name from the list of fireman be withheld for two weeks.

Request of Daniel McAlinden that certification of his name from the list of fireman be withheld for one year, because his employer died recently and it will be necessary for him to instruct a member of the family in the management of the business.

Request of Frank P. Ryan that his name be restored to the preferred list of temporary clerk. His declination on account of illness was approved recently by the commission.

Letter from Arthur B. Baub declining appointment from the list of laboratory assistant (chemical) because he is taking a special course at Columbia University.

Request of Thomas J. D. Reilly that certification of his name from the list of fireman be withheld until he completes his probationary period as patrolman.

Request of Philip Rusco that his name be restored to the list of court attendant for the Borough of the Bronx. Certification was withheld at his own request.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination, to be held at the New York Custom House, for stenographer—botanical translator, for both men and women, on Oct. 8, to fill a vacancy in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at $1,000 a year, and vacancies as they may occur in places requiring similar qualifications. It is desired to obtain the services of a competent stenographer and typewriter who has a knowledge of German and one other foreign language, either French, Italian, or Latin, and has had some experience in scientific work, preferably either in botany, pathology, or agriculture. Competitors will be examined in stenography, copying from rough draft, copying and spacing, copying from plain copy, time consumed on typewriting tests, German, French, Italian, or Latin, education, training, and experience. Applicants must have reached their 20th but not their 35th birthday on the date of the examination.

Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—It is decidedly colder in the Ohio Valley and the lake region, and temperatures are below the seasonal average between the two great mountain ranges of the country. In the Atlantic States and the extreme West it is somewhat warmer except in the North Pacific States.

There will be local rains Saturday in New England and the greater portion of the middle Atlantic States, and in the Gulf States and Tennessee, followed by generally fair weather Sunday except in the East Gulf States, where local rains will probably continue and extend into the South Atlantic States.

Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair Saturday and Sunday.

It will be cooler Saturday in the interior of New England and the Middle Atlantic and Gulf States and warmer in the Rocky Mountain region. It will be warmer Sunday in the Central Valleys and somewhat cooler in the Middle and South Atlantic States.

There are still some signs of a disturbance near the Texas Coast, but pressure is rising and no high winds have been reported. There were very heavy rains, however, in Western Louisiana and East Texas, and light rains northward and westward into Arkansas and Oklahoma. There was no other precipitation over the country except some light rains in the Ohio Valley and the lake region.

Winds along the North and Middle Atlantic Coast will be moderate west; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate, mostly east.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York—Local rains and somewhat cooler Saturday; Sunday, fair; moderate west winds.

Southern New England—Increasing cloudiness Saturday, local rains and cooler west portion; Sunday, probably fair, moderate west winds.

New Jersey.—Increasing cloudiness Saturday; Sunday, fair and somewhat cooler; light to moderate west winds.

Western New York—Fair and cooler Saturday; Sunday fair, moderate west winds, becoming variable.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Unsettled Saturday, probably local rains and cooler north and west portions; Sunday, fair; light to moderate west winds.

Northern New England—Local rains Saturday, cooler northwest portion; Sunday, probably fair; moderate west winds.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Sharp Advance in Union Pacific Leads Market Upward—Banks Gaining Cash.

For the first time in four days the general level of prices on the Stock Exchange showed yesterday a net gain. The improvement, however, was not uniform, nor was it extensive except in a very few issues. Indeed, of all the active shares Union Pacific was the only one which showed more than a fractional gain, and some of these stocks, including United States Steel, closed at a slight net loss. It was around Union Pacific that practically the whole market interest of the day centred, and in Stock Exchange discussion not much else was talked of than the probability of some large distribution to the holders of that stock.

The net gain of over two points in Union Pacific, which lifted it so conspicuously above the rest of the list naturally enough strengthened the expectation of an early announcement of the Union Pacific directors' plans, but no authentic information as to what those plans were became available yesterday. Members of the board said that public announcement would be made just as soon as any definite decision had been reached, and it is, of course, eminently proper and even necessary that this should be done. It has all along been recognized that any distribution would raise the question of the rights of the two classes of stockholders. It may be assumed that the company is desirous of avoiding litigation over any plan it may determine upon, and it was thought yesterday that the desire to use every possible precaution to avoid any legal attack on the plans which the Directors had passed on was one reason for the lack of definite information regarding the talked-of distribution. While the form of any distribution which may be made is still unknown, the financial district is coming around to the belief that it will be part in cash and part in securities. There is one phase of the matter which seems to have been pretty definitely settled. If a large distribution is decided on, it was said yesterday, the present dividend rate will surely be reduced. How much it will be reduced, it is believed, upon the size of the special distribution. From the beginning a reduction in the dividend has been a part of the plan for a special disbursement to the stockholders.

If market attention had not been so closely directed to the affairs of the Union Pacific, almost to the exclusion of other matters, more attention would probably have been paid to the indications of increasing ease in the money market. The estimates of the currency movement indicated an even larger gain in cash than was shown by last week's bank statement, and the tone of the money market was again easier. The fact that lenders are preferring the longer maturities shows the view that is generally taken of the probable position of the money market during the early months of next year. Seven months' loans have been reported at rates as low as 4¾ per cent., and the commerical paper market is reflecting the increasing supply of funds. Some paper has been discounted as low as 5½ per cent.

The story of the money market this month would probably have been very different had it not been for the large deposits which the Treasury has recently made. More money was being put out yesterday, and there was increased faith in the United States bonds by banks which have been designated as depositories for these crop-moving funds. The 2's which two days ago sold on the Stock Exchange as low as 96 were traded in yesterday in the open market up to 96⅞. The condition of the bond market at large continues satisfactory, for no reaction has yet occurred from the improvement lately noted in the investment demand.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2¾@3 per cent., with the last loan at 2¾ per cent. The renewal rate was 2¾ per cent.

Time money rates were 4½@4¼ per cent. for sixty days, 4½@4¾ per cent. for ninety days, 4¾@5 per cent. for four months and 4½@5 per cent. for five and six months.

Commercial paper was quoted at 5¾@6 per cent. for the best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $272,165,700; balances, $13,241,767; Sub-Treasury credit balance, $760,113.

The local banks lost $347,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations this week.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 3⅞@4 per cent. for short bills and 4 3-16@4 5-16 per cent. for three months' bills; Paris, 3% per cent. and Berlin, 5½@5⅝ per cent. Money was 5 per cent. in Berlin and 3@3½ per cent. in London.

The Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 42 pfennigs. The Paris check rate on London was 25f 25c.

Foreign exchange rates at the points noted were quoted as follows:

FINANCIAL NOTES.

R. Parsons has been elected a Director of the Florida East Coast Railway to succeed the late H. M. Flagler.

The Norfolk Southern Railway has applied to the New York Stock Exchange to list $4,530,000 additional 1st and refunding mortgage bonds, series "A," due in 1961.

Richard C. Rice of J. K. Rice, Jr., & Co. sails to-day on the Oceanic for a six weeks' trip abroad.

The Board of Directors of the Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Company declared a dividend yesterday of 2¼ per cent., payable October 20.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Union Pacific the Leader.

The strength of Union Pacific in early trading yesterday was credited to short covering by the element of professional traders, who have scoffed all along at the possibility of an extra dividend. They reasoned that a portion of the short interest had become weakkneed over the persistence of rumors in the Street about an imminent melon-cutting, and were hurrying to cover lest a sudden announcement should catch them napping. Time passed and Union Pacific stock continued to stand head and shoulders above the other favorite speculative issues. Pressure against Steel and Amalgamated Copper failed to depress the Union Pacific, and when a rather unfavorable statement of earnings for August appeared and the quotation still held firmly up around 160, the scoffers conceded that there must have been some buying for the long account after all. The August earnings statement was not strikingly poor, with a decrease in net income of $582,000, but it denoted an increase in operating costs sufficiently great to have caused, in all probability, some speculative selling at times when the issue was attracting only casual attention. The vigor with which the issue rose and maintained its advantage in a session when other leading shares were acting in rather indifferent fashion was considered as proof sufficient that talk of a big disbursement had not lost any charm by reason of constant repetition.

London Bought Union, Sold Others.

London participated moderately on both sides of the market, but traders over there concentrated their buying while selling orders were distributed among a number of international issues. The demand for Union Pacific was as insistent by cable as from local sources in the forepart of the day, and it was estimated by the arbitrage men that about 10,000 shares were taken up during the session for foreign account. At the same time Steel and Amalgamated were sold, the balance of sales of these issues being reckoned at about 5,000 shares.

A Blow at Copper Production.

Another perplexing factor was injected into the copper metal business yesterday through news from Butte that the Anaconda Company's giant Washoe smelter would be closed down for two weeks on Oct. 1 for repairs. The plant is the largest in the world and has a capacity of 150,000,000 pounds a year. It was figured in the trade that while the shutdown meant a decline in output of no more than 6,200,000 pounds, resumption of work would not bring an immediate return to normal smelting operations and that the amount of copper shut off from the refineries would be nearer 10,000,000 pounds. To subtract this amount of the metal from the market in periods of average supplies would not be important, but coming when world stocks have been reduced to an exceptionally low point, it is looked upon as of some moment to consumers. There was, however, no expression of anxiety displayed yestehday by haste to buy.

Explaining Fall of People's Gas.

Two explanations were advanced in the Street for yesterday's decline of People's Gas, following on the heels of a month's steady advance. One was that the recession represented simply another application of the favorite market axiom that stocks decline when "the good news is out." The good news was the fulfillment of rumored promises of a big capital increase and an increase of the dividend rate. The second explanation was that selling came from uncertainty over the way in which the new shares were to be paid for by subscribing shareholders. Accompanying early talk of an expansion of the stock were hints that there would be distributed a substantial amount from the surplus account in the way of an extra cash dividend, which could be applied to the purchase of the new shares. Buyers of People's Gas who were influenced by the rumors found that they came true with exactness as far as two items were concerned of the three involved, but confirmation of the last was still lacking. Rights for the new stock were quoted on the Curb yesterday at 2⅛ bid, 2¼ asked.

Question: When Is a Melon?

The stock trading community has grown susceptible lately to expectations of extraordinary disbursements to shareholders, what with constant discussion of the Union Pacific and People's Gas possibilities, one of which has become a certainty. Trading imagination apparently has not been sufficiently stimulated to make capital of the Pennsylvania's announcement that its security holdings in anthracite coal companies are to be sold. When the news came out yesterday there was hardly a word heard in the Street about the fortunate position Pennsylvania stockholders would now be in. The reason was clear when the road's stock and bond ownership in coal concerns were looked into. They amounted in the aggregate to not more than $8,500,000, a total which looked exceedingly small to be called even a half-grown melon when placed in contrast with the Pennsylvania's $493,000,000 outstanding stock.

Waiting for Rail Orders.

Steel manufacturers are waiting with considerable intentness for what next week may bring forth in the way of steel rail orders. A number of good-sized booking orders for the needs of 1914 are expected to be placed, possibly those of the Pennsylvania and New York Central. The orders are waited with scarcely less interest in financial circles than in the trade, not because they will give a line on the views of the railroad companies toward frugal or generous upkeep in the coming year, but also because general buying of steel may be stimulated or checked by the extent of the orders.

Active Odd-Lot Trading in Standard Oil at Higher Prices the Feature.

Standard Oil of New Jersey was the feature in the dealings on the Curb Market yesterday. On active odd lot trading it advanced from 372 to 377 and closed at 376, the final price representing a net gain of four points. United Cigar Stores recovered at practically all of Thursday's decline. Elsewhere the Market was quiet with price movements narrow.

Chicago Abolishes Grain "Call."

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Members of the Board of Trade to-day voted to abolish the cash grain "call" which was the point of attack made by the Federal Government in an anti-trust suit filed a year ago.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Grain prices showed general firmness until a sharp break in corn caused recessions in the others late in the day. Wheat was up ⅛c. to ¼c. at the close, but lost the better part of its gross advance. Corn receded ⅝c. to 1⅛c., and oats was able to retain only ⅛ of an early rise of a cent a bushel. In the cotton market the September option sold above the 14-cent level, and new high records were established in others. Net gains from 27 to 41 points were scored. Provisions ended weak, and cottonseed oil moved unsteadily.

WHEAT.

The forenoon developments in wheat gave the impression that the liquidating movement was over, and that bulls were ready to support the market again, at least for a turn. There was a good class of buying, which carried prices up ⅝c over the previous night, and the market held very steady up to the last hour. Then, in sympathy with a sudden and sharp break in corn, the market turned heavy, and at the close was only ⅛c to ¼c net higher.

The cables again showed little important change. Liverpool being ¼d to ⅝d higher, Berlin partly ⅝c higher, and Budapest 1c lower. Altogether, the Northwest receipts were 2,178 cars, including 1,081 cars at Winnipeg. Excluding North America, Broomhall estimated that world's shipments would be 8,400,000 bushels, compared with 9,224,000 bushels the previous week.

The cash market at New York was fairly steady, with No. 2 red quoted at 94½c, cost, insurance and freight basis, and 98c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 94½c, free on board, afloat.

CORN.

Corn opened a little easier because of lower cables and commission house pressure, but developed an upward tendency during the forenoon which resulted in a very strong market, and prices advanced 1¼c from the low of the day. The upturn was attended by predictions of frost over the belt and what appeared to be a renewal of bullish sentiment and good buying. Around the top, however, the market encountered heavy selling of December, which eventually undermined prices and led to a severe break in the last hour, with prices finally at the lowest of the day and ⅝c to 1⅛c under the previous night.

The export trade in the local market was quoted at 79¾c, nominal, free on board, afloat.

OATS.

There was an early advance of nearly a cent a bushel in oats and good buying for a time, gave the market a very firm undertone, part of which was due to reports of lighter country offerings and strength at Winnipeg. The market shared the late decline in other grains, however, and closed only ⅛c net higher.

Cash oats was steady here with standard white, quoted at 46½@47c; No. 2 white, 47@47¼c; No. 3 white, 46@46½c; No. 4 white, 45c@46¼c; ordinary clipped white, 45@46¼c; fancy clipped white, new, 47½@48¼c, all elevator.

COTTON.

The cotton market was extremely active and excited again yesterday, with prices making new high records on general buying, inspired by bad weather in the Southwest, and reports of a more active spot demand. The close was strong, and from 27 to 41 points net higher. December contracts sold at 13.81 during the afternoon, or practically $15 per bale above the low level of a little more than a month ago, while September cotton sold above the predicted 14-cent level.

After opening firm at an advance of 9 to 18 points, the market reacted slightly under realizing which included selling by some of the recent strongest buyers, but the character of the news from the Southwest prevented any weakness, and the market soon firmed up again on the Western belt forecast, bullish private condition figures, and encouraged by old longs. Active months sold 28 to 33 points net higher, and closed within 3 or 4 points of the best. There was a big buying movement during the last half hour, but New Orleans was barely steady after the local close, although last prices there were practically the best of the day.

Southern spot markets officially reported were generally ⅛ to ¼c higher. Two private crop reports were issued. The Turner Bureau of Memphis made the condition of the crop 64.6, or a deterioration of 3.6 per cent. for the month, while it was rumored that the National Ginners' Association made it only 61.8.

The range of contract prices in the local market to-day was as follows:

PROVISIONS.

The first tendency of the provision market was upward because of firm hogs and the early strength of corn, which induced commission house buying, but with the subsequent break in grain a sympathetic reaction followed, in which prices lost all previous gain and closed at bottom for the day. The arrivals at Chicago were 14,000 hogs, with 8,000 hogs expected on Saturday. There were 2,500 hogs at Kansas City and 5,000 hogs at Omaha, while the West had 52,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The September position was a little unsettled yesterday, but other months showed considerable strength on covering and outside buying, due to unfavorable crop news and the strength of cotton. The advance brought out more liberal offerings of crude. At the close September was 2 points net lower and other months 4 to 10 points higher.

COFFEE.

The market continued active and prices made new high records for the season at the opening, which was steady, 5 to 19 points up, with May contracts selling at 9.03. Reactions of 12 of 18 points ensued, but prices firmed again later and closed steady at a net gain of from 8 to 20 points. Sales reported of 224,500 bags included an exchange of 25,000 of December for March at 30 points. After an irregular opening, Havre had a sharp advance, but yielded, with near months leading. The reaction. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were about 5 to 10 points higher. Rain was reported in three districts of Sao Paulo, with fine weather in the other two.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Fruit of the Loom Up Again.

Further indication of the recent active markets in cotton goods came yesterday afternoon with the announcement by William E. Wall, selling agent for B. B. & R. Knight, that the price of 4—4 Fruit of the Loom muslin had been advanced to 9 cents. This is an increase of ¼ cent. Since Sept. 1 the price of Fruit of the Loom has been advanced from 8⅝ to 9 cents.

Fancy Dress Goods Will Lead.

Staple dress goods will supply only a small part of the out-of-town business in this merchandise for Spring, according to a trade authority. The great bulk of this business, he said yesterday, would be done on novelty fabrics in fancy colorings. Among the fabrics that will be popular are honeycomb, or "waffle" cloth, shepherd checks (especially in black and white effects), plaids, jacquard effects and artificial silk-filled goods. No one kind of goods can be singled out to lead, but it is expected that plaids will not be quite so popular as they were for Fall. In one quarter it is said that plaids are already on the wane and that they are being supplanted in buyers' demands by jacquard effects. Spot business with the jobbers is not overactive at the moment.

Cheap Knit Goods Scarce.

A general scarcity of cheap merchandise was reported yesterday by one of the largest factors in the local knit goods trade. This condition is especially true of men's and women's hosiery to retail at ten cents. One large wholesale buyer was unable yesterday to find a mill that would take an order for fifty cases of these goods. Colored hosiery is also hard to get in quantities. The recent strike in the New York knit goods factories was held responsible by the same buyer for his inability to get sufficient supplies of cheap sweaters. Grades of these goods selling at 50 cents and $1 are unusually scarce.

Fancy Leather Prices Go Up.

The fact that many manufacturers are running overtime on account of the approach of the Jewish holidays is materially aiding business for local jobbers and selling agents of upholstery leathers. A record run on splits is reported in one quarter, the demand for these goods being so heavy that the wholesalers are having difficulty in getting sufficient supplies from the tanneries. Prices have advanced, and now stand 15 to 20 per cent. higher than on June 1. There is a fair movement of hand and machine buffed leathers, but it is greatly overshadowed by the call for splits. Collections are reported only fair, but a good part of this business is now being done on a cash basis because of the scarcity of the most-wanted grades.

Increasing Use of Fur Trimming.

The use of fur as a trimming for women's outer garments is more and more notable as the season advances, says The Dry Goods Economist. Many of the collars, instead of being made entirely of fur, are edged with fur bands. Some of the more expensive coats are entirely edged with fur. The best-selling length continues to be the forty-eight-inch. There have been some calls for full-length coats, however, and this not only from the smaller trade, but also from some of the large stores. Forty-five-inch and even forty-inch coats are also included in some of the orders now being received by the manufacturers.

Spring Style Trend Already Felt.

The buyer of the men's clothing department in one of the big retail stores said yesterday that the demand for worsted fabrics, which has been a feature of the sales of piece goods for the Spring, 1914, season, was already making itself felt in the sales of Fall and Winter suits. "It is unusual," he said, "to feel the style trend of a coming season as early as this, and another peculiarity is that the more expensive worsteds are the ones that are moving. The only reason I can give for it is the wider interest and publicity given men's wear fabrics in connection with the tariff this Fall and the desire of some people to be a trifle in advance of any coming style tendency."

Moire Effect by New Process.

A new process for producing moire effects on black or colored silks and other fabrics has been patented by the Société Blasy, Verury & Cie. of St. Etienne. The new method is said to require no heated cylinders to produce the watered effect, accomplishing the same result by printing the materials with different colors by using engraved cylinders. The fabrics are moved sideways after each run to take on the next color. The blending and overlapping of colors is said to produce moire effects of more lasting nature than those made by the heated-cylinder process.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The newest London style in men's shoes is described as rectangular or square-shaped. The shoes have square yet tapering toes, are wide across the ball of the foot, and have a close-trimmed beveled edge and plain tip. Black patent leather vamps and tan uppers are also popular English fashions.

Men's collars having stripes or figures in colors on a white ground to match the shirt are coming into vogue in England.

Beaded trimmings are much in vogue this season. Wraps, boleros, and Etons are shown in a wide variety of styles, many being decorated with beaded panels or borders in Oriental designs. Coatees of chiffon and net and beaded robes are also in evidence. Beaded and jeweled ornaments and extremely long beaded tassels are used for trimming sashes. Beaded effects in flowers are also being featured.

A ruff of box-plaited white tulle, corded with black satin between the plaits, is a recent creation in the Fall neckwear field. The entire effect is finished with a draped frill of cream lace with a black picot edge.

Frilling or plaiting laces and nets are in good demand and orders for the plain nets are so unexpectedly large that the trade is finding it difficult to fill them. The use of the plain nets in color effects is a feature of many of the Fall gowns shown by the leading costumers.

Autoists' Feet Warmers Cheapened, Duty Cut on Enameled Ware.

The Board of United States General Appraisers decided yesterday that foot warmers used by automobilists were not wool manufactures not specially provided for under the Tariff act of 1909. They were assessed at 40 cents a pound under Paragraph 378. In addition three times the duty was assessed on the ground that the merchandise was unwashed wool of the first class. It was proved that the goods were in chief value of leather, and should have been taxed only 40 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 452.

B. Altman & Co. protested an assessment of a cumulative duty on gloves, but, according to the board, failed to prove their case. The board sustained protests by Hensel, Bruckmann & Lorbacher regarding iron kettles enameled on the inside. The Collector assessed 45 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 199, act of 1909 on manufactures of metal. Duty at 1½ cents a pound was allowed under Paragraph 140.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

Sustained progress along conservative lines is the keynote of advices from the leading mercantile centers. Improvement is not wholly uniform, and some sections and branches of trade reflect better conditions than others. In the aggregate, however, the volume of current transactions continues large, and though hesitancy is still shown in entering upon future commitments, the feeling of caution is less manifest than heretofore. Unseasonably low temperatures in some parts of the country have led to further claims of crop damage, but distribution of merchandise at retail has been benefited and the wholesale movement is gradually expanding. Well-maintained activity is apparent in all departments of the dry goods market, with jobbers busily engaged supplying customers' needs, and additional price advances are announced from time to time.

Bradstreet's says:

Most reports indicate that trade is better than it was at this time last year. Moreover, money appears to be a little easier, and although credits are being closely watched, mercantile borrowers are more readily accommodated. Exports of grain are heavy from both coasts, and the Orient's demand for flour is of considerable volume. Evidently, consumption of steel products is large, and for that reason prices on finished goods reflect but relatively small concessions. Railroad traffic in the Middle West is heavy, but west of the Missouri River it shows a loss, and expectations suggest a further reduction. Commodity markets reflect easing, due to enlarged new Spring wheat and other cereal movement, but new high prices of the year for cotton, reports from which do not improve, though it might be pointed out that the movement is still in excess of any preceding year, for which, however, the high prices may be partly responsible.

MISCELLANEOUS MARKETS.

BEEF.—There were no wholesale price changes reported yesterday for Western beef cuts.

SUGAR.—The refined sugar market was quiet and unchanged. The raw sugar market was also quiet. The London beet sugar market was steady, standing at 9s 7½d for September, 9s 3¾d for October, and 9s 8¾d for May.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.—There was a good demand for molasses, and prices were firm. Syrups were steady and unchanged.

RICE.—Only quiet trading was noted yesterday in the local rice market.

FLOUR AND MEAL.—The flour market continued easy, and buyers were holding off awaiting further developments in wheat.

OILS.—Petroleum was steady and unchanged. The domestic varieties of raw linseed oil were 2 cents lower. Calcutta raw remained unchanged.

NAVAL STORES.—Turpentine was steady and unchanged yesterday. Resin was dull and tar was quiet and unchanged.

BUSINESS NOTES.

According to a recent report, heavy and unseasonable rains in the Smyrna district, just as the fig crop was being gathered and dried, have done considerable damage. Leading packers estimate that the yield will be cut about 6 to 8 per cent. in quantity, and about 25 per cent. in quality.

The present low prices of rubber are tending to restrict shipments from the Amazon Valley. Many producers are refusing to send down their supplies, as at current quotations they would not receive enough to repay advances made last season. Shipments through the ports of Para, Manaos, Iquitos, and Itacoatiara to the United States and Europe during July (the first month of the 1913-1914 rubber season) amounted to only 4,189,454 pounds, against 5,027,602 pounds during the corresponding month in 1912.

A recent report gives the movement of sugar at United States Atlantic ports for the week as follows: Receipts, 58,712 tons, against 21,201 last week, 42,867 last year, and 46,688 in 1911; meltings, 49,000 tons, against 59,000, 58,000, and 45,000 respectively; total stock, 210,706 tons, against 211,054, 102,421, and 107,282 respectively.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

A report from St. Petersburg says that, in view of a good harvest from all crops and the high cost of labor, there is an unprecedented opening in the Russian Government of Saratov for agricultural machinery and implements, the demand being almost three times as great as in preceding years.

The exportations of palm oil to the United States from Liverpool in the past year were valued at $2,800,000, an increase of $700,000 over 1911.

Statistics show that 87 tons of lumber, valued at $5,298, were imported into Hungary from the United States during 1912. There were 1,482 tons of staves imported, of which the United States supplied 722 tons.

The imports into Trieste, Austria, from the United States during 1912 show a gain of $325,748 over those of 1911, and the exports to the United States show a gain of $373,047. The only countries doing a business of $1,000,000 or more with Trieste, which showed a loss in total trade, were Russia, Servia, and Uruguay.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

WALLACE MINNEMAN, shoe salesman of 2,236 Third Avenue, has filed a petition, with liabilities of $35,170 and no assets. On Jan. 27, 1913, he transferred his entire stock to Frank Flagg, as Trustee for creditors, and the amount realized was $2,040.

KERR & KRENKEL.—Peter Kerr and Kasimire Krenkel, who compose the firm of Kerr & Krenkel, building contractors, 205 West Thirtieth Street, have filed a petition, with liabilities of $13,943 and assets of $2,675.

PETER CONLAN, barkeeper of 457 West Fifty-seventh Street, has filed a petition, with liabilities of $12,115 and no assets. The Claussen-Flanagan Brewery is a creditor for $6,655.

OLIVER J. DYKEMAN, real estate broker of 571 West 159th Street, has filed a petition, with liabilities of $2,610 and no assets.

ABRAHAM HAMMER.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition filed on Sept. 8 against Abraham Hammer, manufacturer of dresses, 147 West Twenty-fifth Street, on a settlement with creditors at 25 cents on the dollar. The liabilities were $12,000.

MOSES DRAPKIN.—Judge Hough has appointed Richard S. Otto receiver for Moses Drapkin, surviving partner of the firm of M. Handin & Drapkin, furriers, of 11 East Twenty-second Street, bond $5,000, on request of creditors, whose claims aggregate $35,554. Mr. Otto agreed to serve without compensation.

ISAAC SILVERMAN.—Schedules of Isaac Silverman, dealer in dress goods, 160 Orchard Street, show liabilities $4,035 and assets $1,398.

WILLIAM S. HOFSTATTER, wholesale dealer in butter and eggs, 358 Greenwich Street, has made an assignment to Edward R. Balzer. The liabilities are said to be $21,000.

287 Business Failures This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 287 business failures in the United States during the week, against 259 for the previous week, and 228, 248, 211, and 195 for the corresponding weeks of 1912 to 1909. The Middle States had 97; New England, 24; Southern, 68; Western, 52; Northwestern, 22, and Far Western, 24. Canada had 42, against 36 for the preceding week. About 87 per cent of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 9 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

$300,000 Investment in Upper Broadway Apartment—Builder Buys in Fifty-eighth Street, near Circle—Prof. Brander Matthews Purchases West Side House—Many Suburban Sales.

Upper Broadway furnished the chief sale in the realty market yesterday, a seven-story apartment just above Bloomingdale Square with an adjoining building changing hands in a cash transaction for about $300,000.

The property sold included the seven story apartment known as the Trouville at 2,783 and 2,785 Broadway, covering a plot 50 by 100 adjoining the northwest corner of 107th Street, and the five-story building adjoining at 2,787 Broadway, on a plot 25 by 100. These two parcels were sold by N. Taylor Phillips and the buyer who has acquired a frontage of 75 feet, was represented in the deal by Walter Goldsmith as attorney.

Julian T. Saxe was the broker. The property is assessed at about $195,000, and will be held as an investment by the new owner.

58th Street Deal Near Circle.

Contracts have been signed, it was ascertained yesterday, for the purchase by a builder of the two old three-story dwellings at 312 and 314 West Fifty-eighth Street, adjoining Reisenweber's and opposite the Majestic Theatre. William R. Hearst recently bought several houses on the north side of the street west of the theatre. The two houses cover a plot 40.8 feet front and the new owner contemplates making extensive improvements. Elizabeth Bieser is the owner of record.

Prof. Matthews Buys 87th Street Home.

Prof. Brander Matthews of Columbia University has purchased from Dr. William S. Day the four-story residence at 337 West Eighty-seventh Street, on lot 18.6 by 100.8, between West End Avenue and Riverside Drive. Prof. Matthews's present home is at 681 West End Avenue. The F. R. Wood, W. H. Dolson Company were the brokers in the sale.

Buys Fort Washington Apartment.

Oswald Berls, an out-of-town investor, took title yesterday from Alexander McDowell to the six-story apartment with stores on the northwest corner of Audubon Avenue and 179th Street. The plot is 50 by 100 and the house was erected about two years ago by the seller. Knap & Wasson were the brokers in the transaction and they have been appointed agents of the premises by the new owner.

A Recent Buyer.

William Abramson is the buyer of 130 West Thirtieth Street, sold recently by Anna C. Fowler.

Bronx.

An investor has purchased from William J. Wemple 1,125 Tinton Avenue, a five-story twenty-five-family new law tenement, on a plot 40 by 127 feet. The property is located between 166th and 167th Streets. Joseph P. Day acted as the broker.

The Bryant Park Realty Company sold for John Watson 2,085 Tiebout Avenue, a two-story frame dwelling, on lot 16.8 by 90, near 180th Street, to Lillian Koepke, who gave in exchange property at Eastport, L. I.

Smith & Phelps have placed a first mortgage of $20,000 on the five-story flat, 25 by 100, situated at the southwest corner of Prospect Avenue and Oakland Place.

Brooklyn.

The Alco Building Company has sold at Mapleton Park to the Kraslow Construction Company a parcel of land, corner of Sixty-fourth Street and Twentieth Avenue, adjoining the Twentieth Avenue Station. Also to Louis Gold a plot, corner of Sixty-third Street and Twentieth Avenue.

Wood, Harmon & Co. have sold at Hyde Park, Flatbush, lots to A. S. Kulen, Miss A. E. Garvin, J. F. Blythe, Morris Wolf, Miss Mary H. Goodale, Thomas M. Saulters, Verner E. Warren, C. R. La Coste, F. H. Jeffries, and J. P. Sanders.

New Jersey.

Otto Heinz, President of the Bosch Magneto Company, has increased his Englewood holdings by purchasing twenty-five acres at Englewood Cliffs, opposite Spuyten Duyvil. He now owns forty acres, embracing the entire Kotten tract. The Englewood Real Estate Company was the broker in the transaction.

Flat Rock estate at Montclair has been sold by Mrs. Kate A. Bennett to David B. Mills, President of the Rajah Spark Plug Company. Flat Rock occupies a unique and conspicuous position on Montclair mountain, commanding an extensive view eastward to New York and the Narrows to Sandy Hook. F. M. Crawley & Brother negotiated the transaction.

Connecticut Acreage Sold.

Douglas Graham Smythe of Manhattan has purchased the property of Rida Johnson Young, known as the Italian Villa and located at Belle Haven, Greenwich, Conn. Thomas N. Cook negotiated the transaction.

Charles Field Griffen & Co. have sold for Harry L. Cowles his property consisting of five acres of land on Collender's Point, Norcross, Conn., opposite the town bathing beach, to John Cort, owner of the Cort Theatres in New York and Boston. Mr. Cort intends to develop the property as a high class bungalow colony for members of the theatrical profession.

Westchester County.

The Philipse Manor Company has sold to Mrs. Ellen Anderson of New York City the house on the north side of Farrington Avenue near Bellwood Avenue, in the Philipse Manor tract. The house stands on a plot of ground 150 feet in depth with a frontage of 77 feet on the avenue. The selling price is understood to be about $10,500.

Commercial Leases.

Blake & Williams have leased from Charles Manierre the property, 24½ and 26 Grove Street. The lease is for a long term of years and after extensive repairs the tenants will occupy the five-story building, 24½ Grove Street, with their working plant and the adjoining building as offices. The firm has been obliged to vacate its new building at 24 Barrow Street, which has been acquired by the city and will be taken down to make way for the new Seventh Avenue extension. The Duross Company was the broker.

Pease & Elliman have leased to a client, for a long term of years, at an aggregate rental of over $60,000, the building at 148 Delancey Street, northeast corner Suffolk Street, for the owner, Mr. Hugo E. Distelhurst. Extensive alterations are now being made and upon completion the lessee, a well-known retail concern, will occupy the entire ground floor.

Cammann, Vorhees & Floyd have leased the building at 31 Water Street for J. Archibald Murray to Oelrichs & Co., steamship agents, for a term of years.

Henry Trenkmann has leased for Lowenfeld & Prager the store and basement at 130 and 132 West Fourteenth Street to the Collapsible Paper Box Company.

Pease & Elliman have leased the store and basement at 151 and 153 West Nineteenth Street to Martin H. Meinhard & Co., woolen importers.

Private Dwellings Leased.

N. Brigham Hall and William D. Bloodgood have leased the three-story dwelling, 285 West 138th Street, for John J. Halleron, as agent for the Equitable Life Assurance Society, to Mrs. Lydia Broderick.

J. P. & E. J. Murray have leased the three-story and basement private house, 172 East 116th Street, to Celia Dehosh for a term of years.

Realty Notes.

Bryan L. Kennelly will sell to-day at 2:30 o'clock, on the premises, the New-bury D. Lawton property on Davenport Neck, New Rochelle. It is known as the Wildcliff estate and consists of four lots and two dwellings. Later in the day Mr. Kennelly will sell thirteen plots in Premium Point Park, overlooking Echo Bay and Long Island Sound.

A big sale of Bronx property will be held this afternoon on the premises by John S. Mapes. The property is known as the Park Versailles tract, near the Van Nest station of the New York & New Haven Road, consisting of 569 lots and three dwellings, bounded by Beach, Walker, and Wood Avenues, Gray Street and Unionport Road, with a frontage of about 1,000 feet on Walker Avenue and about 4,000 feet on White Plains Road, the main thoroughfare from Mount Vernon to New York City.

TELLS WHY SCOTS WANT HOME RULE

F. J. Robertson, Edinburgh City Official, Calls the Present Government Obsolete.

ENDS A 12,700-MILE TOUR

Scottish Home Rule Will Be Taken Up When Irish Bill Is Disposed Of, He Says.

That home rule in Ireland will be followed by home rule in Scotland was the assertion of F. J. Robertson, a city official of Edinburgh, in an address last night on "Home Rule in Scotland" at 227 Lenox Avenue, under the auspices of the Scottish Home Rule Association of New York. Describing the present government of Scotland as an "obsolete form of government by proxy, administered by an unrepresentative parliament and absentee officialdom, bound-all-around with red-tape," he summed up the purpose of the movement to obtain representative government in these words:

"It is proposed to relieve the present House of Parliament of purely Scottish business, and to set up a house of parliament in Scotland. The idea is that each of the four nations of Great Britain, Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales, are entitled to and should have their own legislation and control of all affairs of government concerning their own national life, with an imperial parliament to look after matters of general common interest to all."

In addition to being the youngest member of the City Council of Edinburgh Mr. Robertson is a Director of the Edinburgh and Leith Gas Corporations, a municipal enterprise; Chairman of the Committee of Seventy appointed to manage the national health insurance system, and President of the Young Scots Society of Edinburgh. He is an attorney, and was the chief factor in the organization last May of the International Scots Home Rule League. He is 37 years old.

When Mr. Robertson stepped from a New York Central train yesterday afternoon he had completed 12,700 miles of travel in this country and Canada, speaking in nearly every important city on the subject of Scottish home rule. Last night he told his audience here of the enthusiasm his subject met with everywhere, resulting in local associations being formed, among others in Philadelphia, Chicago, Minneapolis, Seattle, Boston, Albany, Vancouver, Winnipeg, and Toronto. He is paying his own expenses, and not a penny is being asked for as a campaign fund.

Campaigning in Vacation.

"I volunteered to spend my vacation this way," he said, "like two other men who are working for home rule by going to other parts of the world, to arouse interest and sentiment of Scotsmen in the present troubles of their native land.

"The present Parliament, which has been united for 200 years, has failed to give Scotland what she needs," he continued. "The work of Parliament has increased enormously; the wide interests controlled have expanded to such an extent that all business in this centralized legislative system is hopelessly congested, and all reforms held up. Costly expenditures for public service are sanctioned by Parliament very often without proper inquiry and consideration.

"The time left for, or devoted to, Scottish business during a Parliamentary session is only a few days. Consequently, Scotland does not get a fair chance in legislation matters. In addition to our legislation being dealt out in London, the headquarters of Scottish administrative departments are there. As an example, the Scottish educational department, which is composed of five lords and three members of the Commons, has not held a meeting in six years; its important affairs being disposed of at the discretion of its Secretary.

"We want municipal legislation with laws brought up to date. Our only appeal now is to a nominated committee of Parliament, which is not effective as to results, and yet the taxpayers are rated annually for large sums to carry on thus useless efforts for better conditions. Industry, prosperity, and natural development are throttled. Tens of thousands of the best young men of the country are leaving yearly because of these disadvantages, and, particularly, because they cannot get access to the land, large tracts of which are held for sport and other private and selfish interests against the public policy.

People Unanimous for Home Rule.

"The Scottish people are practically unanimous for a change. Of the seventy-two representatives of Scotland in Parliament sixty are in favor of home rule, and have been urging the Government to remedy matters.

"The Prime Minister has authorized the Secretary for Scotland to speak in Edinburgh on Nov. 9, when it is expected he will make a definite pronouncement on this subject on behalf of the Government. It is known that he will give a pledge that when the next Liberal Government is returned two years hence it will proceed to pass a Home Rule bill for Scotland. It cannot be undertaken now because the Irish Home Rule measure must first be disposed of, though W. H. Cowan, M. P., from Aberdeen, has already introduced a Home Rule bill for Scotland. There are neither politics nor any religious question involved in this movement. Nearly every Mayor of Scotland is for home rule, and its advocates include the leading men of the country."

It was learned last night that Andrew Carnegie had been asked to take part in the movement, and now has the matter under consideration. He had an interview concerning home rule with Hector Macpherson, ex-editor of The Edinburgh Evening News, who is now the President of the International Home Rule Association.

WHITE SLAVER CONVICTED.

Mello Took Edith Miller from New York to Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—After a trial lasting three days, Thomas S. Mello, also known as Thomas Miller, who conducted a jewelry shop in this city, was convicted to-day in the United States Court of violating the Mann White Slave Act. He was charged with bringing to this city from New York last July Edith Miller, whom he had known seven years. Two women employed by the Department of Justice posed as white slaves to get evidence against Mello. Both testified against him.

Mello swore the Miller girl followed him here, trying to get him to marry her. Once, he said, he traveled from Boston to Chicago with his wife to get rid of her. The girl testified that he took her to various cities and that she turned over to him money she had earned improperly.

ADMITS AN ESTATE SWINDLE

Affidavit Telling of Perjury Puzzles Officials of Surrogate's Court.

Israel Tilden, Jr., the lawyer who went around town interviewing persons with a view to showing the need for a change of venue in the trial of Charles H. Hyde, ex-City Chamberlain, and whose affidavit was investigated with the result that dozens of those quoted by him denied having expressed antagonism to Hyde, applied to Surrogate Fowler yesterday for citations to the heirs of the $2,300 estate of John Crowley. The application was granted. Tilden who before this had prepared an affidavit similar to his Hyde deposition on behalf of David A. Sullivan, indicted ex-President of the Mechanics and Traders Bank of Brooklyn, appeared as counsel for a man calling himself "James R. Kettner, alias Jeremiah Crowley."

Tilden filed an affidavit made by Kettner, with the Surrogate yesterday. In this affidavit, Kettner set forth that he had had himself appointed administrator of the John Crowley estate, on a sworn statement that he was Jeremiah Crowley, who had formerly lived at Port Jefferson, and was John Crowley's first cousin. Kettner said in the paper filed yesterday that both these statements were false. He gave his address as 16 Tillary Street, Brooklyn. He explained that in August or September, 1912, a man named John Harrison had told him to call on Edwin Trautwein at 302 Broadway, to earn $50 easily. He said he had received $50 after signing an application to be appointed administrator of the Crowley estate. He added that he had drawn $140.90 from the New York Savings Bank and $2,159.10 from the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, in check form and had turned the checks over to Trautwein. He said he did not know Neil H. Vanderwater, who had appeared as his counsel of record in the Crowley proceeding. Trautwein could not be found yesterday afternoon.

When a reporter called at Tilden's office at 206 Broadway, the address given on his papers, he was not in. The officials of the Surrogate's Court said that Tilden had not explained Kettner's motive for proclaiming himself a perjurer. Trautwein had an office formerly at 302 Broadway, under the name of the Estates Liquidation Company.

DETECTIVE FIRED ON.

He Shoots Back Into Dark Room, Then Arrests Two.

Harry Zamber, a young electrician, ran to the Tremont police station late last night and there said that when he had gone to an apartment on the ground floor of 764 East 187th Street to do some wiring, he had been set upon by two men who demanded money and then seized his watch and chain. He had jumped out of the window and run all the way to the station.

Detective Johnsmeyer hurried to the address Zamber had given and rang the bell. The door opened only to slam again in his face. Then he blew his police whistle, and, reinforced by Patrolman Dunphy and two other policemen, he raised the front window. As he climbed on to the sill a pistol blazed at him from the darkness within, and a bullet whistled past his head. From the window-sill the detective answered the shot with his own revolver, and in the dark room he could hear a woman cry out, and could hear some children whimpering.

He wondered if he had hit any of them, but, with the patrolmen close behind him, he pushed on into the room. There he collared Michael Silverstein and a youth named Moses Kirschbaum, and arrested them charged with the robbery of Zamber. In Silverstein's pocket, the detective reports, he found a revolver from which one shot had just been fired, so an additional charge was lodged against Silverstein.

Zamber says that when the demand for money was made of him young Kirschbaum spoke and claimed his money as a debt owed. Zamber admits that he owed Kirschbaum's father $10, but says that the father has been dead several years. The watch and chain were not found.

FEAR FOR MRS. PANKHURST.

Caminetti Writes That She Must Be Treated Like "Other Aliens."

The letter addressed to President Wilson by the Women's Political Union in regard to the treatment of Mrs. Pankhurst upon her arrival in this country, has been answered, not as the women hoped, by the President, but by Commissioner General Caminetti, and the response has not been received with pleasure by the Union. This is the letter:

Washington, Sept. 24, 1913.

Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, New York:

Madam: Your letter of the 15th inst., addressed to the President, concerning the intended visit to this country of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, has been referred to this bureau for acknowledgement and consideration.

Of course, the alien mentioned will be treated by the immigration officials at New York, if she should arrive there, in exactly the same manner as other aliens applying for admission; in other words, she will be examined, and if found admissible will be landed, or if found excludable will be rejected. ANTHONY A. CAMINETTI,

Commissioner General of Immigration.

"The reply is most unsatisfactory and evasive," Mrs. Blatch, the president, said yesterday. "We are making so many plans for Mrs. Pankhurst's reception and we shall be put to great inconvenience if she is detained. I have written to Miss Alice Paul in Washington saying that I thought a delegation should be sent to interview the Commissioner General and I will see about calling upon the immigration authorities here."

ALICE WALKER AN ACCUSER.

Says She Paid Policeman $60 a Month and Civilian $200.

Alice Walker, who was tried in the Court of General Sessions last week on a white slavery charge and was remanded to the Tombs when the jury in her case disagreed, told Assistant District Attorney Frederick J. Groehl yesterday that she had paid $60 a month to a policeman in the precinct where her house was, and had also paid $200 to a high civilian official of the Police Department.

The policeman, to whom she says she paid the monthly protection fee, was the same one previously accused by Mary Goode of having collected protection money in that district. The house kept by Alice Walker was in West Eighty-third Street.

District Attorney Whitman said last night that no corroboration of Alice Walker's story had yet been obtained.

Crawford Before Bible Conference.

Daniel Crawford, who has been a missionary in Africa for more than twenty years, will be the chief speaker at the Bible Conference to be held at the National Bible Institute, 156 Fifth Avenue, on next Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Crawford is taking his first furlough since he went to Africa. While the Bible Conference is in session outdoor meetings will be held daily at Madison Square and Printing House Square.

GOVERNOR PUZZLED OVER THAW'S CASE

Felker Says Four Days' Study of Arguments Has Brought Him to No Conclusion.

WILL GRANT MORE DELAY

Thaw's Lawyers Having Jerome Shadowed for Fear of a Coup—Mrs. Thaw Assails Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 26.—Harry K. Thaw's lawyers were cheerful to-night when they heard that Gov. Felker had said that after four days' study of the Thaw extradition arguments he absolutely had formed no conclusion and that his mind was "an open book" on the subject. The Governor also said that he would grant the extension of time for the filing of briefs, unless some irregularities appeared in the papers.

Thaw's lawyers repeated to-day that Mr. Jerome's statement about obtaining an indictment was a "bluff." Every move made by Mr. Jerome and the other representatives of New York State and Dutchess County, is being watched and bulletins are being flashed here over the wires. In that way Thaw and his New Hampshire attorneys were aware of every step that Jerome took to-day in preparing for his fight. By keeping a close watch on Mr. Jerome they hope to anticipate any new step he may take. Their chief fear is that the special deputy attorney general will spring some surprise at the eleventh hour which they will be unable to meet.

Gov. Felker was asked to-night if he intended to continue an investigation of the facts surrounding the alleged indictment by the Dutchess County Grand Jury. He intimated that he would leave such steps to the attorneys, and then added:

"But I don't feel that I should discuss this case in detail; I don't want to say just what I will or will not do."

Attorney General Tuttle denied a report that he had advised the Governor to honor the extradition papers.

Thaw and his mother went out for an automobile ride at 5 o'clock this afternoon and did not return until nearly 7 o'clock. It was quite dark, and although Sheriff Drew was with Thaw, Marshal Nute became very nervous. He walked up and down the hotel corridor glancing along the road every few minutes in the hope of catching a glimpse of the headlights of the machine. As a result the report got about the hotel that word had been received of still another attempt to escape.

There is much comment upon the fact that Thaw continues to occupy the best rooms in the hotel at a heavy expense, and that several officers are retained here as a body guard. Inquiry brought out the fact that Thaw not only was paying for his rooms and meals, but was paying the hotel bills of the officers as well.

Another statement was issued by Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw to-day, in which she assailed Mr. Jerome. Here is the statement:

When men or women reach the age of threescore and ten they are—or should be—privileged to express their opinions over their signature and within the bounds of truth and righteousness. It was my opinion that, anyone of three able lawyers whom Mr. Jerome insulted in turn and by name at the Governor's hearing, should then and there have called him to account. It was and is my opinion that this rather brilliant Republican and juggler of facts and fiction should not have been allowed to go away from that hearing with the assurance, real or pretended, that he had "thrown a bomb into the Thaw camp."

So far from consternation striking down the Thaw counsel these legal gentlemen knew that Jerome was falsifying, but they are conservative men and waited legal proof. As an illustration of the manner in which the maladroit mind distorts facts, that same evening in Boston Mr. Jerome twisted a most commonplace occurrence into something pernicious. The fact on which his presentation was based, is as follows:

As we returned from the hearing the elevator carried Sheriff Drew, my son, and myself one floor too high. We walked, as I supposed, to my room door, and I asked my son to turn the knob, which he did, and we were face to face with Mr. Jerome, whose rooms happened to be immediately over my own. Pleasantly and courteously my son said, "Excuse us, we must be on the wrong floor," and laughing at our mistake we turned. Mr. Jerome said nothing nor did he laugh. My son had apologized pleasantly, and it was Mr. Jerome who was upset for, in his surprise, he lost his presence of mind and made no reply, although he saw an elderly lady at the door.

WOMAN WINS RECALL FIGHT.

Mrs. Davidson Triumphs Over Her Enemies at the Polls.

HANFORD, Cal., Sept. 26.—The recall election against Mrs. N. E. Davidson, Superintendent of Schools of Kings County, who was charged with neglect of duty, failed to-day. Returns from twenty-eight precincts gave Mrs. Davidson 1,847 votes to 1,284 for her recall. To-day's election was the first application of the new law against a woman official in California.

The recall was initiated by friends of Thomas J. Roesman, ex-Principal of the Hanford Union High School, after his certificate had been revoked by the county Board of Education as a result of charges of immoral conduct filed against him by Mrs. Davidson.

COFFEE MEN INDICTED.

Sinnot and Orchard of New Orleans Charged with Fraud.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 26.—J. B. Sinnot, President, and Paul J. Orchard, Treasurer, of the wholesale coffee firm of Smith Brothers Company, Limited, recently declared insolvent, with liabilities of more than a million dollars, were indicted to-day in connection with the failure of the firm.

They were charged with unlawful disposition of collateral upon which loans had been obtained from a local bank. Sinnot, who had been at the head of the firm for many years, was released on $10,000 bail.

OPEN-AIR SCHOOL BEST.

Dr. Roach Tells of His Experiments and Shows Methods.

Dr. Walter Roach of the Department of Public Health and Charities of Philadelphia lectured last night in the recreation annex of Public School 63 on East Fourth Street on the benefits of open air class rooms for children. Dr. Roach brought with him some moving pictures showing the successful methods of open-air teaching in use in Philadelphia and also some statistics to show that the open-air method causes better physical and mental development and creates happier dispositions. The "open air" lecture was held in a basement without a single window.

In order to insure the best results in open-window schools, Dr. Roch pointed out, movable furniture was needed. His pictures, taken in the Bache school of Philadelphia showed a type of desk and seat which could be carried by a child. The cleared space provided room for calisthenics, which Dr. Roach said, were essential to insure the best results. In the experiments which he conducted Dr. Roach found that every child gained weight and that the subnormal gained as much as the normal. He read many letters from parents pleading that the children be kept in the schools with open windows all through the school year.

The lecture was held under the auspices of the People's Institute.

AUTO MEN TO DINE CONNOLLY

Feast a Tribute to His Work for Good Roads in Queens.

A dinner will be given by the Manhattan Automobile Club at its clubhouse in West Fifty-ninth Street, on Oct. 11 to Borough President Connolly of Queens and his Superintendent of Highways, G. Howland Leavitt. This club is composed of automobile owners, newspaper writers and members of the automobile trade. The invitations to the dinner contained this statement:

"From probably the worse roads in the country Queens County now has, thanks to an honest, efficient and businesslike administration, probably the best system of roads in the United States. At this dinner we hope to have as guests Mayor Kline and some members of the Board of Estimate, State Highway Commissioner Carlisle and Secretary of State Mitchell May and we would like to find out from the city officials, why, since it is possible for President Connolly and Highway Commissioner Leavitt to build good roads for a reasonable sum of money and keep them in repair their example is not followed in other boroughs and why in spite of $100,000,000 having been appropriated by the State some sane system has not been followed in building our State highways."

WELCOME FOR MAX SCHER.

Youth Lost Employer's $90 and Then Ran Away in Panic.

The family of seventeen-year-old Max Scher of 806 East 153d Street, and his employer, Solomon Shapiro, a costumer of 450 Sixth Avenue, want every newspaper in New York to announce this morning that a welcome awaits him at his home and at his office. He has not been seen at either place since Thursday.

When he did not return on Thursday night, his mother was so worried that she waited the floor till daylight, and the worry only grew when the morning mail brought a letter from the missing youth to his brother Isidore saying that he had lost or been robbed of $90 of Mr. Shapiro's money and that he dared not return. It was the amount of a check he had cashed at a Fourteenth Street bank, and money and passbook were gone when he got off the Broadway trolley at Twenty-fifth Street. Panic-stricken, young Scher walked the streets, and then, on Thursday evening, he sat down on a park bench and wrote to his brother. But he gave no address, and only through the newspapers can the family tell him that it is all right and that Mr. Shapiro is willing to overlook it.

MURDER WITNESS FOUND.

Della Bertrand Says She Saw Rubenstein Slain in Ottawa.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Sept. 26.—After a three-day search, Detective Patrick O'Donnell of the Montreal police and George A. Wayland, head of a detective agency, found to-day Della Bertrand, and she is held as a witness in connection with the Rubenstein murder in Ottawa. She professes to have been occupying a house in Ottawa next to the one in which it is said Rubenstein met death on Sept. 9, and she alleges she saw the crime committed. The man sought by the police is said to be a negro known on race tracks from New Orleans to Ottawa.

The Bertrand woman was found in a hotel, where she was working as a servant.

WORD FROM MACMILLAN.

Arctic Explorer Reached Etah Aug. 12—To Cape Sabine Next Day.

NEW KENSINGTON, Penn., Sept. 26.—Dr. John W. Goodsell of this place, the surgeon who accompanied Admiral Peary on the latter's successful dash for the North Pole, has received the following communication from MacMillan, the explorer now in the North. The communication, dated Etah, North Greenland, Aug. 12, reads:

"Arrived here to-day with twenty dogs and twenty-five Eskimo men, women and children. Cross over to Cape Sabine to-morrow. All well and prosperous. Have on board two Eskimos who were on board with Cook."

EXPRESS MEN ON STRIKE.

15,000 Parcel Delivery Workers May Walk Out in London.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—London is threatened with another strike which, if it materializes, will involve 15,000 employes of the various parcel express delivery companies. At the present time the dispute is confined to one firm; but, following the tactics of the busmen in their recent strike, the express employes threaten to call out all the members of their union unless the employers recognize the Transport Workers' Union.

Attempts to hold up vans to-night resulted in several conflicts between strikers and the police.

Train Kills Five Near Montreal.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 26.—The Canadian Pacific Quebec express ran down a carriage containing five persons near this city to-day, and killed all of them. The victims, all of whom lived in St. Elizean, Que., were Hermidas Allaire, Mrs. Allaire, Wilfrid Lortie, Albina Lortie, and Victoria Lortie. One body was found on top of a car when the train stopped.

RAN AWAY IN MEN'S CLOTHES

Girl Arrested After Seeking a Room in Grand Union Hotel.

"I would like to have a room—a nice room," said a stylishly attired person to the room-clerk at the Grand Union Hotel at Forty-second Street and Park Avenue, last night.

The room clerk said that the guest was dressed in a dark Oxford suit, wore a golf cap, and carried a small handbag. It was not the appearance so much as the feminine voice of the applicant that attracted the hotel man's attention. The room clerk summoned John Cavanaugh, the house detective who spoke to the guest and after a few minutes in questioning found that the name that should have appeared on the register was Julia Griffin of Brighton, Mass. The guest said she was fifteen years old and that her father was a locomotive engineer. Yesterday, she said, she took $16 from her parents' hoard and determined to come to New York to make a living.

Detective Cavanaugh called in Policeman Greir of the East Thirty-fifth Street station who took the girl to the station and afterwards she was sent to the Gerry Society.

PRIZE FOR POLICE HORSE.

Gold Medal and Money Award from Women's League for Animals.

The mounted policeman who has the best trained and the best kept horse in the department will receive a gold medal and a money prize in a competition held under the auspices of the New York Women's League for Animals, of which Mrs. James Speyer is President. As the Committee of Judges for the contest, which will be held some time in December, Commissioner Waldo yesterday appointed Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. C. C. Cuyler, Inspectors Myers and O'Brien, Superintendent of Stables Shanton, and Dr. Frank H. Wright, veterinarian of the department.

In awarding the prize the committee will count fifty points for physical condition, forty points for training, and ten points for the condition of harness and equipment.

BOY DETECTS PICKPOCKET.

Sees Man Steal Watch and Fob and Has Him Arrested.

A 13-year-old schoolboy, David Landau of 419 East Tenth Street, ran up to Traffic Patrolman Clark at Thirteenth Street and Broadway late yesterday afternoon, and pointing to a man hurrying down the street, said he had just seen him pick a man's pocket around in Fourteenth Street. Clark took the boy's word for it and arrested the man. Clark was rewarded by discovering a gold watch and fob clenched in his prisoner's hand.

The man arrested said he was Frank Vitalie of 541 East Twelfth Street and he said that the watch was his, but he was locked up in the Mercer Street station on a charge of grand larceny. Claimants of the timepiece may try their luck at that station.
